VISITOR AND GENTLEMEN,

I HAVE the pleasure of presenting to you a more extended narrative, chiefly of the early history and social customs of the Incorporated Craft of Maltmen in Glasgow, than is contained in the few notes appended to a "Roll of Visitors of the Craft" printed in 1864.

It was pleasing at the time to receive approval of the "Roll" and its notes, from our local antiquaries, John Buchanan, LL.D., James Pagan, and Sheriff Strathern, the latter suggesting that a similar contribution from each of the Fourteen Incorporations, of which the Trades' House consists, would form desirable companion volumes to Mr. Crawford's Sketch of the House.

In his edition of "Glasghu Facies," Dr. Gordon acknowledges obligation to what he is pleased to term the "interesting pamphlet" of the Maltmen.

In "Annals of the Skinners Craft," the accomplished annalist, Mr. William Henry Hill, contesting the order of precedence of the Skinners in the Trades' House, takes occasion to refer to the "Roll of Maltmen," in which Mr. Crawford's statement that the Incorporation arose out of the Letter of Guildry in 1605 is disputed, and says "the Clerk of the Maltmen has very clearly shown that the Maltmen were existing as one of the Incorporations of Glasgow at least as far back as the year 1556."

To add to the interest of the present Print, there is given a Roll of Names of Members of the Incorporation from 1605, preserving the spelling peculiar to the periods, in the order of their enrolment from that remote time to August, 1879; and a Roll of the present Members in the same order, in which the ancestry of each Member is traced by giving his Craft Genealogy. It may surprise some to find themselves merged in a common kindred, of which they were not previously aware, taking them back to an early stage in the history of the Craft. Perhaps this may appear not the least interesting portion of the Volume.

The opportunity has been taken to present as an Appendix, copies of such interesting documents as the Letter of Guildry, its Ratification by Parliament, Minutes of Approval and other Acts of the Town Council, Charter of Confirmation by the Archbishop, and of the Act abolishing the Exclusive Privileges of the Crafts; also, a reprint of our Laws and Regulations, sanctioned in 1852, and subsequent Additions.

Having now complied with your request for a Handy Book of the Craft, it will be gratifying to me if the manner in which it is published prove acceptable to you, and if the matter, limited as it is considering the choice of my materials, meet your approbation.

I remain,

VISITOR AND GENTLEMEN,

Yours very faithfully,

ROBERT DOUIE.

INTRODUCTORY.

A VERY short historical deduction of the erection of the Burgh of Glasgow brings us intelligibly to the period when classes of Craftsmen were associated, and from which the Trades incorporated in Glasgow can date their social existence.

Memorials of Ancient Glasgow, its times, traditions, persons, and actions, are faint and almost obliterated. Antiquarian research describes that Saint Kentigern, contemporary of Saint Columba and Saint Ninian, about the year 560, selected the locality, from its natural advantages of situation, where to found the See of Glasgow and fix his place of residence; but of its rude history for nearly five hundred years afterwards almost nothing is known. The first reliable account of this rural religious station, is not till the reign of Alexander I., whose brother, David, Prince of Cumberland, in 1116, inducted his chaplain, John Achaius, a man of great learning, to the Bishopric. Prince David was Superior of Cumbria, or the Western and Southern District of Scotland, with adjacent part of England; and his Inquiry or Investigation concerning the Lands of which the Church of Glasgow had been despoiled, is the earliest record of the state of its inhabitants. By recovery of the Church property under this Inquiry, the Bishop was enabled to erect a Church at Glasgow, consecrated in 1136, and his successors to erect the existing Cathedral, consecrated by Bishop Jocelyn in 1197, and afterwards to endow its altars and chapels, and others in the district..

The interest of Bishop Jocelyn with William, surnamed the Lion, procured for Glasgow the rank of a Free Burgh or Bishop's Burgh of Barony in 1174. This charter,—a second in 1176,—and a third in 1190,—all granted by the King,—gave the inhabitants many privileges, encouraging them in the cultivation of trade and commerce. The community appears to have been governed by a provost and bailies—in all respects an organised corporation, with persons in official situations for the investing and transferring of property, and with Courts of Justice for determining disputes among the inhabitants.

By Charter in 1450, King James the Second granted to William, Bishop of Glasgow, and his successors, the City of Glasgow, Barony of Glasgow, and Lands called Bishopforest, to be holden of the Crown, in free, pure, and mere regality or royalty, in fee and heritage, or a Burgh of Regality, with power to elect their Magistrates. By 1476, c. 8, Ratification is made of the City and Barony to the Bishop and See of Glasgow in free regality, granting to the Bishop the power of appointing and removing the Provost and Magistrates, and the right of appointing a Serjeant to bear a silver rod, with the Royal Arms at one end and those of the Bishop at the other, for executing arrestments, mandates, and precepts. The power to appoint Magistrates was thus still in the hands of the Ecclesiastics, who, to awe the inhabitants, elected powerful nobles to the Magistracy.

But from this time Glasgow gradually became, by its trade and commerce, an active and industrious city, and emerged from a long reign of ecclesiastical influence. It may be concluded that almost all the Crafts within the Burgh were now (or soon afterwards) existing, although in most instances not yet associated under the authority of Letters of Deaconry or Seals of Cause prescribing rules for good order and the providing and managing of their funds.

By King Charles' Charter in 1636, ratified by Parliament in 1641, Glasgow at length became a Royal Burgh.

The powers and privileges of the Trades or Crafts, however, over all the kingdom, were during the 15th, 16th, and part of the 17th centuries extremely fluctuating.

The Statute of James I. in 1425, c. 39, makes mention for the first time of "DEAKONS" or "Maister men,"—handicraftsmen in their different branches in every town of the realm being thereby empowered to elect a Preses, who was called "a Deakon or Maister man over the laife for the time," so that the lieges be not defrauded in time to come as they have been in time by-gone through untrue men of crafts.

A continuation of this Statute in 1426, c. 27, also requires "Deacons of ilk craft" to be elected.

By c. 86 in same year, the office, as being of general prejudice to the kingdom, was totally prohibited,—all license to elect Deacons revoked,—and the former meetings of the Deacons condemned as the assemblies of conspirators.

Being restored by James II. in 1457, c. 65, in favour of the Goldsmiths, requiring them to appoint a Deacon to inspect their work, that it be of standard fineness, and by James III., 1483, c. 96, by which Goldsmiths are again to have a Deacon, the office once more became general among the other crafts. A few years later, the Act James III., Parl. 2, c. 12, first mentions the distinction between Traders and Merchants—tradesmen using merchandise are required to renounce their craft—and by Act James III., 1487, c. 107, it is ordained that this Act be put to execution by escheat of the merchandise, to be accounted for to the Exchequer.

In 1493, James IV., c. 43, the office of Deacon was again checked as being dangerous and the cause of great trouble in boroughs—"and because it is clearly understandin to the King's Hienes and his three estates that the using of Deakons of men of crafts in Burrows is richt dangerous, it is therefore ordained that all Deakons shall cease for a year at least [especially masons and wrights], except to examine works," and they were required to confine themselves to the inspection of the work performed by those of their respective crafts.

By Statute of Queen Mary, 1555, c. 52 [Mary of Guise, Regent], the office of Deacon was abolished as being the cause of commotion and unlawful combinations amongst the Crafts themselves, and betwixt Burgh and Burgh, deserving of great punishment.

Disturbances in the kingdom had become frequent between the merchants and craftsmen. In 1543, in particular, there had been a disturbance in Edinburgh, having its origin in a dispute between these parties, the envy of the crafts excited by the power of electing magistrates exclusively for a long time in the hands of the merchants, of whom alone the Town Council was originally composed. This irritation was increased and called into action on the 12th August of that year by a law encroaching on their rights which was passed by the Magistrates. In the Town House, the Deacons of the Trades drew their swords to show that they had been injured, and that they were determined to have redress, upon which they were seized by an armed force and imprisoned. The Craftsmen assembled to rescue and support the Deacons; but when the matter was beginning to wear a serious aspect, it was put an end to and a reconciliation effected by the interposition of the Regent Arran.

The animosity of the Craftsmen must have caused fresh disturbances, and brought upon themselves and the Craftsmen generally of the Kingdom the Queen's Statute of 1555. This Statute ordains "that there be NA DEAKONS chosen in tymes cumming within Burgh," and the Provost, Bailies, and Council of the Burgh "are to chuse the maist honest man of craft, of gude "conscience, ane of every Craft to visie their craft that they labour suffici"ently, and thir persons to be called Visitours of their craft, and to be "elected and chosen yearly at Michaelmas, and thir Visitours chosen, sworn, "and admitted to have choosing of officers and other things, as the Deacons "voted before. Na Craftsman to bruik office in the Burgh Council except "two of the most honest and famous persons to be chosen yearly."

This was a complete change, making the heads of all the Trades "Visitors," and when Deacons were restored the term "Visitor" appears to have remained with the Maltmen.

By advice of the Queen Regent, Her Majesty granted on 16th April, 1556, a General Charter in favour of all the Craftsmen of the Burghs and Cities within the Realm, taking off the effect of the Act passed in June, 1555, which had deprived the Crafts of right to elect Deacons, and “restoris

“and repones them to use and have Deacons of all Craftis, togidder with “all and sundry privileges, faculties, freedoms, consuetudes, and uses granted
“to them be our maist noble progenitors, and alsua the use and possession “of the saidis liberties bruikit and joisit by them in tymes bygane, notwith“standing the said Act of Parliament, &c., ratifying and approving all their “former privileges given in tyme bygane.” The Trades, therefore, speedily acquired new power and favour.

A letter of Mary of Lorraine to the Town Council of Edinburgh at Michaelmas, 1559, in regard to the Borough Election, alludes to this restitution of privileges of the Craftsmen made in 1556. Before many years elapsed the Trades there, having again got a footing in the Town Council, their mutual contests with the Merchants filled the City with tumult. Both parties were fain to court peace by referring their claims and differences to the decision of James VI. as umpire between them. By the King's Decree Arbitral in 1583, the Political Constitution or Set of the Town was established upon nearly the same footing which it retained till altered in our own times, although it was by no means sufficient to arrest the now uninteresting contests between the Merchants and Trades for power in their Burgh politics, the discussions ending frequently in appeals to the Supreme Court to have their respective privileges ascertained.

With every deference to Mr. Crawford's views in his Sketch of the Trades' House of Glasgow, there does not appear to have been any other reason for the contests between the Merchant and Craft Ranks in Glasgow, during the same period, than the claims and differences between them which James VI. had thus brought to an end in Edinburgh, where local historians give no such version of their discords as a religious foundation, arising out of the Reformation struggles between the Popish or Episcopal and the Presbyterian parties.

In annals of one of the Crafts of which the Trades' House consists, Mr. Crawford's "Sketch" is entitled to regard as an exponent of the constitution, funds, and bye-laws of the House, but as a partial writer of history he becomes open to criticism and to be controverted. The Maltmen do not agree with the excellent and able late Clerk of the House in the conclusion come to by him, that a religious element was the cause of their differences in the Merchant and Craft Ranks in Glasgow—the Craftsmen maintaining the doctrines of the Reformation and Presbytery, the Merchants supporting Popery, and latterly Episcopacy. The antagonism between the Merchants and Craftsmen in Glasgow for the political influence of the Town, and management of its Magistracy, was no other than the same mere local contention for precedence between the two ranks which M'Ure, Gibson, Ewing, and Mr. Laurence Hill—the two latter eminent scholars and antiquaries—accurately represent it to have been.

M'Ure says:—"In the 16th century violent contests arose between the "Merchant and Trade Ranks respecting the government of the city. The "Merchants had exercised the whole sway, monopolised the Magistracy, and "assumed the sole right of managing the Funds. The Trades, who were more "numerous, insisted on a participation of office. The animosities which had "arisen from this source were at last allayed by a submission of the points of "difference to Sir George Elphinstone of Blythswood, Knt., then Provost; Mr. "David Weems (the Parson of Glasgow); and Messrs. John Bell and Robert "Scott, two ministers of the city, anent their privileges, places, ranks, and "prerogatives." The award of these Arbitrators, dated 6th February, 1605, is termed the "LETTER OF GUILDRY," and contains the Constitutions of the present Merchants' House, Trades' House, and Incorporation of Maltmen.

Mr. Crawford's theory is, that what had been hitherto treated to suit the interest of a party, as a mere squabble for precedence between the Merchant and Trade Ranks in Glasgow respecting the government of the City, was in reality the struggle of the Craftsmen, who had early imbibed the principles of the Reformation and Presbytery, for the maintenance of these principles against the Merchant rank, the supporters of Popery and latterly of Episcopacy. This is given as historically accurate in the "Sketch of the Trades' House," and as Mr. Crawford's own conviction after a careful study of the History of the City itself. Locally, the idea is mentioned as alike novel and fanciful.

Gibson, and Brown, following M'Ure, give no utterance of the kind; and Mr. Benjamin Mathie, for thirty-six years Clerk to the Trades' House, in a Sketch in 1819, drawn up by request, to afford information of the Constitution and Regulations of the House, after the due examination he was well qualified to make, merely prefaces his History of the Trades of Glasgow considered as one great body corporate by saying: "Previous to the Letter of Guildry, various disputes and contentions had arisen between the Merchant Rank and Trades' Rank on account of their opposite interests and pretensions, which produced great disorders in the City;" in order to put an end to which, on the interposition of the Magistrates and Ministers of the City, the contending parties were prevailed upon to submit their whole differences and the further regulation of their Societies to the determination of arbiters.

Mr. James Ewing, many years Dean of Guild, in a carefully-prepared History of the Guildry and Merchant House of Glasgow, repeats M'Ure's statement; and Mr. Laurence Hill, a venerable member of the Glasgow Archæological Society, in an interesting paper read to the Society in 1858, also incisively reverses Mr. Crawford's fallacy. Mr. Hill says:—"As during many years prior to the enactment of the late Parliamentary and Municipal Reform Bills, by which the Letter of Guildry was so effectually altered, I had the honour of holding the office of Collector and Director of the Merchants' House, and had much occasion to observe both the accuracy and the liberality of Mr. Ewing, I confess I was surprised, and perhaps mortified, to find in a recent publication not merely the accuracy of our Merchants' House history and traditions impugned, but an undue attempt to disparage the character or zeal and regard of the merchant rank (or those who, whether de facto or de jure, or both, were in the government of the city at the time) for the reformed religion, by exalting the character or regard in that respect of the sister house of which the Guildry consists, and a flippancy and scornful allusion to some of our ancestry as 'serfs,' and particularly to the antecedents or causes of that letter as 'a mere squabble,' and to elevate or change at the same time the real dispute into a case of religious warfare or feelings, which, so far as I “have had occasion to observe, did not exist between the two classes of “disputants. The objectionable passage, and the Publication to which I “allude, is by my friend Mr. George Crawford, and I particularly refer to “the epistle dedication prefaced to ‘A Sketch of the Rise and Progress of “‘the Trades’ House of Glasgow,’ printed at Glasgow in the present “year, 1858, addressed to the Deacon-Convener and other respectable “gentlemen, who, I daresay, will not object to, but rather fully concur in,

“any observations I may now submit. ‘I soon perceived,’ says Mr.
“Crawford, ‘that the 14 Incorporations, of whose federal union the Trades’ “‘House is the result, existed while the inhabitants of Glasgow were the “‘serfs of the Roman Catholic Archbishop, who ruled supreme, and as the “‘Lord of the Barony, and latterly of the Regality, appointed the Magis“‘trates; and as I found that some recent writers’ (among whom he “afterwards specially enumerates Mr. Ewing) ‘had represented that the “‘LETTER OF GUILDRY of 1605 proceeded from a mere squabble for “‘precedence between the Merchants and Tradesmen of Glasgow, I thought “‘it necessary to glance at the history of the city itself in the view of “‘testing the accuracy of this statement. This convinced me that what is “‘treated as a mere squabble for precedence was the struggle of the Crafts“‘men, who had early imbibed the principles of the Reformation, for the “‘maintenance of these principles against the supporters of Popery, and “‘latterly of Episcopacy in Glasgow, although it suited the interest of these “‘supporters to represent it as a local squabble for precedence.’ I confess I “have seen nothing in my friend’s publication, of any dispute about religious “principles or about this squabble for precedence, entitling Mr. Crawford
“to accuse Mr. Ewing, and other writers, of base misrepresentation “of a grand Religious struggle. Now, in evidence of the greater “accuracy and propriety of Mr. Ewing’s history of our municipal differ“ences, I refer you to the letter, of which I have here the original,
“for your inspection, under the signature of no other than his most “gracious Majesty King James the Sixth, dated the 28th November, “1606, addressed to three of our citizens, two of whom at least, Messrs.
“Robert Rowatt and Mathew Turnbull, we find in the list of the Magis“trates about that time; and there his Majesty expressly states his understanding ‘the chief ground of your differences in that citty to be ‘a question amongst the equality of Merchaunts and Craftis in the ‘government of the towne.’ And he gives his recommendation that the Councillors elected should be ‘the most wise, discreet, and peaceable ‘men of the citty, makinge the half Merchaunts, and the half Craftis, ‘according to the rules that we have sent you herein enclosed.’ His Majesty’s letter is dated at the time of the first Annual Election, immediately after the award of Sir George Elphinstone and the other Arbiters, with which possibly his Majesty may either have then been unacquainted, or perhaps been dissatisfied on some points, and is a very decisive ‘testing of the accuracy’ of the statement as to what the ‘LETTER OF ‘GUILDRY’ of 1605 proceeded from, given by Mr. Ewing, being greater and more to be depended on than that now, and for the first time, given by Mr. Crawford.”

Mr. Crawford having made his statement as a historical fact, it is fair to record in this way the more consonant view of the contentions between our ancestors of the Merchant and Trades’ rank given in Mr. Hill’s narrative, and in the testimony of M’Ure and the other writers referred to.

THE HISTORY AND SOCIAL CUSTOMS OF THE CRAFT SINCE 1605.

The history of the Incorporation of “Maltmen” in Glasgow prior to 1605 cannot be accurately given—its previous Records, in common with those of the Trades’ House, having perished, according to tradition, during a fire in the city in 1601. As the incorporated Trades at this period, and long subsequently, as well as the Convenery or Trades’ House, met for transaction of their business at the Trades’ Hospital, a building which at one time stood near the Cathedral, it is probable that the records of the Trades’ House and of the Maltmen may have been deposited in the same place of safety, and that they perished together, or disappeared in the confusion incident to the periods of civil commotion. It is now impossible to ascertain the origin of the Incorporation or to trace back its earlier history. In 1605, its Constitution, along with that of the Merchants' House and Trades' House, was ascertained, and made the subject of particular regulation in the Letter of Guildry, the earliest document extant having reference to the Constitution of the Incorporation. By this important deed it was concluded "that there shall be in all time coming ane Dean of Gild, ane Deacon Conveener, and ane VISITOUR of MALTMEN." From the Letter of Guildry referring to the calling as a then subsisting institution, and from other sources, it is evident that the Maltmen were a subsisting calling or Incorporation in Glasgow, holding an influential rank among the Crafts of which the Trades' House was composed, long before 1605. In what manner the Maltmen had been originally incorporated, whether by the Magistrates, with consent of the Bishop or Archbishop of the See granting a Letter of Deaconry or Seal of Cause, cannot now be determined. Beyond doubt the craft in Glasgow was incorporated at as early a period as we find Scottish craftsmen associated into Societies or Incorporations having certain rights and privileges. The Constitution of each trade or craft declared the manner in which it was to be conducted—enacting rules for guidance of the members, and providing funds for relief of the decayed brethren, their widows, and children. The correct designation of the Incorporation is "MALTMEN AND MEALMEN," although for many years past they appear, probably for the sake of brevity, to have kept by the "Malt" and thrown aside the "Meal."

The first mention of Deacons and "maister men" of crafts in the Acts of the Scottish Parliament is in James I., 1424, and there is evidence of the existence in Glasgow of several of the Incorporations in the 15th and early in the 16th centuries. There is no mention of Maltmen or Maltmakers as a separate body in the Scottish Acts till 1503, at which time Glasgow, in its ancient Burgh Title-deeds, is seen to contain, in numerous malt-kilns and malt-barns, the evidence of a prosperous calling. There is no description of property so frequently recurring as that of a "malt-kiln and pertinents." An early local historian [Gibson, p. 170], after enumerating the Incorporations, and the state of their payments and funds, sums up their history, perhaps correctly, in affirming that "the era of erection of these different Incorporations is between 1520 and 1560."

Mr. Crawford inadvertently says that "the Incorporation of Maltmen arose out of the Letter of Guildry."* Instead of the term "arose" it would have been more correct to say that this Incorporation had its privileges and prerogatives fixed, and was brought into union with the other Crafts by the Letter. It had previously held aloof from them, and not taken part in their schemes of benevolence, as is obvious towards the end of the Letter.

In subsequent historical references to the crafts in Mr. Crawford's "Sketch," it is made apparent that the Incorporation of Maltmen had a greater antiquity, and that the calling had been "incorporated" long before 1605. The Deed of Submission, 10th November, 1604, upon which followed the Decree Arbitral known as the "Letter of Guildry," proves sufficiently, if it were disputed, that the Incorporation of Maltmen did not arise therefrom, but existed then and previously as one of the incorporated crafts of the "Burgh and Cittie of Glasgow." For among the persons nominated and chosen for the "haill craftsmen" and their assistants, to treat and reason concerning the matters between the ranks of Merchants and Craftsmen, the Deed of Submission entered into on 10th November, 1604, contains the name of James Fisher, Maltman, as one of the subscribing Craft rank so chosen. James Fisher also subscribes the Decree Arbitral or Letter of Guildry along with the other Commissioners and the Umpires. He was Clerk of the Incorporation, and it is probable was chosen to represent and sign for it, on account of others not being able to write.

There being no evidence now to show the precise date when the Maltmen and Mealmen were primarily erected as an Associated Craft, it will be sufficient to say that it was before 1556. Mr. Crawford elsewhere deduces, from authorities quoted by him, that at the time of the Reformation in 1560 the Craftsmen of Glasgow had been associated under fourteen separate Trades or Incorporations, and that in 1604 these fourteen Crafts then existed as incorporated bodies, each having its lawfully appointed Deacon and Masters * Sketch of the Trades' House, p. 27.

—the fourteen Crafts still existing at the present day—the Incorporation of Maltmen being the fourth in the order of precedence.

The Act of the Scottish Parliament, which came into operation in 1503, is the earliest known law relating to the craft, but it does not describe the trade as incorporated. By that Act Maltmen are enjoined to “present their malt to the mercat, and sell none till nine hours, under the pain of escheat of the malt, and that they take no more than ane boll of the bear for making the chalder of malt, under the pain of oppression.” The penalties inflicted for oppression were very severe. Like the miller and his knaves, or workmen, who received definite portions of the meal, called multures, and knaveship, for grinding the corn, the maltster in James IV.'s reign was paid for his work by a part of the “bear” given to him to be malted. There was not much circulating coin in the country, and payments were consequently made in kind.

Historically, “Maltmen” were an influential body in Scotland. At an early period the quantity of malt manufactured in the kingdom, not only for home use, but to supply the wants of England, a country so greatly superior in wealth, was considerable. The circumstance that in our wars with England, when by the adverse fortunes of the field a tribute was imposed upon us, it was a frequent arrangement that a great part should consist of malt, strikingly attests that the article formed an important branch of Scottish national industry, even as early as the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries.

The Maltmen in Glasgow, however, must have been an associated craft before 1556. In that year when, by order of Queen Mary, a tax was levied on the Burghs, the collecting of the sum laid upon Glasgow is ordained in the Town Council Records by Stenters appointed for each of the fourteen Incorporations and for the non-incorporated inhabitants. The “Stentaris for the Incorporation of Maltmen” were James Mudy, William Wilsoune, Andro Pettigrew, and Alexander Pettigrew. The Magistrates of the Burgh required the services of the crafts in the 16th century as Stenters for other assessments, national and municipal, upon the inhabitants of Glasgow; and there is similar evidence that the Maltmen on these occasions got their share of the duty. The Burgh Records otherwise frequently confirm the fact that the Maltmen had existence as an independent Corporation earlier than the Letter of Guildry ; and for trade purposes their special interference was authorised by the Magistrates long prior to the Visitors' investment with executive powers in 1605. The following ordinance by the Magistrates in 1574 was doubtless at the instance of the craft—the “persones under-wrytten” were Members of the Maltmen calling, and therefore selected to taste the ale—see if the same be sufficient—and to see “quha brewis yat are unfre,” i.e., who had not entered freemen with the calling.

“ Burgh Records, 5th October, 1574.

“ Frae ye Croce to ye Nether Barrasyett :

“ Johne Arbuckle—Johne Gilmor.”

Nothing could give a better idea of the giant strides which the city has since made. The Nether Barrasyett was the south Port at the foot of Salt-market, being the principal entry to the Green. Barrasyett seems a corruption of the words "Burgh's gate." The extract is curious as evidence not merely that there were freemen of an Incorporation at the time, but also as giving the names of all the chief thoroughfares in Glasgow. It is worthy of remark that the tasters are divided into six pairs, as if, by such an arrangement, the Magistrates had left it to the tasters' own good sense so to adjust their visits to the brewers that there should not be more than two of them going about the town tasting on the same week-day.

It may not be out of place to describe the aspect of the city at that time. Each of the main entrances to the city was closed by a barrier, or wall of stone, drawn across the ends of the streets. In the centre of each barrier was the gate, popularly termed the "yett" or "port." These port-gates were locked at night-fall, and on Sunday. The locking at night served to keep all stragglers outside the walls, particularly the Highlanders, who, for a long period, were veritable thorns in the flesh to the worthy citizens. The locking of the gates on Sunday was a provision of the Bailies for preserving the sanctity of the day—by preventing persons wandering to the Burgh of Rutherglen "to see vain plays there on Sunday." About anno 1600, the High Street, Trongate, Bridgegate, and Saltmarket formed the city proper. Country houses fringed the banks of the Molendinar, then a clear streamlet; the water in the Molendinar Burn in the beginning of the last century even being so good, that people in the Bridgegate took the water thereof for the brewing of their ale. Business houses were mostly situated in the vicinity of the Cross, while the "upper ten" had their mansions about the Drygate. The population did not exceed 7500. The markets in olden time were in the high part of the town at the old Cross or Wynd-head, at the junction of High Street and Rottenrow; and were removed at the Reformation to the Cross in Trongate, where they stood in 1605. In 1636 the Meal and Bear Market was built opposite the College. In 1642 the market day, which had been sometime before changed from Thursday to Monday, was changed to Wednesday.

About 1567 the Malt Trade got into disfavour with the governing powers, for in that year, by Act of Parliament, James VI., 1567, c. 29, it is ordained "be our Sovereaine Lorde, his Regent, and the three Estaites

“of this present Parliament for the common weil of this Realme, that there
“be na Deakon of Craft of Maltmen outhter to Burgh or to land, or ony uthter “part within this Realme. And gif ony writing, gift, or priviledge be given “ony time befoir, our Sovereaine Lorde, with advice of his Regent, and the “three Estaites foirsaidis, decernis and declaris the samin to have been fra the “beginning, and to be in all time cumming null, and of nane avail, force, nor “effect. Sa that it sall never be lesum to ony of the maltmen of this “Realme to have Deakons, bot to be repute na craft.”

The Sovereign Lord, with whom the Regent Moray and the collective wisdom of the land advised, was an infant of weak constitution, scarcely twelve months born. The Maltmen were well aware, therefore, from whom the fulmination against their privileges and rights emanated. One thing this deprivation did, and that was to prove to future generations that they had Deacons before 1567, and an incorporated status to be deprived of. The Act fell into desuetude, probably with the death of the Regent himself, and an attempt made to resuscitate it in 1612 proved ineffectual. Another more successful effort to blot out the Maltmen from the lists of the Crafts was made by Charles II. in December, 1669; but, by the unwearied diligence of the Members of this and other Crafts, a ratification of the Letter of Guildry was, in little more than two years thereafter, obtained from Parliament.

The Act 1567 had never controlled the Calling, and, long before the time of the Letter of Guildry, having been utterly neglected had gone into desuetude, by presumed Royal allowance; and the Maltmen had advanced by their own power and advantages to their position in the community. That position even made ineffectual, so far as they were concerned, the Act 1612, passed some years after the Letter of Guildry, again authorising certain penal statutes therein mentioned, and ordaining “everie ane of them to “stand in their awne strength, force, and effect in all tyme cumming”— among others, “The Acts of Parliament made anent Maltmen.” For a time usage prevailed over the public law of the land, but at length the Scottish Parliament of Charles II., 1669, expressly revived the obnoxious provisions of the Act of the Parliament of His Majesty’s grandfather of 1567. The power and influence of Maltmen had once more excited public jealousy—they are to be put down altogether—to have no Deacon—and be reputed no Craft. An Act of the Council of Edinburgh, dated in 1646, ranking Maltmen among the Trades there, is even declared null, and perhaps accounts for their omission as a Craft to this day. Sir George Mackenzie, in his Observations, remarks that the reason why Maltmen are discharged to have a Deacon, is because that at their meetings they might conspire to set a price upon the victual and upon the ale and beer at their pleasure, and force the gentlemen to sell at any rate.

The Acts of Parliament 1567 and 1669, declaring Maltmen to be “no craft” and discharging them to have a Deacon, may have been a salutary regulation for the Burgh of Edinburgh and other burghs of the kingdom, tending to remedy a very general grievance. The Maltsters of Scotland were in use to settle the price of Barley at a low rate, at the same time taking high prices for their Malt; and, when they were also Brewers, a very disproportioned price for their Ale, to the prejudice of the Corn-growers and of the lieges. Attempts had been made to remedy this evil, by enacting Statutes in the reigns of James IV. and James V. to settle the difference between the prices of Barley and Malt. The remedies were found insufficient, especially where the Maltster brewed his Malt—he was not affected by the Statutes, he still settled the price of the Barley at a low rate, and by combination of the Maltmen none of them would give a higher price, but took exorbitant profits upon the Ale. Therefore these Statutes of 1567 and 1699 were put in force, dissolving the Corporations of Maltmen, declaring them no craft, and prohibiting them to have Deacons.

But the evil really did not apply to the Maltmen of Glasgow. The Barley of the country was by no means sufficient by that time to answer the consumpt in the country, and there was no danger of combination in Glasgow against the Corn growers, when it was necessary for the Maltman's business to import large quantities of Corn yearly, at a great expense by land and sea carriage, for the use of the inhabitants. Hence it was proper for the City of Glasgow to encourage their calling of Maltmen in keeping up the supplies of Malt required to furnish their national beverages to the Burgesses of the City.

For this reason, when the City in 1605 was about to have its policy for "the care of the liberties and the commonwell of the Burgh," regulated by the Letter of Guildry,—among other regulations therein the Constitution of the Corporation of Maltmen in Glasgow as a Craft is settled, having "ane Visitour." The Visitor was to have power to try all Meal and Bear, and to impose fines or lower prices if the quality of the Bear, Meal, or Malt was inferior, or "Evill Malt" mixed with good. He was also to receive from the Freemen a quarterly payment of threepence as each member's quarter account, together with eight pennies for each making of Malt, to be collected and disbursed quarterly for relief of the poor of the Corporation.

The Letter of Guildry up to 1669, although acted upon and continuing to regulate the Guildry, Deacon-Convener, and Visitor of Maltmen in their elections, statutes, and privileges, had not been confirmed by Parliament. On occasion, therefore, of the passing of this oppressive Act of Charles II., again declaring Maltmen to be no Craft, the Incorporation applied to the Legislature, and mainly at their own solicitation, their privileges were finally sanctioned in 1672, by the King and Parliament confirming the Letter of Guildry, and declaring it to have the force and strength of an Act of Parliament. This was effected by Statute 1672, c. 129, entituled "Ratification of a Decree " Arbitral between the Merchants and Crafts of the Burgh of Glasgow, entituled " the Letter of Gildrie, Deacon-Conveener, and Visitour of Maltmen and Meil- " men." There followed in 1684 a Charter of Confirmation,* by Arthur, Archbishop of Glasgow, in favour of the "Maltmen calling," ratifying the Letter of Guildry, "in swa far as concerns the said calling allenarly;" and also confirming an Act by the Magistrates and Town Council granted them in 1677.

The Act of Parliament, 1669, c. 15, so vital to their interests, passing in the end of December, became immediately a matter of earnest consideration to the Calling, as appears in their minutes of 1st February, 1670. Throughout their history, from their earliest recorded minutes, the Incorporation have maintained at all times a most becoming respect for constituted authority; and during stirring national events, or an exciting political crisis, are seen to be either discreetly silent or safely loyal. For the years 1670-71 there is a dignified acquiescence in the evil fortune of the hour—there is no election of “Visitor” of the Incorporation, but their chief Office-bearer for the time is known and referred to as “Oversman of their calling,” and instead of the usual Quarter-masters, has “four or fyve of the most wyse and qualified of the brethrein” to assist him. Thus—

“1670. Primo Februarii.—The same day, the haill brethrein of the “calling being conveyned—wes concluded be the haill brethrein present, that “it sall be lesum to Jon Findlay, their present Oversman, to call for four or “fyve of the most wyse and qualified of the brethrein to assist him in all things, “relaiting to the calling, and in speciall for obteneing ane mitigatioun of the “lait Act of Parliament—with full power to them to act in all things neidful “to be done thairintill for the guid of the calling, and to deburss out of their “monyes what they think convenient for the weill of the calling—all the “haill brethrein heirby allowing and approving.”

The public opinion of 1670 upon this Act of Legislature it is impossible now to ascertain, nor does it appear in what way Parliament was induced so immediately to reconsider their enactment, grant the desired “mitigatioun,” and rescind the obnoxious statute; but the Minutes of the Calling in Glasgow show no want of zeal on their part for immediate restitution of the privileges of Maltmen. Their recorded proceedings, like the Scottish Acts of Parliament, are remarkable for brevity; and it is interesting to see how this attack upon their liberties was regarded in their social assemblings at “The Craft’s Hospital.”

“1670. Nono Junii.—The same day it is concludit that the Calling “advance one hundredth merks of every thousand merks they have of frie “money for defence of ther and the rest of the Treads’ liberties, and to get “the samyn ratified according as they hev it be former Kings.”

“1670. Vigesimo Primo Julii.—The samyne day Patrick Bryce is “appoyntit to ryd eist to Edinburgh to attend the Parliament, to see what

“mitigatioun he can gett of the lait Act of Parliament discharging Visitor
“and Meeting of Maltmen.”

For more than a year thereafter the minutes do not allude to the state of matters, and do not mention what steps Patrick Bryce was taking to get the desired mitigation.

When the annual election of Deacons of Craft recurred, the Town Council came to the assistance of the Calling. Careful not to contravene Public Statute, and as a Visitor of the Burgh Bear and Meal markets was indispensable, a solution of the Maltmen difficulty is easily found by the Town Council appointing to the office the Maltman who would have been Visitor of the Calling for the year.

“1671. Quarto Novembris.—This day, Patrick Bryce, one of the ordinarie Brethrein of the calling, being electit be ye Magistrats and Counsell for sighting and visiting ye bear and meil mercats and uys, and likewis for eshewing many gros faults used to be comitted yrintill, and according yrto having conveyined ye brethrein of ye calling—They mak choyse of John Brysonne, Elder, to be his Quarter Master in place of umq<sup>le</sup> Walter Bryce, and James Campbell in place of — [sic], and appoint Robert Guidding collector for ane year to come.”

A “memorandum” is entered on—“1671. Vigesimo septimo Novembris.—There is in the hands of Patrick Bryce belonging to the calling £433 6s. 8d. [Scots], qlk he declared he was willing to delyver if ye calling had to do thairwith, but it was thought fit to let it remayne in his hands.” This was the balance of one thousand merks which had been placed in his hands to defray the costs incurred by him on the Calling’s behalf.

The Collector’s “Compt” for the year 1671-72, contains several considerable items, “debursement,” of a deal of money “spent” in meetings with the Provost, Bailies, Convener, and others, on occasion of “consultation and advysings anent recoverie of the calling’s libertie,” and of expenses to Edinburgh and other places, e.g., “Debursed at ane meiting in Baillie Fairies hous wt ye Proveist, Baillie Cauldwell, ye Conveiner, Mr. Wm. Weir and uys wt ym, for advysing a recoverie of ye calling’s libertie, £20.”

“1672. Septimo Februarii.—Ye same day ye haill brethrein of the “Calling being conveyined, and taking to yr considerationne ane act sett
 “doune on the 1st February, 1670, qrby its ordained yt ye present Oversman
 “for ye time should call for four or fyve of ye most wyse and qualified of ye “Calling to assist him in all things relaiting to the Calling, and in speciall for
 “the obtaining of ane mitigatioun of the Act of Parliāt relaiting to the “Calling, and to deburse out of yr monyes qt they think convenient for “ye effectuating yrof: They, thairfor, all in ane voice doe approve of the “said Act, and recommend to their said Oversman to goe about the samyn
 “with all convenient diligence at ye next sitting doun of ye Parliāt;
 “and what monye he has need to deburse thairin they heirby allow and “approve of the samyn conforme to his compt to be given in yranent.”

“1672. Septimo Februarii.—The same day yr was delyverit up be “Patrick Bryce, and put in ye Box, qlk was restand in his hand as a pt
 “of yt Thousand marks advanced be ye Tred to defend ye liberties of ye “Calling, Four hundredth threttie three pundis, six schillings and eight “pennies, and ye said Patrick is heirby yrof discharged accordingly.”

The next minute of election records the successful issue of the Calling's endeavours. The thanks of the Craft were doubtless substantially accorded to Patrick Bryce and other zealous workers in the cause; but it was not customary to notice these in their recorded transactions. That the services of the Maltmen on this occasion had been foremost in obtaining ratification of the Letter of Guildrie, there can be no doubt. Patrick Bryce especially is the person appointed by the Trades' House to receive from the several Deacons their respective proportions of the cost of the Ratification, which amounted to £1485 7s. 8d. Scots. For the two years ensuing he is Deacon-Convener of the Trades. The Maltmen are in high favour; when he resigns office, he is succeeded by another of the Calling, for in 1674 his mantle falls upon the shoulders of his friend William Wallace.

“1672. Octavo Octobris.—The quhilk day the haill brethrein of the “Calling of Maltmen within this Burgh being conveyined conform to the “laudable ordor prescribed be the Letter of Gildrie of the Burgh, and quhilk “is now ratified and approven be the seal of Act of Parliament, and so the “haill Calling ar admitted again to the ancient Libertie they had befor con-

“forme to the Letter of Gildrie, and that for the electing of four persones
“of their number to be put one Lytt, and to be presentit to the Proveist, “Baillies, and Counsell of this Burgh, to the effect that ane of them might “be choysen be the said Proveist, Baillies, and Counsell, to thir office as “Visitor of Maltmen and Meilmen within this Burgh for the year enshewing ;
“be pluralitie of votes they did elect and choose the persons following, vizt.,
“Patrick Bryce (Old Visitor), John Findlay, John Brysonne, Matthew “M’Aulay, and Walter Weinzgat, and ordains the said Lytt to be presentit “be James Harvey and John Park to the effect foresaid to the Magistrates
“of the Burgh and Toune Counsell thair of.

“Thairafter the said John Findlay was choysen Visitor of Maltmen and “Meilmen for a year to come.”

“1672. Decimo nono Novembris.—This day there was productit be “Patrick Bryce, now Deacon Convener, ane lait Act of Parliament wherein
“the ancient Liberties and privileges of the calling, with the ancient Letter
“of Gildrie of this Burgh wherein the said Liberties are foundit, are ratified,
“and is put in the Box.”

The Collector’s “Compt” for 1673 finally disposes of the whole affair, making the last mention thereof in two Items of Discharge—“For consulta“tion at Edinburgh anent the Tred, £24 Scots ;” and again, “To the Visitor
“what he had deburst for ye callings’ affaires, £120 Scots.”

Thus the Maltmen in Glasgow were restored to their ancient position and privileges, which they retained till 1846, when the exclusive rights of trading within Burgh in Scotland were abolished. For thirty years, however, previous to 1846, the functions of the Visitor with regard to inspection of the grain, malt, and meal offered for sale, or manufactured within Burgh in Glasgow, had not been exercised.

From the Memoranda to be found in the sequel, taken without much order from the information contained in the manuscript volumes of the Maltmen Incorporation, some idea may be formed of the great quantity of material that might be derived, particularly from the earliest of these, and used for a series of publications. The Transactions of the Scottish Crafts, preserved in their Records in the ancient Burghs of Scotland, are valuable Records, which, if examined, would shed much light on the doings of the citizens in bygone years. Many a quaint custom would emerge, or receive a new illustration—many useful facts be learned—and the story of many a good deed be told for our edification and delight.

The voluminous Minute Books of the Incorporation of Maltmen in Glasgow, since 1615, like those of the other Crafts, are filled with information shewing Burgh life and government in Glasgow, in the olden time, and how our forefathers managed business matters. The Records of the respective Crafts in the Minutes of their Corporate Meetings have been carefully kept, and their pages would give ample return to the research of the annalist or historian. Any one of the Maltmen volumes for the years embraced in it realises the actual life of the period in the important Burgh which, even in 1605, the Letter of Guildry designates “one of the most renowned Cities within this Realm.”

These Incorporation Records are a source in which may be discovered much information of the life and manners of Glasgow, otherwise wanting, or at least barely and scantily supplied. In a sketch like the present it is not possible to keep within bounds the extracts it is tempting to make from them, or to express their history of events sufficiently in the selection of a few graphic extracts. It was intended to introduce one of the Collector's Accounts in the 17th or beginning of the 18th century, but it would require too many pages. The Annual Accounts of Income and Expenditure from 1650 to 1750 would form a quaint and interesting publication.

OF THE VISITOR AND MASTER COURT.

In the Letter of Guildry the Calling is referred to as a then subsisting institution, and various enactments are made as to the ELECTION, POWERS and DUTIES of the VISITOR, the Principal Officer of the Incorporation, and indeed it is evident that the Visitor is there recognised as one of the permanent officials of the Municipality. Thus it is provided by article 44,

“that there shall be ane VISITOUR of MALTMEN and MEALMEN, who shall be “chosen yearly in time coming, that same day that the Deacon Conveener is “chosen, in this form:—The whole Maltmen and Mealmen shall give in “four men’s names, of the most worthiest and discreet men of the Rank of “Maltmen, with the old VISITOR, and present lytes to ye Provost, Baillies, “and Councill, who shall make choice of one of them to be VISITOR for
“that year, and so on in all time coming, and shall be sworne.”

On the Visitor was devolved the sacred duty of promoting the observance of the Sabbath among those of his own Calling, for it is expressly enacted that “he shall take tryall of them that prophane the Sabbath day
“in their calling, in dighting, receiving and delivering of Meall, Bear, Corn,
“and Malt, carrying of steep water, ingeing of kills, and such like other “offences, and the transgressors being convict shall pay the VISITOR Ten “shillings, by the unlaw of the Session of the Kirk.”

Another power vested in the Visitor and long exercised by him and his “Assisters” if carried into effect in the present day would surprise the corn merchants; for it is enacted that “the VISITOR “shall have power to try all Meal and Bear either in kills, houses, or “booths, except freemen’s Bear, Meal, or Malt coming to their own houses, “which the VISITOR shall have power to visit if he be required be the “buyer or in the mercats; and where they find insufficient stuff, as hot, “rotten, or frost-slain stuff, either mixt among good stuff or be the alone;
“and likewise, where they find good stuff spilt in the making, he shall “report the samine to the Baillies, and the owner thereof to get no more for “the samine stuff nor the VISITOR and two or three of his assisters think “it worth.”

The “Letter” proceeds to prescribe the other Laws and Regulations of the Calling, and gives the Visitor most ample power for asserting and carrying them out.

The proper working of Malt; buying and selling it at the market; inspecting the sufficiency of Meal and Bear either in kilns, houses, or shops, or in the market; with offences against good government, and the penalties to be imposed upon contraveners, are precisely laid down in Sections 44-54, and carefully adjudged. And it is provided that as occasion may occur, any further Acts and Statutes the Visitor with the advice of his brethren, shall see fit to devise, may be enacted.

The oldest extant Records of the Calling are preserved in the volume of Minutes of Incorporation and Master Court Meetings held from 31st November, 1615, to 13th January, 1680, in which are included the Quarterly and Yearly Accounts of Charge and Discharge. This Minute Book in the caligraphy of the period, now illegible except to a few who choose to give it their study, was carefully transcribed a few years ago and its contents made available for general information. The volume commences with the following minute :—

“ Ultimo Novembris, Anno Domini

“ Millesimo Sexcentesimo decimo quinto.

“ The qlk day Walter Douglas, Visitour, and his assistaris, being conveyit
 “ in the Colledge Kirk ; Johne Stewart, John Scheillis, James Hall, William “ Layng, Charles Hamiltonn, Robert Andersonn, Johne Schedene, Thomas “ Crichtonn, Patrick Langlandis, Jon Ross, Johne Blair, Elder, James Culen, “ George Gemmill, and Andrew Sym, ar ilk ane of them, decernit in ane “ unlaw of threttene schillings four pennies money, fur not compeiring at “ Hallowmes last to pay their quarteris compts, being lawlie wairint be the “ officer to that effect, quha gaif his aith thairupoun. Requestis that the “ Provost and Bailies of Glasgow interpone their aürtie heirto.”

So soon as the fourteen brethren had been dealt with for non-attendance and non-payment of the quarter's accounts, the meeting turned its attention to other financial matters, and

“ The said day the said Waltir maid compt of Hallowmes quarteris “ compts, qlk collectioun extendis to xvj lib xiiij sh (£16 14s. od.), Scots, “ qlk wes disponit as followes, viz. :—

“ To the Craftis Hospital, vij lib x sh (£7 10s. od.)

“ To James Fischer, clark, xl sh (40s.)

“ To Patrik Urie, for support, xl sh (40s.)

“ For ane new buik, xl viiiij sh (48s.)

“ To Johne Scheirer, lvi sh (56s.)

“ There is na frie money of this quarteris collectioun.”

After payment of the five items the quarter's income of £14 16s. Scots was exhausted. The Saxon form of penmanship of this short account is used in both letters and figures; but, following the Roman method, the letters of the alphabet are employed to denote the various sums. It is not till 1652 that our present Arabic symbols for number appear in the accounts. One of the most interesting features observable in the series of Records belonging to the Incorporation is the gradual change which has taken place in Scotland during a period of two hundred years in the handwriting and form of the letters, the spelling, and the modes of expressing thought.

“ The said day (30th November, 1615) yair wes tane out of the box “umqle Alex. Pollokis band, qlk is ordainit to be registrat and persewit “befoir ye Commiss. of Glasgow, and was deliverit to the Visitour.

“ Ye said day ordanis James Gib, Wm. Gib, and Wm. Wricht to be “wairint to Tysday next, to heir yame decerint in ane new upset for un- “sufficient malt making.”

According to the Letter of Guildry insufficient making was the employment in that process of “ hot, rotten, or frost-slain stuff, either mixt among “good stuff or be the alone, or good stuff spilt in the making, and bear “flourished with good above and the rest worse.”

“ The said day thair was tane out of the box ane obligatioun of John “Drylandis, principall, and Robert Maxwell his caur, qlk was delyverit to “the said Robert, and ane new band for ye same moneye of David Gray “principall, and Gilbert Gray his caur, put yrfoir.” The Calling are thus seen to be possessed of money invested in Bonds or Obligations preserved in the box independently of Quarter Accounts. The annual rents or interest of the Bonds did not form a part of the Visitor's “compts,” but were accumulated and lent out. The sums were small and the annual rents were allowed to run on always for a period of years or till the Bonds were paid up. Thus, in Claud Colquhoun's Bond, “for one hundredthe pund Scots, it is concludit “the annual rent is frie for ane year and longer during the will of the Visitor “and Quarter Maisters.”

“Ye said day ressaivit be the Visitour, fra Thomas Wynning, of mort-claith silver, x sh” (10 shillings).

This first minute sets forth nearly the whole sources whence the revenue of the Incorporation was derived. It appears to have been necessary to apply to the Provost and Bailies for a warrant, in terms of the Visitor's decerniture, against such members as had not been punctual in settling their quarterly payments, but no petition or written complaint was presented to the Magistrates, nor intimation given to defaulters that an authority for the recovery of arrears and fines was to be put in force against them. The affair is a curious exemplification of the powers wielded by both Visitor and Magistrates.

Quinto Decembris, 1615—the “Tysday next” mentioned above, the case of the unlucky Gibs was heard. “The qlk day, the Visitor and his assistaris being conveint, they decernit James Gib, and Wm. Gib, his cāur (cautioner), in ane new upset of twentie merks, for making of “unsufficient malt, and the said James came in ye Visitor's will thairfor;” that is, threw himself on the Visitor's goodnature, to be allowed a little time to liquidate the fine. Making of inferior malt being a matter of a purely business character, no representation required to be made in this instance to the Magistrates for a warrant to recover the penalty, and the Visitor's power of preventing James Gib pursuing his calling until the fine was paid was an amply sufficient means to enforce compliance with his orders.

“The qlk day decernis Richart Donaldsoun in ane new upset for resetting “and halding with him in partnerie of Malcolme Bankier, and suffering “the said Malcolme to mak Malt in his kill, being ane unfreeman with the “tred.”

The powers which the Visitor of the Craft actually wielded are vividly illustrated by what followed in the case of Donaldson and Bankeir.

“Compeirit the said Malcolme Bankeir, and said Richart Donaldson “cautioun (became caution) that he sould enter frie with the tred upon “the 19 day of Decr. instant, under the paine of twentie pundis, and “Malcolme obleist him to relief his cāur.” A fortnight's grace was all the time permitted them to get together the money required to make Malcolm a freeman. They managed their point, as on 29th Dec., 1615, "compeirit Malcolme Bankeir, burges of Glasgow, and desyrit to be frie "with the tred of Maltmen and Meillmen, qlk desyr Walter Douglas, Visitour, "and his assistaris thocht resonabill, and admittis him freeman with the "said tred. Quha gaif his aith of fidelitie for obedience to the pnt Visitor and "his successors in office, and to mak Malt weill and skilfullie, under the pane "of twentie merks; and for performance of the premiss James Lichtbodie is "becum cautioun to that effect, and to pay at Whitsunday nex to cum the "soume of twentie merkes of entres silver; and ye said Malcolme obleist "him to releif his caur, and hes payit to Johne Drew of Mortclaith silver ten "shillings."

Next in degree to insufficient maltmaking was the misdemeanour of receiving bear and making malt thereof to serve the purposes of unfreemen, instead of making malt "only for yairselvis to be tapped and sauld be ye "freemen of ye vocationne to ye inhabitants of this burt or uyris our "Soveraine Lord's lieges. Na person of ye vocationne under no cullor or "pretext quhatsomever is to tak ony man's bear and mak malt thairof under "cullor of their awin, under penalty to ye Visitor of twentie pundis money for "ilk brek." Such are the terms of an Act by which the Calling, at a meeting convened in the Craft's Hospital, bound themselves in 1640. The Act was subscribed by eighty-nine freemen, who were all present; it is also signed by the Clerk, "Gilbertus Merschell, Notarius Publicus." By reason of very frequent contraventions it was found necessary to hold another meeting a few years afterwards, which was attended "by ye haill brethrein of ye "Calling, except some four quha was absent, when the penalty was re-enacted "for ilk fault—contraveners to find caution also from stipeing of any malt "qll the same be paid." Scarcely a week passes without a decerniture against freemen for these two offences—insufficient making and making malt for unfreemen. The offenders generally "cum in the Visitor's will," and are moderately "unlawit." James Rodger is 'decernit' in twentie merks, 'on his awine confession, for making malt to Johne Wodrop, an unfreeman." For insufficient malt Thomas Vinning is fined "ane dollor."

David Gray, maltman, suffered John Wodrop, an unfreeman, to make malt in his "kill." "The said David and John being present confessit to "ane making of malt in the said David's kill, and yt he had sauld sum to his "awin behaif. The Visitor decernis said David Gray in ane new upset of "twentie merks to be put in the box to the weill of the trade—conform to "ane Act set down by the said tred of befor of the date the 16th day of "February, 1609 years."

The earliest recorded Election of Visitor is in 1616.

"Octavo Octobris, 1616.

"The qlk day Walter Douglas, Visitor of Maltmen, and his assistaris, "being convenit in the Blackfriars Kirk for electing and choising of four "personnes of thair tred to be ane lyt (leet), with the auld Visitour, haif electit "and choisin James Lichtbodie, Johne Crawford, Rot. Douglas, and Rot. "Maxwell, and ordanit thame to be presentit agt the tyme be Wm. Neilson "younger, and James Moodie, to the effect the proveist, bailyies, and counsell "may mak choise of ane of the fyve to be Visitour for ane yeir nex to cum."

None of the other thirteen crafts presented leets to the Magistracy and Council to choose their Deacons from, and the peculiarity is thus explained: The Letter of Guildry consists of three grand divisions, having each their subdivision. The first treats of the Dean of Guild and Merchant rank, the second of the Deacon-Convener and the Crafts, and the third of the Visitor of Maltmen and those of his craft. These three dignitaries were appointed to their separate administrations in this way:—The Dean bearing office, and twenty-four other merchants selected by him, nominated two of their own rank and himself to be a leet. For Deacon-Convener the Deacons of crafts and their assistants chose two craftsmen and the then Convener. In the case of these two officials the leets were submitted to the Provost Bailies, Council, and Deacons, who fixed upon one person in each leet for the respective offices. The election of the Visitor was accomplished by the whole Maltmen and Mealmen giving in the names of four men belonging to the Craft, and of the old Visitor. So made up, the leet was presented to the Provost, Bailies, and Council only—not to the deacons of the other crafts, who had no voice in the choosing of a Visitor. In short the jurisdiction of the Visitor in matters connected with his own Craft was co-extensive with the Deacon-Convener's in things which concerned the other thirteen Incorporations. He took higher ground than a deacon simply. It is scarcely necessary to say that by the "Letter" the Dean of Guild is invested with authority much more ample than is bestowed on either Deacon-Convener or Visitor.

"Duodecimo Octobris, 1616.

"The qlk day, Walter Douglas, auld Visitour, is choisin to be Visitour for "ane yeir nex to cum, and gaif his aith dewlie for discharge of his dewtie "yryn."

"19th October, 1616.

"The qlk day, the Visitour and hail remanent p̄sons of that tred being "convenit for electing of his assistaris, the Visitor electit and choisit James "Lichtbodie, Wm. Neilsonne, younger, Thomas Cloggie, James Fisher, John "Crawford, James Scott, Andro Allanson, Johne Drew, elder, Niniane "Cumyng, and thir personnes following were electit be pluralitie of votes, viz.: "—Wm. Neilsonne, elder, Robert Maxwell, James Crawford, Robert Douglas, "Thomas Glasfurd, James Modie, John Merschell, John Louk, Robert Aitken, "James Louk." Such had been the routine established from earliest usage before 1605 in the appointment of Assistaris, or as named in other Minutes, Quarter-Masters, Concurrers, and latterly Masters, or Master Court, of the Craft. The Visitor received no instructions in the Letter of Guildry how to constitute his Master Court, nor do subsequent Minutes contain any Act regulating their election. It was the mode of election among the other Crafts, and was followed by the Maltmen without change, except as to a smaller number of Masters, till 1852, when the present laws were sanctioned. The whole Office-bearers in the Incorporation, except the Last Visitor and Last Collector, who are constituent members of the Master Court for one year subsequent to the usual period of vacating office as Visitor and Collector, are now annually on the first Friday following 15th of September, voted upon by the direct votes of the members present.

The election of Visitor, however, by giving in names to the Provost, Bailies, and Town Council in leet, that one of four might be chosen, had ceased since 1833, on the passing of the Act to Amend the Representation of the People in Scotland, from which time his election is by the direct votes of the members. The change is thus recorded:—

“ 1833. September 24.—Thereafter the meeting considered, That by the “ Act of Parliament of 3 and 4 William IV. chap. 76, the ancient free constitution of this Corporation, in common with that of other public bodies in “ Scotland, has been substantially restored; and that the Freemen of this “ Corporation are now entitled to the free election, in such form as shall be “ regulated by them, of their several Office-bearers and other necessary “ officers for the management of their affairs, without any interference or “ control on the part of the Town Council of Glasgow as heretofore, or any “ member thereof: Resolved and Enacted, That upon the second Tuesday “ of October next, the whole Qualified Freemen of the Corporation should “ meet, and should by the direct vote of those then assembled, without the “ intervention of Leets, Elect from among the said Freemen one to be “ Visitor of Maltmen and Mealmen in Glasgow for the ensuing year, or until “ the next ordinary Election of Visitor: And that in time coming the “ Visitor should be elected in the form and manner above specified, upon “ the same day annually with the Deacons of the other Corporations in “ Glasgow: And that it should be competent to re-elect to that office.”

The members of the Incorporation were friendly to the general principle of the Burgh Reform Bill—some of their ancient rights and privileges, in common with those of other public bodies in Scotland, having been substantially restored by it: among the most valuable, the free election of their Visitor or President without the control of the Town Council.

To revert to the minute of 19th October, 1616, it will be observed that the haill persons of the Tred were present at the meetings. Personal attendance of the “ haill of the Tred ” at meetings to which they were “ wairint be the officer ” was strictly commanded, and failure to attend was punished by the Visitor and his assisters decerning absents in an unlaw of 13s. 4d. Scots, payment of which the Officer proceeded to enforce, and failing immediate payment, actually poided their goods. A member decerned in 8s. for absence, complains of his clock being poided, but is told that having been wairint to the meeting, he had no excuse for absence.

It is evident that the Visitor and Master Court exercised with a high hand the powers committed to them. They felt themselves placed in an important position in the community. The exclusive right to certain fines granted by the Letter of Guildry were besides a source of revenue scrupulously looked after. And in a sanitary view, so far as concerned the quality in house or market, of malt and meal, two staple commodities of daily use, they were bound to enforce their authority. This was not done without giving occasional offence to members of the Calling, exposing the Visitor to undeserved obloquy, and requiring enactments for his protection.

“5 May, 1620.—The qlk day Jon Merschell, Maltman, being accusit “for abusing of the Visitour upon the first of May instant in Francis Hall “his house, and abusing of ye said Visitor with divers skandelous and “opprobrious speiches, and for abusing of William Smyt, Maltman, in pns “of ye Visitour yt saim time. The said Jon speciallic comperand wt in “the Craftis Hospitall the said day. He in pns of the said Walter Douglas, “Visitour, and his Quarter Maisters, being conveint, confessit his fault and “become in will yrfor. And yrfor the Visitour and his Quarter Maisters “having considerationne of ye wrang, unlawit ye said Jon in ane new upsett “of Twentie merks to be employit to ye commone use of ye said Vocationne. “(Signed) GILBERT MERSHELL, Notarius.”

On 3rd May, 1637:—“The qlk day, conveinit in ye Craftis Hospitall, “William Wilsonne, pnt Visitor, and his Quarter-maisters, and ye haill “vocationne qha for ye maist part were prnt. It is statut and ordainit “in all tyme cuming, with all thair consents, That quhatsoever personn or “personnes of ye said vocationne railes or miscalles ye Visitour, or abuses “him, either be word or deid, privatelie or publiklie, sall pay to ye common “use of ye said vocationne Tenne pundis money, and fourtie shillings unlaw “to ye Bailzies.”

There is an end to all government if a Magistrate is to be openly defied, without having the power to visit offenders with instant punishment. The Visitor was not slow in such cases to assert his dignity.

“Undecimo Maii, 1665.—This day compeirit in presens of ye Visitor, his “Maisters, and Brethrein of ye calling, Robert Corss, Maltman; and for sua “meikle as he being conveint befor for swering by ane oath, and saying he “vould to God, or be God, yt there was not ane honest Maltman in all “Glasgow, but a whein of false villane knaves, wt many uther reprochfull “speaches, as ye bill given in at the Pror Fiscalles instance at length beires. “Qlk at that tyme being red, and he compearand and denyand ye samyn, “divers witnesses wer examined yrupon, and ye samyne by them sufficiently “provin, Qrupon sentence was continued till ane uyr meiting of ye Calling. “Therefor compeared this day ye said Robert Corss, being warned for yt “effect, and ye said bill being red to him wt yr former ordinance, the above “Robert did frielie submitt himself to ye Visitor, Quarter-Maisters and “Brethrein of ye calling, for his punishment and unlaw, and they ordainit “thir presents to be set doune in ye book and he to subscriye the samyne.

(Signed) “ROBERT CORSS.”

“Conforme to ye Act above wryttin this day ye calling reservit, qt unlaw “of Robert Corss should be, to the Visitor and ye Quarter-Maisters, and they “to fyne as they thought fitt.”

The unlaw put upon the profane calumniator is not recorded—the punishment of publishing himself for all time by his confession entered in the book and subscribed by him, was likely in this case deemed sufficient.

“Sexto Augusti, 1669.—The same day James Rankine, ane of ye “Brethrein of ye calling is unlawit in Three pundis for his bais and bad carriage towards ye Visitor in ye Court; appoints 40s. yrof to be paid to “William Sheilles, and 20s. to umqll John Pollok’s relict.”

Several similar cases occurring, it was necessary in 1677 “for peace and good ordor” to re-enact by the calling the statute made against contraveners in 1637.

Party spirit might be expected in the Craft in ancient times as in the days of their descendants, and a fair “opposition” is always a safety-valve in higher places than the Master Court of the Maltmen. The Minute Books do not record scenes in the conflicts of opinion at their meetings, and Reporters for the Press did not then exist, so the cause is not now apparent why the Town Council, on 29th December, 1682, were obliged to find their Election on the previous 24th October of James Muir to be Visitor had been "inorderlie," and now to elect James Walker in his stead. The meeting being convened in the Craft's Hospital to carry out the new Election—the Deacon Convener present with the Craft—James Muir's party in the minority "produced a protest under the hand of Jon Johns, Notary, and "yrafter went out ye hous." Then follows the scene which in these days of photography it would be delightful to represent, whether the Visitor were Visitor Walker or Visitor Renton—"And yrafter ye said James Walker, "and uys foresaid, all in ane voyce, havin all takin and sworn the "Test, on their knees, bareheaded, and repeating ye words, did yrafter go "on to ye election of ye Masters for this ensuing year," viz., &c. Visitor Walker sensibly named James Muir for one of his Masters, who being present, as sensibly gave his oath with the others.

In successive years, down to the period of the Burgh Reform Act already narrated, the routine of the annual election of the Visitor and Master Court is unvaried—the record of each election being a stereotype of the previous ceremony.

It was not till 1851 that the Visitorship acquired the decoration of a medal and chain as the official badge of civic eminence.

1851. December 22.—The Visitor was for the first time invested with gold medal and chain, the Incorporation being almost the last of the Trades' House to become possessed of this official decoration. The design of the medal consists, on the obverse, of the arms of the Incorporation, executed in relief, with the encircling inscription, "Incorporation of Maltmen, Glasgow." On the reverse are the arms of the City, also in relief, according to the oldest and most appropriate blazonry, and an encircling inscription applicable to the Maltmen, "Established in remote antiquity. Sanctioned by the Letter of Guildry, 6th February, 1605. Ratified by Parliament, 1672." Mr. William Steele, junior, Visitor, made an eloquent address on the occasion, which is engrossed in the minutes of the day's proceedings.

VISITING OF THE KILNS, MARKETS, &amp;c.

Among the many duties of his office, perhaps the Visitor's chief duties were "the monthly visitin and sichtin the hail kills in toun," and the weekly inspection of the "public mercat." The earliest note taken of the exercise of this portion of his official services to the craft is at a meeting upon 11th December, 1622:—

"The quhilk day the Visitor, William Neilsonne, Yr., and Quarter Masters, with consent of the rest of the Vocatioune that were present, Statute and Ordainit in all tyme cuming that quhasoever of the said Vocatioune, whether Meilmen or Maltmen, being lawfully warnit to accompany the Visitor to the Bere mercat and Meil mercat for visiting of the samyne, and swa that guid order may be had and kept in the saidis mercats for the commonne weal of this burgh, the person disobeyand to pay twentie shillings toties quoties, being lawfully warnit as said is."

The meeting took place in the Hall at the Alms House; and from at least as early as the date of the Letter of Guildry, through the long vista of 210 years afterwards, this extraordinary function was exercised by the Visitor and his Assistants. The last occasion of his official circuit appears in the following minute:—

"1815. October 10.—At Glasgow and within the Trades' Hall, Convened Robert Tennent, Junior, Visitor, with most of the Masters and several other members of the Incorporation of Maltmen and Mealmen in Glasgow, the whole having been warned to attend, as was verified by the Officer:

"The same day the Visitor informed the meeting that he and Mr. James Hunter, one of the Masters of the Incorporation, accompanied by the Trades' Officer, had, in the exercise of their privileges, and of the office committed to their charge by the Letter of Guildry, tried the Meal and Bear in the Kilns, Houses, and Shops of a number of dealers in these articles in the Burgh; and he laid before the meeting his Report on the state of the Market, which having been read and considered, was approved of."

The Minute does not give a copy of the Report, and conveys the impression that this public authority had lost its influence or control, or had become a form that might cease to be observed. The Visit or Inspection is not followed as of old by offenders being warned to appear in the Justice Room, there to be decerned in "ane unlaw," or "ane new upsett," for disregard of craft privileges. On this last occasion of trying the Bear, Meal, and Malt in the Burgh, the Visitor merely presents to the Master Court his Report on the state of the Market, "which, having been read and considered, was approved of."

In early times the commerce in grain was for a long period confined to the market-place, and the Bear and Meal Market was carefully and regularly inspected by the Visitor and his "assistors." Many Regulations were made, as in the Letter of Guildry—a period when the trade in corn was becoming more extensive—to oblige all persons bringing victual into the Burgh to carry it directly to market, so as to protect the collection of Ladle dues. But by degrees the Maltsters, Bakers, and Brewers bought victual in the country, which they imported into their stores within the Burgh without first going to market. The Burgh was thus subject to be disappointed of the Custom or Ladles; hence the provision in the Letter of Guildry, followed on 6th May, 1607, by an anxious Act of Council of the Magistrates, in order to meet the evasion. In more modern times these laws failed to prove effectual, so far as bringing the victual to the market-place was concerned, for every part of the Burgh could be used as a market-place for grain, and no importer could be compelled to carry the grain to the market. There was latterly no established market-place in Glasgow for the sale in bulk of Malt, Bear, or Wheat; but the Burgh Ladle dues were strictly enough looked after, and never successfully disputed. The duties of the Visitor of Maltmen and Mealmen—trying the Bear, Meal, and Malt in kiln, house, or market, in the Burgh, and reporting contraveners—became, however, in course of time inoperative, besides inexpedient, under progressive changes and improvements in the administration of Public Law; and what formerly was the Visitor's greatest service and chief merit, had gone into desuetude long before its abolition as one of the exclusive privileges of the Craft.

On only one other occasion, between 1815 and 1846, in which year the exclusive privileges were abolished, was an appeal made for the Visitor's interference. In 1830 he was asked to try the Meal in Burgh, then being extensively adulterated. He thus disposes of the request at a meeting of the Master Court, held on 17th December, 1830:—

“The Visitor stated that numerous complaints had been latterly made to him concerning a practice, which is said to exist among certain meal-dealers within Burgh, of mixing the oat meal exposed by them for sale in their shops, with meal or flour made from wheat, barley, rye, and other species of grain ; and that he had been urged to examine the oatmeal in these shops in his official capacity as Visitor of this Corporation, and to adopt such measures as might appear necessary for suppressing the practice, and he requested the advice of the meeting as to the course which he ought, in these circumstances, to pursue. The meeting having maturely considered this matter were unanimously of opinion that, unless the adulteration of oat meal, exposed for sale within Burgh, consisted in the admixture of insufficient stuff, as hot, rotten, ‘or frostslain stuff,’ it was not incumbent on the Corporation to interfere ; but in the event of such a case being properly brought under the notice of the Corporation, by persons prepared to substantiate the charge, it would be their duty to take cognizance of it, and ‘to report the same to the Bailies,’ in terms of the forty-fifth section of the Letter of Guildry.”

Since that time the Public Prosecutor takes cognizance of cases of this description, and proceeds against offenders by trial in the Justiciary Courts.

THE EXCLUSIVE PRIVILEGES ABOLISHED BY ACT, 1846.

1846. 9 & 10 Victoria, chap. 17.—The exclusive privileges of trading existing and enforced in the Royal Burghs of Scotland were abolished this year, by Parliament enacting that “all such exclusive privileges and rights shall cease, and it shall be lawful for any person to carry on or deal in merchandise, and to carry on and exercise any trade or handicraft, in any Burgh and elsewhere, in Scotland, without being a Burgess of such Burgh, or a Guild Brother, or a member of any Guild, Craft, or Incorporation.”

The exclusive privileges of trade which the Incorporation of Maltmen in Glasgow enjoyed, and of which they were thus deprived, were these:—1. The Incorporation possessed the exclusive privilege of making malt within Burgh, or the limits of the ancient Royalty of Glasgow, and no person was entitled to exercise that Craft until he purchased the freedom of the Incorporation, and became a Freeman or member thereof. 2. Authoritatively passing judgment on the quality and worth of all meal and bear exposed for sale within Burgh, and reporting thereon to the Magistrates. 3. The exclusive right to certain fines imposed on persons guilty of misdemeanours relating to meal and bear, as adulterating the former and such like, and declared to belong to the Corporation by the Letter of Guildry, 1605.

No other rights were abolished; the exclusive management and disposal of the Corporate funds—with the privileges of representation in the Trades' House, and participation in the management and benefits thereof, and the right to make Bye-laws and Regulations relative to the management of their affairs and funds—being reserved entire, as conferred by the Letter of Guildry and Statute of Ratification.

Besides the Entry-money, or freedom fines paid into the Incorporation by Strangers, Apprentices, Sons, and Sons-in-law of Freemen, the Freemen annually paid into the Funds at the Lammas Court the following sums in name of Quarter Accounts:—

1. Each member who made Malt, the sum of Two Pennies Scots for every Boll of Bear or Barley that he converts into Malt.
2. Each member who does not make Malt, the sum of Twelve Shillings Scots. This payment is still annually made by the members at Lammas.

The Incorporation at one time considered that the exclusive privileges of Trade belonging to the Incorporated Trades of Glasgow could not be safely abolished, because such a measure would greatly diminish if not destroy their importance and usefulness, as well as the inducement to enter. Such was their representation made to a Royal Commission of Inquiry into the state and condition of the Burghs of Scotland in 1833, and to Parliament in 1836, opposing a "Bill to provide for the better regulation of Municipal Incorporations in Scotland;" but in 1846 these sentiments had undergone a complete change. The Incorporation it was then admitted had long before ceased practically to exercise its exclusive privileges, and at a meeting on 17th April, 1846, held to consider, inter alia, the Bill before Parliament for abolishing the exclusive privilege of Trading in Burghs in Scotland, on the motion of the late Dr. Strang, seconded by Mr. John Smith, senior, the Incorporation unanimously declined to interfere with the subject.

The jurisdiction conferred by the Letter of Guildry on the Magistrates and Council of Glasgow over the Maltmen, was abolished by the Burgh Reform Act, 3 & 4 William IV., cap. 76; but the jurisdiction vested in the Trades' House, under the Letter of Guildry, as modified by immemorial usage, appears still to be in force. It will be observed, however, that by the Statute 9 & 10 Victoria, 1846, a new jurisdiction is created in favour of the Court of Session, who have power to sanction any Bye-Laws or Regulations which may be made in consequence of the abolition of the privilege of exclusive trading, and the Court of Session has been since resorted to by the Trades from time to time for such sanction—the Maltmen having in 1852 availed themselves of the provisions of the Statute to that effect. The insertion of the Statute 1846 forms a fitting conclusion to the series of documents forming the “writs and title deeds,” so to speak, of the Incorporation of Maltmen, and it is accordingly placed in the Appendix.

COLLECTOR.

After the year 1615, at the terms of Candlemas (February), Beltane (May), Lammas (August), and Hallowmas (November), the Minutes continue to record till 1649 that the VISITOR “maid compt” of his collection of Quarter Accounts at these terms, and his disbursement of the amounts received. The onerous duties imposed upon him by the letter of Guildry, especially of visiting and inspecting the markets, which the Visitor strictly attended to, generally requiring the assistance of some of the Masters along with the Officer, occupied with his other official duties much of his time. Following the example of others of the Crafts, a division of labour was found in the appointment of a Treasurer, styled COLLECTOR, to manage the whole cash transactions of the calling under the control of the Master Court. On 9th August, 1649, "the Visitor and Quarter-Maisters ordainit yt fra Michelmes furth next and in all time after, thair be ane COLLECTOR for uplifting and ingaddering of the commone money belonging to the Vocationne." On 5th October, 1649, the Vocationne being met "for guid considerations moving them, did conclude yt there sould be ane COLLECTOR quha sould intromit with the annel rents and hail dewties belonging to ye samyne. And Thomas Campbell and John Miller being put in Lyte qlk of ym sould beir office as Collector for ye yeir to come, be pluralitie of votts ye said John Miller was electit to yt effect. Quha accepted and gave his oath." The Freemen voted upon were members of the Master Court. It may be matter to observe that the Quarter Accounts collected "the said day" were not greater in amount than Walter Douglas "maid compt of" in 1615. But the entry monies paid by Freemen and apprentices, the unlaws, the balances of Quarter Accounts, the interest upon Bonds, and the large returns for Mortcloth dues, had by this time considerably enriched the Calling. The box, in addition to the free or common money kept in it, contained numerous Bonds, which along with the above sources of revenue were accumulated, and became the means of future profitable investments. The Collector from this time records in his annual accounts the names of the granters of the Bonds, the sums lent, and payments of the annual rents. There are nineteen Bonds in the box in 1649, their total amount being 4500 merks, with their annual rents in arrear for periods of from one to five years. Some of the Bonds are taken out and given to the Collector, "to the effect he must either get in ye moneys wt ye bygone annual rents yrof, or have the Bonds renewit."

In 1673 "it is statut and ordainit yt ye Collector of ye Calling be "choysen yearly in tyme cuming in this manner, viz. :—out of a lyt of twa "UP YE GAIT and twa DOUN YE GAIT, per vices; and conform yrto Peter "Corbett and William Robersonne, as twa 'doun the gait' Maltmen, being "put in lyt, be pluralitie of votts ye said Peter Corbett was electit and "chosen to be Collector to ye Calling for a year to come—quha print “accepted, and gave his oath, as use is.” At next election “twa ‘up the gait’ were put on lyt, Robert Boyd and Walter Drew;” and the former, having a plurality of votes, was elected. “Doun the gait” were the freemen dwelling about the neighbourhood of the Cross, Gallowgate, and Trongate, or Westergate; “up the gait,” those dwelling in the north quarter, adjoining the Cathedral. This distinction had always been observed at the annual elections,—by the Visitor in those of the Masters named by him, and by the Calling in the Masters elected by them. The minutes of the annual elections frequently record that of the six Masters named by the Visitor, three were for “ye Wynd head,” or “up the gait”; and three for “ye Wast gate,” or “doun the gait”;—the six Masters elected by the Trade being described in the same way. The “ward” mode of election from the two divisions of the Burgh at last becoming objectionable, in 1750 it was agreed to discontinue “the ancient custome,” and in all time coming in bearing public office in the Calling, or otherwise, that no distinction on account of residence of members is to be observed. This resolution, however, required the assistance of the Trades’ House. On 2nd August, 1751, at the Trades’ Hospital, the Calling this day empowered the Visitor and Masters to apply to the Trades’ House for an Act to rescind the distinction of UP THE WAY and DOWN THE WAY members of the Calling.

On 8th February, 1753, the Visitor presented to the members of the Trades’ House convened at the Tron Church, the Calling’s Representation and Petition in the matter, showing, “That for a considerable time past a “very singular distinction has been in our said Incorporation, in making “Lites for the Visitor, Master, and Collectors thereof, betwixt UP THE WAY “and DOWN THE WAY members of the same. Such a distinction, as wee “apprehend, is not in any Incorporation in the nation, and no more “reasonable in itself than it would be to distinguish the hail members of “our trade by the different streets of the city they live in; nay, a distinction “that our Trade has experienced to have been productive of several jars “and debates among the members, of very bad consequences, the absurdity “of which they cannot conceive what could have induced in their predecessors; “but being sensible there is no foundation for it in common sense, they “desire it to be abolished.” Which being considered by the House, they unanimously rescind all Acts of the Trade, and all Acts of the House, founding or approving of the above distinction between UP THE WAY and DOWN THE WAY members of the Maltmen Trade, and abolish the same in all time coming.

The “distinction” had been of ancient origin, as is seen under date 1605, at which time, as well as in 1750, the city consisted of the long continuous street from the Cathedral to the river side, with its lateral divergences, accounting for the terms “up the way” and “down the way,” so far as locality of residence was concerned, but apparently nothing else.

In 1743 the Trades’ House enacted—“That every person who shall “at any time hereafter be elected COLLECTOR to any Trade of this Burgh, “and refuse to accept of his office, should incurr and forfeit a fine of Six “Pounds Sterling for the use of the Poor of the Trade to which he is elected “Collector.”

The honourable distinction of “Visitor” or “Collector” is always an object of ambition, and often of keen contest, and the Maltmen have but one instance on record of this enactment of the Trades’ House being enforced. John Stevenson, a Freeman, was elected Collector of the Incorporation of Maltmen in 1760, when he refused to accept. The Incorporation complained to the Trades’ House, “craveing the House to interpone their authority oblidgeing “the said John Stevenson to accept”—which being read and heard by the House, there was produced a letter from John Stevenson to the Deacon-Convener, acknowledging that he had been elected Collector to the Maltmen, but from his state of health he could not give due attention to the office; and that the Trade might not be disappointed of a Collector, he had enclosed Six Pounds Sterling, which was the fine for refusing. The House found that the said John Stevenson had refused to accept the office of Collector of the Incorporation of Maltmen, and thereby had incurred the fine; and that, agreeable to his own letter, the sum of Six Pounds Sterling sent therewith should be delivered to the Visitor or Clerk of the Maltmen for the use of the Poor thereof; John Stevenson hereafter not being obliged to accept of any office in the Incorporation unless he shall think fit; and another "dyett" is ordained for the new election of a Collector.

It is evident that neither the Deacon-Convener nor the Incorporation believed there was anything wrong with John Stevenson's health, and that he only refused the honour to avoid the labours of office. In fact, John Stevenson was lazy.

The duties of the office in the 17th and 18th centuries were onerous and responsible, and must have occupied a great deal of the Collector's time. His yearly details in the "Compts" of Charge and Discharge, are worth perusal, but a specimen of even one of the Accounts here would occupy too many pages. The multiplicity of bonds and their negotiation, the payments to pensioners, the mortcloth fees and hires, the frequent charitable gratuities on "the visitors' warrand," the entry monies, fines, malt-making accounts, Balgray property expenses, and many other general transactions, must have given the Collector of a former day an amount of labour of which his modern successor has no experience, and could not find time to attend to. The latter gentleman, on his appointment, grants bond with cautioners to the craft, for his intromissions, to the extent of £500. He receives in a few payments half-yearly, almost the entire income of the craft in their shares of the "Cast" of the Gorbal Lands—in dividends upon the invested funds—and from ground annuals. During the year his chief duty is, Quarterly, and at Christmas, at the Trades' House, to pay the Pensioners their allowances from the funds. Each Pensioner has a ticket printed upon parchment with the dates of payment marked for five years, which, of course, is carefully preserved, presented on each pay day, and the payment marked. Except in cases of extreme age or infirmity, every Pensioner attends the Collector's levee personally—a cheerful meeting, where natural feeling between the Master Court and Pensioners is inspired, kindly greetings are exchanged, inquiries are made for the absent aged and infirm, and gratitude expressed for the relief supplied. In September annually the Collector submits his accounts, along with the vouchers, to be examined and audited by a Committee named by the Incorporation; an Abstract of Revenue and Expenditure, with Stock Account, so examined and audited

(a printed copy having previously been sent to each member), is presented to the General Meeting at the Annual Election, for approval, when he is discharged of the Collectorship, and his Bond is cancelled. For a year thereafter he continues in the Master Court as "LAST COLLECTOR," ex officio, and according to present custom in the following year is declared "VISITOR" of the Incorporation.

KEEPERS OF THE KEYS OF THE BOX.

Surplus money belonging to the Craft was generally invested in Bonds, which, when granted, were not immediately recorded, but were put aside in "the Box" until paid, called up, or renewed. When a new Visitor was installed in office, the Box was taken to his house, and an inventory made by the Key-keepers of the documents and monies it contained. The Key-keepers, or, as they were formerly called, "Box-maisters," were nominated by the Craft at the annual election of Office-bearers, and received each a key of the Box, as at the present day, when the Box is kept in the safe of the Trades' House, instead of at the Visitor's house. "26th November, 1717. "James Lichtbodie has ressavit ane key of the Box, and John Wallace ane "uther." "28th October, 1618. Wm. Neilsonn, younger, Visitour, has "ressavit in the Box ane Band maid be Walter Douglas to the Tred of 2 ch. "merkis, wt the uther fyve obligationnes yt Johne Crawford had in it of "befoir wt the Bond. Johne Crawford and James Fischer, ilk ane of them "hes ressavit ane key of the Box." On 18th Nov., 1618, "yr is put in ye "Box ane hundredth merkis qlk is ressaivit frae David Gray." "13th "October, 1621. The qlk day yr was delyverit be ye Visitor the keys of "the commone box of ye said vocationn to Wm. Neilsonn, elder, and Johne "Wallace. As als, ye said day was putt in ye said Box £36 3s., qlk is "awand be Jon Wallace—Fourtie-nine punds money."

The office of "Box-maister" was an onerous one, as money could not be lodged in bank, for the simple reason there were no banks in the kingdom, it had to be stored till there was an opportunity of investing it at interest.

The Vignette on page 9 is from the front of the Incorporation "Box." The material is carved walnut wood. The effigies, in the dress of Charles the Second's reign, represent a Master Maltman overseeing an apprentice and servant—one shovelling the malt from the barn floor into a caup, the other meting the grain with a meting stick. The carving is more than two hundred years old—not very artistic, and with rather a hazy idea of perspective. There are still preserved in the Box a portion of a silk flag that was carried at Bothwell Brig, and five or six bodles of old Scotch money. At one time some hundreds of these minute fourth parts of a farthing were in the Box, but from time to time having been handed out as relics to the curious, only these are left.

CLERK.

The salary paid at each Quarterly Collection to their Clerk, "a Procurator or Man of Law," and Notary, is one of the most regular items of the Records since 1615. At that time the Clerk's quarterly salary was £2 Scots money, which it continued to be till 15th November, 1650, when "for divers reasonable and guid causes, it is enacted that thair Clerk get quarterlie heirefter Fyve Merks." The salary was in addition to his professional fees of numerous bonds, indentures, litigated causes, and general business, and was increased from time to time. At present the Clerk's salary or emolument has advanced in amount, and kept pace with every other modern change. The Maltmen have never been slow to recognise their Clerks' services, e.g., "23rd January, 1702. The said day after Compt making the Collector was ordained to pay to the Clerk, for his extraordinarie pains, fourteen dollars (£40 12s), and a dollar (£2 18s.) to his man, in addition to the Clerk's ordinary fiall of £14 16s." A similar entry occurs on 25th January, 1706. Mr. Sym modestly omits to record the particulars of the "extraordinarie pains" so handsomely acknowledged. The Clerk is required to be a Freeman of the Calling at the time of his election, and holds a yearly appointment, renewed at each general election of office-bearers. In 1615 the well-known name of James Fisher commences the roll of Clerks. His successors have been Gilbert Merschell, 1624; William Yair, 1640; Robert Murdoch, 1674; Robert Selkirk, 1675; Robert Allan, 1681; Robert Robertson, 1690; John Sym, sen., 1698; John Sym, jun., 1744; John Easson, 1777; James M'Lehose, 1778; Claud Marshall, 1782; James Steel, 1807; John Rankin Gardner, 1813; Alexander Fleck, 1838; Gilbert Rainy Tennent, 1845; William Steele, 1852; and Robert Douie, 1855.

It may be gratifying to the Faculty of Procurators to learn that in former days such harmonious feeling existed between the Incorporation and them that several "Wrytters" were admitted without fees "for services done to the Calling." The nature of these services is unfortunately not recorded, although they must have been onerous and valuable. Thus in 1656 Robert Finneson; 1668, William Lightbody; 1669, Thomas Shearer; 1669, Thomas Anderson, one of the Town Clerks; 1670, Quintin Findlay; 1674, Robert Murdoch, previous to his appointment as Clerk; 1674, Robert Allane; 1674, Robert Selkirk; 1682, John M'Ure (M'Cuir); 1683, John Johns; and 1690, Robert Robertson, all Writers in Glasgow, are so admitted. On 29th June, 1686, Mr. Arthur Hamiltoun, Advocat, is admitted "Frieman, wt the calling for service done yrto, who gave his oath, as use is."

It would have been disappointing to find omitted from this list the name of the Historian of Glasgow, Mr. John M'Ure, Writer, and Keeper of the Register of Sasines for the District. His name is entered on the Maltmen Roll, 22nd Sept., 1682, "John M'Cuir, Senr., admittit and receavit Frieman "with ye calling 'quat of ye ordinary dewes,' for sundry considerations, and "for services done and to be done." Mr. M'Ure was then in his 51st year, dying in 1747 at the advanced age of 96. His son Robert M'Ure, Writer, died in 1708, aged 29.

Honorary admission was not confined to the Lawyers, about as many others are so entered, chiefly Magistrates of the Burgh, during the same period, but no free entries have since been given on any occasion. Antiquarian friends have been heard to suppose that the Faculty of Procurators in these days may have excelled both in making and in mixing malt. It is probable that the free entries given to the lawyers were a complimentary per contra way of discharging professional charges for services rendered. The earliest free admission occurs in 1622, when "Thomas Craw is admitted frieman, gratis, upon request of James, Archbishop of Glasgow, his Mr."

Two of the Clerks, John Sym, sen., and John Sym, jun., the son succeeding the father, held the office for 80 years; William Yair, for 34 years; Claud Marshall, 25 years; J. R. Gardner, 25 years; and the present Clerk, 25 years; the 18 clerks of the last 274 years thus giving an average of above 15 years each. In 1807 Mr. James Steel succeeded Mr. Marshall, whose apprentice he had been. He lost his life by the foundering of a ferry boat with cattle between Dunoon and Greenock in 1813—the accident that sank the boat and all its living freight being witnessed from the shore by his wife and son, William Steele, then a boy seven years old. Mr. James Steel was equally accomplished as his son, the future Clerk and late Sheriff-Substitute, in the rare scholarship and juridical knowledge each cultivated and possessed. The late Mr. Steele resigned the Clerkship in 1855, on being appointed one of the Sheriff-Substitutes of Lanarkshire at Glasgow.

Mr. G. R. Tennent retired from the profession and the clerkship in 1852, transferring his services to the Brewery at Wellpark while his father was still the head of that world-famed firm. During Mr. Tennent's Clerkship the exclusive privileges of trading in the Royal Burghs were abolished by the Statute of 9 Victoria, c. 17 (1846). The previous rights and powers of the Incorporations of the Trades' House to make Bye-Laws and Regulations are not affected, but are reserved entire by the Statute, and additional power is given to enact Bye-Laws which the altered circumstances may require—these being presented to the Court of Session for sanction; laws which it was competent for Corporations to make previous to the passing of the Act not requiring such sanction.

Soon after the passing of this Statute the Incorporation of Maltmen saw it right to make certain changes on their Bye-Laws and Regulations, adapted to their altered circumstances under the operation of the Statute. They accordingly, on 28th December, 1846, appointed a Committee of their number to prepare a Draft of such Laws and Regulations for the government of the Incorporation under their altered circumstances as might seem expedient ; and in August, 1847, a Report recommending a code of Laws and Regulations annexed thereto was submitted to the Incorporation, when the Report was adopted. In the language of the Letter of Guildry, however, it was not till "after many meetings and conventions, long disputation and "reasoning for settling any contraversies that may fall out thereafter, after "great pains, long travelings, and mature deliberation heard, seen, considered "and ripely advised," that the Laws and Regulations were in 1851 finally adopted by the Incorporation, receiving the sanction of the Supreme Court on 25th May, 1852.

The Laws have now stood the test of use for more than a quarter of a century, and the amendments made during that time merely consist of additions required by current events, and of formal partial alterations. The greater attention to Education, the discontinuance of the Trades' School requiring new arrangements for education of the children, the appointment of an Education Committee and their Rules, the foundation of Bursaries and their Regulations, are the prominent additions contained in the Amendments. The Laws, with these Amendments, have a place in the appendix.

The names of the Members who aided Mr. Tennent, the Clerk, in the arduous labour of framing the Laws, and overcoming a deal of injudicious opposition on their way to the sanction of the Court, must not be omitted. The Incorporation were under the deepest obligation for their services to Mr. Wm. Wallace Mitchell, Mr. William Steele, Mr. Simon Maclennan, and Mr. David Yuile, but chiefly to Mr. Mitchell, a now venerable Member still among us, whose interest in the Craft, and time and attention given to its affairs with unsparing zeal for many years, was eminently valuable.

FREEMEN.

The Framers of the Letter of Guildry assumed that the Maltmen rules for election of the Visitors' Assistants or Quarter Masters and other Office-Bearers, and for making or admitting Freemen of the Calling, were at that time sufficiently established. Their attention was only given to settling the Constitution under "ane Visitour," and defining his powers and duties in regard to the Malt, Meal, and Bear, and the Kilns and Markets of his Craft. Nothing is said of his Assistants or the mode of their Election, or of the admission of Freemen with the Calling, and the upsets to be paid at admission, or of the Apprentices and Servants of Freemen. In the absence of muniments of a Seal of Cause or Charter previous to 1605, by which Writs these elections and entry monies were generally regulated, the information is therefore derived from the Minute Books, in which they are duly recorded.

As far back as minutes of the entries of members are extant, these commence with the entry of Gavin Menzies, a Burgess, on 4th January, 1615, "wha gave his aith of fidelitie for obedience," as is done at the present day, "and to mak Malt weill and skilfullie," and paid 20s. to the Visitour of entries silver, and 12s. of mortclaith silver. These were also for a long time the dues of entry of Sons and Sons-in-law, while in the case of the Burgess it was increased to 20 merks. At this time there was a payment besides of £6 13s 4d "for the denner," it being a custom when any one was made Freeman of the Incorporation to exact besides entry money a small sum for a dinner. "Ressaivit for his entry and mortclaith," or "for his denner and mortclaith," look very incongruous together, bringing into strange juxta-position the sounds of mirth and sorrow. But on 23rd September, 1642, "It is statut and ordainit, in all "tyme cuming the denner at the admission of Friemen is dischairgit, and the "Frieman at his admissioun to pay Ten merks for the denner." From which it may be presumed that as the number of members entering the Craft put it out of the question for the Master Court to overtake so much dinner attendance, it was better, rather than discontinue the payment, to take a smaller sum and pay it into the Box for the common good.

"15 June, 1621.—The qlk day, John Wallace present Visitour and "Quarter Maisters being conveyid in ye Craftis Hospitall, and having "taken due considerationne of ye meane and small contributionne payit to "ye commone Box be strangeris for admissionne of ym Freemen wt ye "vocationne of Maltmen; Thairfoir having regard to ye weill of ye said

“Vocationne not being prejudicial to ye libertie of yis burt, statutis and ordainis in all tyme cuming that all strangeris quhatsomever quha sall be admittit Friemen not marieand ane Burges manis dochter, being ane maidin undeflorit, sall pay for admissionne Fourtie merks befor yair admissionne.”

This is a sonorous style of expressing the amount of increased Entry-money to be in future paid by a Far-hand Entrant. The Letter of Guildry holds out inducements to move craft apprentices to take their Masters' daughters in marriage before any others. The solemn phraseology in speech of the Maltmen Master Court in 1621 seems with the same view to offer through marriage with a maltman's daughter, "a maidin undeflorit," the advantage of paying twenty merks instead of forty by entering the craft as a son-in-law and not as a stranger. These ancient descriptive words have an odd sound in modern ears, although the language would be as chaste to the ear in 1621 as similar peculiarities in the much later period when "Tristram Shandy" was written.

In no bygone time were strangers entrants at far-hand admitted by the Maltmen on as favourable terms as by the other crafts. In addition to higher Entry-money their Dinner tax was fixed at a higher sum: "13 February, 1655.—It is statut and ordainit that all strangers quha enters Freeman with the Calling heirefter, sall pay for the dinner Twelff pundis Scots money. But this is not to be extendit to Friemens sones or quha maries friemens dochters, or serves as prenteisses. But to strangers allendarlic."

Marriage to a Burgess' daughter even gave the privilege of being entered with the craft on more favourable terms than a stranger Burgess had, married neither to a Burgess' nor Freeman's daughter. "It is statut and ordainit that all personnes who enters Frieman hereafter claimand right yrto as marieand ane Burgess' dochter, sall pay for yr admissionne Twentie merks and the denner. But Frieman's sones and theis wha maries Frieman's dochters as formerlic."

After the lapse of half a century, a higher entry money for his privileges is again put upon the far-hand Stranger Entrant.

On 25th May, 1677, the Visitor produced an Act of the Town Council, granted in favour of the Calling, dated the 24th March, 1677, "Orby the " Proveist, Bailyies, and Counsell hes granted power and warrand to the " Visitor and Members of the Societie of Maltmen in this Brugh, and yr " successors in office, to exact frae ilk stranger that enters burges, and desyres " to enter frieman with the Calling, the soume of ane hundredth pund Scots. " Qlk act written on parchment, being read in the audience of the hail " Calling, was by the Visitor, Maisters, and remanent Brethereine, ordainit to " be put in the box, and qlk was accordingly done. (Signed) Robert " Selkrig, Clerke."

The first entry occurring under this Parchment is on 10th December, 1678. "The said day Johne Paull, being already made Burges of the Brugh " by buying his Freedome, is now admittit Frieman Maltman, quho hes payit " ane hundredth pund to the Collector, and given his aith as use is."

It is not necessary to follow the further progressive changes on the entry money of members, or to say that the mortcloth silver and dinner payment have long ago ceased. Latterly in sterling money the entry money at far-hand became £15 15s., £26 5s., and £50, till in 1852 it was fixed by the Laws at £100 and £105; while the entry money at near-hand, which latterly had been £2 2s. and £3 3s., was fixed in 1852 according to a table—till 25 years of age at £5 5s., and for the period exceeding 25 years, quarter accounts and interest, simple and compound, are added.

Maltmen Freemen, or Members, are divided into two distinct classes:—

1. Maltmen Burgesses. and as such eligible to hold office in the Calling.
2. Merchant Burgesses and Burgesses belonging to any of the Thirteen other Incorporated Trades, as such designated "Pendicles," and not eligible to be office-bearers.

The Town Clerk enters on the Burgess Roll the names of all persons who become Ordinary Burgesses of the City—the fees paid for a Burgess Ticket or Certificate varying as the entry is at near-hand or far-hand, Merchant Burgess, or Trades Burgess. It is necessary that a Burgess Ticket be procured before applying to enter any of the Crafts of the Trades' House. If the Burgess Ticket, in addition to the general occupation of the Burgess, specifies "Maltman" as the Craft under which he chooses to be designated, he will, on entry with the Craft, be duly enrolled as a Freeman and full Member, and be eligible to hold office; otherwise he is not a full Member or eligible to hold office—although entitled to all the other privileges of the Craft and the benefit of its funds, as a Freeman thereof—he is known as a Pendicle Member.

The distinction is not much regarded by the Craft, as by a payment of two guineas to the funds of the Trades' House a Pendicle Member is admitted a Member of the Conventry, thereby becoming eligible to hold office in the Trades' House and in the Craft or Incorporation which he has so entered. This has been done in more than one instance of late in the Incorporation of Maltmen, when a Pendicle Member is a desirable office-bearer, and in this way his services need not be lost to the Craft. At present there are only five Pendicle Members. It is also open to a Burgess to change his original Burgess Ticket, and to purchase another having the Craft specified which he may desire to enter as a full Member.

APPRENTICES AND SERVANTS.

After 1846, Apprentice members of the Craft having ceased, any mention of them here might be omitted, but for the fact that for a very long period they had the privileges of the Craft by apprenticeship, and that their indentures, to the number of some hundreds, are "buket" in the Records in this form:—"12 August, 1651.—The same day George Grahame, sone to George Grahame at Bankeir, is buket Prenteis with John Fyndlay, dureing ye space of sevin yeirs. Quha hes payit for his buiking to ye Collector Fourtie schillings, to the Clerke 13/4, and to ye Officer 6/8." "20 Decem-ber, 1666.—The said day Robert Jarvae, sone lawll to Johne Jarvae in Scheillis, within the Parochine of Larbert, is booked prenteis wt Charles Heugh, for ye space of Five yeirs, and twa yeirs for meit, and is fiet frae Martimes last, conform to Indentour dated the 12th of October last, wha hes payit the Collector Ten Punds." Such were the terms on which apprentices became bound with a Master Maltman. The Indentures were generally for five years. For the first two years the boy got only his food as wages. There is a difference of £8 in the "buiking" paid by George Grahame and Robert Jarvae,—as on 7th November, 1654, "the Visitor and Masters of the "calling takin to thair considerationne the great fredome and libertie thair "prenteiss gets, Be their service being als frie in all things as yr awin bairnes, "and yet hes payed ane verie meane thing heirtfoir for thair buiking. And "seeing both the poore and thair burdeings doe increase, They thairfor "heirby statut and ordainit, with consent of the hail Visitor and Quarter- "Maisters, That nae prenteis shall be buiket heirefter until first he pay to ye "Collector Ten punds for supplie of ye poore of ye calling, and ther burdeings."

The Apprentices must have been a fruitful source of annoyance to their masters. They appear to have led rather a dissolute life. A minute of the Master Court in February, 1673, gives a sad account of them. "Playing at ye cairts, and untymous drinking in ye night," are the least of the offences laid to their charge. "For preventing of ye lyk in tyme cuming, it is statut "and ordaint that any servand or prenteis who ever sall be knowne to be "out of his Maister or Mistres' family after Ten o'clock at night, unless he be "about his Maister's business—for ye first fault his Mr. sall detein aff his fie, "20s. Scots; ye second, 40s.; and ye third, £3."

"1691. May 15.—The same day it is ordained and appointed that the "Act anent the Maltmen's servants drinking, washing of heads, and com- "mitting other debosheries, of the date the fourth of February, 1673, be "furthwith, and in all tyme heirefter, observed, and put to condign execu- "tion; and of new, heirefter, discharges all prentises and servants frae that "evill custome of washing of heads in all tyme comming."

Apprentices and servants had their seasons of carousal as well as masters, but seem to have been more apt to exceed the bounds of propriety. The "debosherie" at head washings was the result of ceremonies which once had a serious significance, having lost their original meaning, and become mixed with the general habits of the time. At the manumission of a serf or bondsman, certain acts were solemnly performed before witnesses, indicative of the freedom conferred, and also calculated to impress themselves on the minds of those present. Acts of this sort were necessary in times and places when the drawing up of a writing recording the fact was a matter of impossibility. In fine, they were symbolical of the completion of some grant, privilege, or bargain. Almost every trade had some ceremony connected with the commencement as well as the termination of an indenture, up till within a very recent period. Of whatever rough or harmless capers they consisted, all were the degenerate offspring of very ancient rites.

THE GRAND DECERNITURE.

PRECEDENCE OF THE SEVERAL TRADES.

A discussion had existed for a length of time among the Incorporations as to the legal import of the LETTER OF GUILDRY, and the validity of certain proceedings of the Trades' House.

The Deacons and Visitor of the Incorporations had been in use, till 1771, to nominate as their assistants in the Convener's House a certain number of members, being from remote antiquity the Convener's Council for conducting the common affairs of the Crafts. The Hammermen, Tailors, Cordiners, and Maltmen nominated the greater number, and the Ten other Incorporations a fewer number. The number of Representatives sent from each craft was in proportion to the rank and importance of the craft, and to the share which it had contributed to the common funds. In 1771 the Ten latter insisted on being found entitled to have the same number of Representatives in the House with the first Four Trades. The Four carried the matter before the Court of Session, and after a variety of procedure the judgment known as THE GRAND DECERNITURE was pronounced on 17th February, 1775. The Supreme Court found that the constitution of the Society of the Trades' House, as established either by the Letter of Guildry or by immemorial usage, cannot now be altered or encroached upon, and particularly that the rank or precedence of the several Trades or Incorporations, and the number of members which each Incorporation have a title to send to the Trades' House as in use prior to the late encroachments, being previously established by immemorial custom, must continue, and cannot be altered or varied either by the Trades or Conventery by themselves, or with the concurrence of the Magistrates and Council ; and found decerned and declared the rank and precedency of the several Trades and Incorporations in the Trades' House as follows—HAMMERMEN, TAILORS, CORDINERS, MALTMEN, WEAVERS, BAXTERS, SKINNERS, WRIGHTS, CARPENTERS, FLESHERS, MASONS, GARDENERS, BARBERS, BONNETMAKERS ; and also fixed the number of members which each trade has a title to send to the House as representatives.

At a meeting of the Incorporation of Maltmen on 22nd December, 1778, the Visitor produced a notarial copy of THE GRAND DECERNITURE, taken from Extract of the Decreet obtained at the instance of the first Four Trades against the last Ten Trades of the Conventery, which having been read over by the Clerk, the Incorporation ordained the same to be engrossed in their Books, and the original notarial copy lodged in the box. The Minutes then bear, "The Incorporation, fully sensible of the great pains, trouble, and "diligence of the Committees of the said first four Incorporations, and of "their Agents and Lawyers in managing and carrying on the said process, do "hereby approve of, and give them the thanks of this Incorporation for their "conduct therein, and hereby earnestly recommend it to instruct their "Representatives in the Trades' House, present and to come, to have the "said Decreet observed and enforced in all points, and not to suffer the same "in any point to be violated or encroached on. And this Incorporation "further appoint the said full Extract to be lodged in the box of the Incorporation of HAMMERMEN, to be there preserved for the common benefit of "the said first Four Incorporations, and to be made forthcoming and patent "to them and each of them at all times, and to be lent to them or any of them "on receipt and obligation for redelivery in a competent time, upon the said "Incorporation of Hammermen them passing an Act of their Trade agreeing "to and acknowledging the said lodgment in the terms above mentioned, and "giving an Extract of such Act to the Visitor of this Incorporation to be "lodged in their Box. And this Incorporation appoint the Visitor to meet "with the Deacons of the Incorporations of Tailors and Cordiners to have an “Act passed in each of their Trades similar to this, and them to see this “Act executed.”

The Hammermen agreed to be custodiers of “The Grand Decerniture” on these terms, and furnished the Tailors, Cordiners, and Maltmen with Extracts of an Act of their Incorporation to that effect. The full Extract of the Decreet, dated at Edinburgh, 17th February, 1775, 16th February, 1776, and 28th February, 1777, consists of a portly volume of 742 folio pages.

PENSIONERS.

If the number of Pensioners be considered in connection with the amount of funds and the claims for relief, the Maltmen may be regarded as one of the richest Incorporations in Scotland, and if regard be had to the very judicious manner in which assistance is afforded to their decayed brethren, there are few Institutions of which our city has greater reason to be proud. The system adopted, while it guards against all fraud and imposition, and confines the aid to the really necessitous and deserving, enables the Court to dispense it with a liberal and generous hand. No claimant can force the Incorporation to do more than take his case into consideration, and from their fair and impartial decision upon it, there is no appeal or review ; and yet there is no instance of any abuse arising from the exercise of this discretionary power on the part of the Board of Directors—the Master Court. It is believed by those who have for many years given a careful attention to the working of the system, that while there is nothing in it to demoralize the recipients or place them in the position of paupers, the relief afforded is of tenfold more benefit to the community than if it had been distributed through the cumbrous and costly machinery of our Poor Law Board. Indeed a recent instance occurred where a pensioner without solicitation placed a sum in bank (the savings of many years out of his pension) in name of the Incorporation, that on his death he might, as far as in his power, recompense them for their kindness. Nothing could be more pleasing than the gratitude of this worthy old man.

The number of Pensioners on the pension roll at Lammas, 1879, were—

16 Members, aged from 62 to 84 years.

31 Widows, aged from 48 to 91 years.

18 Unmarried Daughters, aged from 47 to 82 years.

4 Orphan Children of four families; and

4 Persons enrolled to receive interim precepts paid along with — the Pension Roll.

73 Names in all.

The amount of pensions and allowances paid to these classes were—

Of the Members, seven enjoy in addition Trades' House Pensions of £20 per annum each; of the Widows, three have these pensions—one at £15, two at £10; and of nine of the Unmarried Daughters, seven have £6, and two £5 each.

With such allowances as these assisting their other means, the Pensioner ranks of the Incorporation are able to enjoy much comfort and respectability. Once a-year they receive a visit from the Master Court, who are divided into six pairs of Visitors. These gentlemen report from the schedule, which has been given out previously to the Pensioner and returned to the Clerk, their verification of its statements, with such remarks as occur to them. At a pro re nata meeting of the Master Court the Reports are read, and the recommendations made are anxiously considered and attended to.

OFFICER.

On 9th December, 1615, "James Liddell is admittit Officer for the yeir nex to cum and gaif his aith for dew service." Yearly thereafter, for a long series of elections, the last entered member is "admittit Officer for ane year nex to cum, giving his aith." In course of time an alteration of the custom appears; the Officer is "continewit till next election," and appointed from year to year. A freeman of the Calling was also required as Town Officer, to execute the Magistrates' and the Visitor's orders for putting the Calling's Acts in force. "17th February, 1641. The qlk "day conveint in the Craft's Hospital the Visitor and Quarter Maisters, "quha for the maist part were present, William Logane, Maltman, is decernit "in ane wrang, and was upset for deforcing of William Wallace, officer, in "execution of his office, having poyndit fra him ane clock for 8s. for not "comperance to the Candlemas Conventione. The said William Logane, "personally present, granted the deforcement. Yrfoir decernit in manner "foresaid." The Officer was appointed during the pleasure of the Visitor and Master Court. On "16th January, 1680, Visitor Findlay lytit James “Kincaid, William Drew, and David Boyd, that one of them might be so chosen, because William Crichtonne, the former officer, was become aigēt and infirme. The Maisters referred to the Visitor to choice quha he pleased, and the Visitor did choice James Kincaid to be Officer, till he should be found faultie; and the Maisters were content that quhn the Visitor should find him faultie, that he should put him off, and choice anoyr at his pleasor.” The office ceasing to be devolved yearly on the youngest entered member, but being held as a continuous appointment, a salary paid quarterly was allowed, with an occasional gift, and once a-year a suit of clothes. The articles of dress in the Collector’s yearly “Compt” read quaintly in modern times:—e.g. in 1668, “For cloath to be ane stand of cloathes to Thomas Miller, the officer—ane cloak, sark, wyliecoat, and ane pair of shoos, £20 1s. 4d. (Scots money). Three ells of grey cloth, £7 10s. Three ells plying, £1 1s. Ane bannet and pouches, £1 4s. To the tailyeor, for making ye clothes, £1 8s.” The shoes are a very frequent item. At other times he gets a “hatt and ribbons,” and “a boll of meal.” The writer, when a boy at school, has gazed admiringly at the officer, with the Craft’s box on his back, his hat streaming with ribbons, heading a Master Court on their way to the Trades’ House on the day of the Deacons’ Choosing—a fête day in Glasgow, and a school holiday. In 1689, “For clothes and others to the Officer, and a pair of shoos and a pair of breiks to James Machan, £26 3s. New shoes to the Officer, and selling ane old pair, £2 2s. Shoes to James Machan, and mending the old, £1 12s.” “Ane syde coat and breitches, with ane coat and a sark to George Pollock, late Toun Officer of the Calling.”

On 29th November, 1690, there is a good outfit:—“Seven ells of cloth, at 30s. the ell, to be Alexander Chapman, the Officer’s clothes, £13 16s. Eight ells of linen at 7s. the ell, £2 16s. Three ells of plying, to be hose, 2s. A gross of buttons to the coat, 18s. Turning his old coat, and for furnishings, £2 2s. 6d. Ten drope of silk, 15s. Pockets, binding, and buccraim, 12s. 8d. Four ells and one-half of cloathe, to lyne his justicoat and breikes, at 7s. the ell, is £1 11s. 6d. Four dozen of buttons and three ells binding, 6s. 10d. A quarter of flannen and twa unce of “threed, 4s. 6d. A new hatt, £1 18s. A new pair of shoes, £1 13s. 4d.; and for a periwig, £3 12s.”

Alexander Chapman gets several wigs. In 1692 there is paid “for ane “periwig to him, £3;” and “for turning his coat, 16s.” In 1698, “for his cloaths and mounting, as per receipt, £20 6s. 8d. Item: for a weigg, hatt, shoos, and stockings to him, £7 19s. 6d. Item: to James Mann, for “making of his cloaths, £3.”

To this day the Officer might not object to receive the Visitor’s “warrand” for a similar suit, “periwig” included. In November, 1826, “the officer’s “hat, coat, wig, and shoes” appear for the last time in the Collector’s Account; an equivalent being included in an increased salary, varying since from £18 to £30 per annum.

BURIALS OF MEMBERS AND THEIR FAMILIES—MORTCLOTHS.

In the minute 30th November, 1615, so frequently referred to, it is recorded—“The said day ressaivit be ye Visitour, fra Thomas Wyning, of mortclaith silver, 10s.” Thomas Wyning had been entered at a previous meeting, and had paid for his upsett and dinner, leaving the “mortclaith “money” till now. The mention of a “mortcloth” in the casualties of the Calling may surprise a member of the present generation. The payment had its origin in the earliest period of the Craft, when it was imperative on every Freeman to attend the burial of a Maltman or Meilman, his wife, or bairn. The Craft kept this mortcloth, to be used at the burials of members and their families only, and “mortclaith money” paid by entrants was for its repair, and to provide a new one when that was required. Each member paid 10s. or 12s., with his other entry-monies, towards this expensive article.

The frequent Acts of the Calling “anent absents frae burials,” and demanding attendance on these occasions, are in this way accounted for. “1619. August 7.—The qlk day, William Neilsonne, younger, Visitour “of Maltmen and Meilmen in Glasgow, his assistaris and haill breyren of “the tred of Maltmen and Meilmen conveint in the Craft’s Hospital,

“and having considerationne of ane Act maid be tyme their befor in the “month of February, 1605, anent thair being at burialls of their Breyren, “their wyves, and bairnis, being wairnt be the officer to that effect—and
 “of yr unlaw in cais of absens therfra: The said Visitour and assystaris
 “and hail persones, Maltmen and Meilmen, statutis, decernis, and ordainis “yt everie persone of their tred yt cumis not to the buriall of ane of yr “breyrin, his wyfe, or bairn, being lawlie wairnt be the officer to that “effect, not haveing ane lawfull excuis, sall pay to the Visitour, to the weill
 “of the tred, four schillings money, toties quoties.”

This statute had not been satisfactorily observed, for, on “17th October, “1622.—Ye qlk day, ye Visitour and hail vocationne being present except “ane few number quha were absent, conform to ane former Act maid befor, “understanding ye evill order usit in tyme byepast in absenting yame selfiss
 “fra convoying of ye corpes of thois departed this lyiff wtin ye bodie of ye
 “said vocationne to yair buriall, sua that mae nor a few are prntt yratt:
 “Thairfoir they actit and obleist thaim selfis in all tyme cuming that “quhaever were absent in tyme cuming fra ony burial belonging to ye said “vocationne, being lawfullie wairint, or wtout ane lawfull qualifiet excuis, to “pay, toties quoties, foure schillings, to be employit to ye commone use of ye “vocationne.”

At first the supply would appear to have been intended only for the “serving” of their own members. “23rd October, 1622.—The qlk day ye “Visitour and Quarter-Masters agriet yat yair sould be twa mortclaiths off

 “hous and famelie—vizt., ane meikill claithe of velvet to be bocht for aigit “peopill, and ane less claithe of velvet for young childring: Ordaining “Walter Douglas, Deacon Convener; William Neilsonne, prntt Visitour; “William Neilson, Elder; James Lytbodie, Johne Wallace, and John Craw“ford, to be prnt at ye bying yairof: As als quhasoever sall get ye meikill “lyttill claithe aucht schillings in all tym coming, to ye commone use of ye “vocationn and for supplie of ye pair decayit Bretherin of ye said Calling.

“And in cais ye said clothes be lent furth of yis burt or desyrit be ony per-“sonn wtin yis burt wtout ye bodie of ye said vocationne for bureing of ye “deid, the keipper yairof sall not lend ye saymn wtout consent of ye Visi-“tour and twa of ye Quarter-Maisters, and yt upon sick reasonabill satis“faction as they sall modifie.” And further on—“8th Januarii, 1623.—It is “ordainit that the mortclaithes sall be lent at na tyme heirefter, bot for “bureing of the deid wtin the body of the vocationne—viz., the guidman of “the famelie, his wyffe, or childrene.” But the rule was soon altered into an institution for general use. During the greater part of the seventeenth, and of the eighteenth century, the Merchants’ House, Trades’ House, and several of the Incorporations of the city, besides the Maltmen, were possessed of a stock of mortcloths, which they hired out for the benefit of their poor, and realised from the business a very considerable income. So expensive an article could only be got on loan or hire, and to meet this want, Incorporations and other associated individuals provided them. To have a costly mortcloth and a large attendance at funerals were outward signs of respect for the deceased which were uniformly observed.

The members of the Craft never improved in a conscientious attendance at the burials of the brethren, their wives, or children, where their presence was so anxiously urged. The terms of the latest edict on this head are:— “13 November, 1694.—The said day the act anent keeping the Burialls “revived: and all ordained to attend the samine from the Buriall House “to the Wyndheid, under the pain of four shillings Scots, to be paid with-
“out forgiveness. And the Officer is ordained to take particular Accompt
“of the present Friemen, and the Fyne to be impended as the Visitor “thinks fit to the poor or the Officer, except a lawful excuse be given and “admittit.” The Visitor thus giving the Officer a partnership in the recovery of penalties, it is likely that not a few fines would be impended.

The Maltmen had generally a dozen mortcloths on hand of various sizes.
They were examined and reported upon yearly, on being removed from the old to the new Collector’s house—the “kist” which contained them, and the “wallets” in which they were carefully carried about for use, being often mentioned in the Collector’s accounts. In the years 1674 to 1676 inclusive, the large sums of £158 5s. 8d., £218 16s., and £195 15s. (Scots) respectively, were drawn for the hire of the mortcloths. The mortality in Glasgow in these years must have been above the average. Only £26 9s. had been received in 1652, and £82 in 1665. Frequently other requisites for interment, besides the mortcloths, were furnished by the Craft to necessitous families. On 6th November, 1662, the Collector takes credit for £1 16s. "for the use "of umqle Wm. Gibs wyfe," and £4 5s. 4d. "for a kist and winning sheit "to her." Two entries to the same effect, relating to James Gibb, occur in an account, 13th October, 1674.

"7 November, 1654.—Debursit to Fraderik Hamiltoune to bring hame, out of Hollane, als meikle velvous as to be ane mortclaithe, . . . . . £036 16 0"

That was a considerable sum for velvet only, but there is to be added:—

"Debursit for two pund and nine unce of silk to mak the fraingzie (fringes) for ye best mortclaithe, . . . . £046 04 0
"To Margrat Graye, for working the fraingzie, . . . . 010 01 0
"To Ard. Miller, for shewing (sewing) on the fraingzie, &c., 01 13 04
"For twa wallats thairto, . . . . . 02 02 0"

A mortcloth of a good sort thus cost within a little of £100 (Scots).

Either with the view of having their palls brought into demand, or to show the respect in which the deceased had been held by the community, a deputation was almost invariably sent to represent the Incorporation at the funeral of persons of note or influence belonging to the city and neighbouring counties, and there are many items of these attendances:—

"9 Nov., 1665.—Debursit at Blackhall's buriall for horse hyre and for ane man to keep them, . . . . . £09 0 0"

The same terms are employed with reference to Barrochan's, in this year, and Lord Loudon's in 1664:—

"Debursit for twa hors hyres to Walkinshaw his ladie's buriall, . . . . . £01 16 0"

In 1675, Garscadden also was carried to his last resting-place, when the hire of five horses, and "mending of the mortclaith that was wronged at the same tyme," cost £5 3s.; and in 1692 a deputation of two horsemen was at "the Laird of Fulbar's" burial; of two at "the old Earle of Kilmarnock's;" of two at "the young Earle's;" and of five "at the Ladie Pollock's." The Steuarts of Blackhall, the Loudon and Boyd families, and others mentioned, were members of the rank which includes many of Scotland's oldest families.

In the account containing the item of Blackhall's funeral, and immediately after it, there is the following curious note:—

"Debursit for ye saiddell yt the Calling proclaimed to be rune for, mair nor was gotten be collectionne, . . . £5 15 0"

This can only mean that the Calling had announced, in usual fashion, by the bellman, that on the return of the mourners from Blackhall's interment the horsemen would engage in a broose (or race), the prize to be a saddle, and that the difference between what was subscribed by the competitors and the cost of the saddle would be made up by the Incorporation. Though now-a-days such singular conduct as advertising, and thereafter joining in a ludicrous helter-skelter race, immediately after so solemn an act as consigning the remains of a fellow-creature to the tomb would be looked upon as most untimely levity, yet about the middle of the seventeenth century such things occurred at burials as well as weddings, and our wonder lessens when it is remembered that at the funeral of a person of Blackhall's wealth very large quantities of intoxicating liquors were freely distributed and consumed. Horse-racing on a few occasions had been a pastime of the King and Court in the reigns of the later Jameses, but had not become a public institution until long after 1665.

The mortcloth business appears to have paid well for more than a hundred years afterwards, but ceasing in course of time to be lucrative—the revenue to the Incorporation in 1781 and 1782 amounting only to £8 19s.—it was discontinued by the Maltmen, by a sale to the Tailors, Weavers, and Wrights, who in partnership for fifty-seven years carried it on profitably. The right of keeping mortcloths and letting them for hire belonged by immemorial usage to Kirk-Sessions of Parishes, whose poor got the money derived from it. But parties like the Incorporations, who had been in the practice beyond the years of prescription of letting out mortcloths, were found entitled by the Supreme Court to retain that possession. The Collector may be surprised to know that it was one of his official duties only a hundred years ago to act as a City Undertaker, and on hearing of the decease of a citizen to wait upon sorrowing relatives and offer one of his mortcloths to be used for the good of the poor of the Incorporation of Maltmen.

In the end, the conclusion come to was:—"At and within the Laigh " Kirk Session-House, 22 March, 1782.—The Committee reported that the " Tailors, Weavers, and Wrights agree to give Eighty Guineas for the Mort- " cloths, which are therefore sold to them at that price—subject always such " sale to the burden of furnishing Mortcloths to indigent Poor of the Incor- " poration whom the Visitor for the time may think proper to recommend " to such benefit."

EDUCATION.

The " Trades' School " was established in 1807, when the provision for elementary education in Glasgow was very inadequate. The school was supported jointly by the Trades' House and the Incorporated Trades, each Trade annually electing a School Director. After existing for about seventy years, it came to be universally admitted that, under the altered circumstances of its efficiency—the daily increasing facilities for obtaining improved education, and, above all, the introduction of the School Board—the Trades' School should be discontinued, leaving it to the Crafts to provide greater educational facilities for the children of their members as they might see fit.

The Incorporation of Maltmen accordingly, at Lammas Court, 1876, appointed an Education Committee, consisting of five members, viz., Mr. Hugh Baird, junior, Visitor ; Mr. William MacLean, junior, Collector ; Mr. Charles Malloch, Mr. Franc Gibb Dougall, Dr. William Scott, Mr. William West Watson, and Mr. George Ledingham, "to draw up Rules and Regu“lations for the guidance of the trade in dealing with the important “question of Education, in so far as it affects the Craft generally, and “especially defining the conditions upon which Children and Grandchildren

“of members may have a FREE EDUCATION given them from the funds
“of the Incorporation.”

The Committee, with much care, prepared the Rules, which having been submitted to the consideration of the Craft, were finally adopted at Lammas Meeting of 1877, and ordered to be embodied with the Laws. The Rules will be seen in the Appendix.

Under these Rules an Education Committee was permanently constituted, to consist of five members, viz., the Trades' School Director for the Craft, elected for two years; two members from the Craft, one of whom to retire annually; and two members from the Master Court, one of whom to retire annually. The Committee annually in July make a Report to the Incorporation, which is printed and issued along with the circulars calling the Lammas General Meeting, specifying the names, ages, and numbers of scholars, dates when entered, the schools attended, and the proficiency shewn during the year. While thus providing a primary and secondary education, the Committee have also power to give education aid for evening classes to eligible persons occupied at business employments during the day. The system and arrangements of their Education Scheme, exhibited by the Committee's Reports in 1878 and 1879, have worked excellently since its inauguration. During the session 1877-78, 41 children received education; during 1878-79, the numbers were 33.

MALTMEN BURSARIES.

The Incorporation in 1852 founded two Bursaries, now of the annual value of £25 sterling each, for the education, at the University of Glasgow, of sons and grandsons of members, to be held for four years, and in some cases for an extension of that term. The appointment is vested in the Master Court. The Regulations are printed in the Appendix to the Laws.

THE GORBAL LANDS.

In 1640 the Lands of Gorbals and Brigend, being 347 acres, 2 roods, and 32 falls, were sold by Sir Robert Douglas, of Blackerston, at the price of £81,333 16s. 8d. Scots, to the Magistrates of Glasgow, in trust for behoof of the City, to the extent of one-fourth part; of Hutcheson's Hospital, to the extent of two-fourth parts; and of the Trades' House for the remaining one-fourth. The earliest mention of the Gorbal Lands in the records of the Maltmen is contained in the following brief minute:—"Vigesimo Fēbrii, 1650. The said day the Visitor (Walter Bryce) and maist pairt of the "Masters being conveynet, they all in ane voyce doethe allow anent the "bargane of the Gorballs, and ordains the Visitor to declare in their names, "that they will advance 6000 merks to yt effect." By a Contract, dated 9th March, 1650, between the Magistrates and William Lightbodie, Deacon Convener of the Trades, and Visitor of the Maltmen, the one-fourth portion was vested in the Trades' House, and was divided into thirty-one parts. The price paid was 31,000 merks, equal to £1743 12s. sterling; the thirty-one parts being respectively shared thus:—

				Shares.					Shares.

									31 parts.

The Maltmen hold their six shares, proceeding upon the above Contract, by a Charter of Feu Farm, dated 15th July, 1650, granted in favour of Walter Bryce, their Visitor, and his successors in office, whereby they have right to "All and hail six just and equal parts of All and Hail Thirty one "equal parts of All and Hail the six pund land of old extent of Gorballs "and Brigend with the pertinents therein mentioned."

The Sasine on their Charter under the subscription manual of Mr. John Spreull, Notary Public, is dated 17th July, 1650, and recorded in the Register of Sasines kept at Glasgow for the Shire of Renfrew, Regalities of Glasgow and Paisley, 23rd August, in the same year.

From this period the Collector's annual accounts of intromissions "wit ye Calling's guids" contain entries of what is received for each year from the Deacon Convener's Collector as "a part of ye Gorballs rents for ye crops;" or as it is expressed of Charge in one of his accounts "for qlk the Calling hes lying upon the said lands," in other words, the annual income derived from their investment of six thousand merks in 6-31 shares of the lands.

The whole lands originally sold by Sir Robert Douglas to the Magistrates were held in joint property by the City, Hutcheson's Hospital, and Trades House, till the year 1789, when they were allocated under careful agreement—78 acres, 3 roods, and 14 falls Scots, formed the one-fourth part allocated to the Trades House and the Incorporations.

William Lightbodie, Deacon Convener for three years between 1648 and 1651, was a member of the Incorporation of Maltmen, and it is reasonable to suppose that to him and Walter Bryce, Visitor in 1650, the Maltmen may consider themselves chiefly indebted for the wise and profitable investment of 6000 merks, equivalent in sterling money to £333 6s. 8d., the price of their six shares of the Gorbal Lands. The revenue now annually derived by the Craft in feu duties from this ancient investment is not less on an average since 1856, by which year the last portions of the unfeued ground were disposed of, than the extraordinary sum of £1000 a year—a most important item of funds intended as a helpful source of assistance and comfort to the poorer members and their families.

Mr. Crawford's Sketch, c. 47, gives an interesting narrative of the Gorbal Lands, with a list of the feu-duties and duplications, and a plan of the ground feued, now called "Tradeston." The Clerk of the House is Factor for collecting the feu-duties, and Clerk to the Delegates on the lands—who are a Committee composed of the Deacon-Convener and Collector of the House, the last Convener and last Collector, together with a Delegate elected yearly by each of the Incorporations entitled to a share of the income.

BALGRAY.

In 1666 the Calling purchased for 9,800 merks the lands of Balgray in Provanside, which is introduced here in order to give occasion to notice two affairs, one of public the other of private interest, appearing at this time on the Records. For fifty-six years the small Estate gave unceasing occupation to the Visitor and Masters, but especially to the Collector, whose accounts are full of the details of farm expenditure and agricultural labour. In a Minute of the Master Court, 24th December, 1680, giving instructions in regard to a Balgray Account, we get a glimpse of the "Highland Host" let loose by Lauderdale over Glasgow and the Western Counties in 1678. "The Collector, in settling with David Wilson, one of "the Tacksmen at Balgray, shall deduce and allow him twentie pund Scots, "for the expense and loss he got by the Hielanders; and also deduce and "allow to George Murdoch and Robert Muir, the other Tacksmen at "Balgray, twenty pund Scots, betwix ym, for the expense and loss they "susteinit by the Hielanders at the same time." The Highlanders, during their visit to the West, carried off from the peaceful and unresisting inhabitants whatever money they could lay hold of, and as much plunder as they could carry from shops and dwelling-houses of articles they had taken a fancy to. A Conventicle at Provanside, of which the Balgray tenants were staunch adherents, had become obnoxious to the party sent out by the Privy Council, and hence the loss "susteinit" on this account by the Maltmen.

The persecution in the West of Scotland continued without much abatement till the Revolution. The Collector (William Reid), on 24th October, 1687, is ordained "to pay to ilk ane of the fourteen persons who were "appoynted to meet the new Archbishop at his first coming here 14 shillings "Scots for their hors hyres." The Visitor (John Stirling) assumed more state than the "fourteen persons"—"For ye Visitor's expense in ryding to meet the Bischope and in convoying of his Ladie, £2." In the same account is a charge of 36s. "spent by ye Visitor and Collector in getting back the Balgray Kyne taken by ye Sodgers." At this time James VII. had sent troops from the garrison of Berwick to Scotland, to assist in dispersing or preventing conventicles, and some "sodgers" had been again foraging at Balgray.

In 1730 it was considered for the advantage of their stock and of their poor—the same reasons that were given for the original purchase—"that the Lands of Balgray be sold for as much above 16,000 merks as can be "gott therefor." At public auction on 1st July, 1730, Mr. John Orr, of Barrowfield, Merchant in Glasgow, a Freeman of the Calling, gave 2,600 merks above the upset price, purchasing the Lands at 18,600 merks, a sum nearly double their original cost. The price realised would be excellent value at the time, besides improving the capital stock of the Craft to such an extent; but it would have been fortunate for the Maltmen if Balgray had remained with them to this day, like the Gorbal Lands investment.

Mr. Orr in that year had "mortified" the sum of 2000 merks, the annual rent whereof to be paid for ever to a poor Freeman of the Craft quarterly. On 21st May, 1730, "the Calling heartily accept the Mortification, and "recommend to the Visitor to wait on the said Mr. John Orr, and thank "him therefor." The "Barrowfield Mortification" is the only money derived from endowment vested in the Incorporation of Maltmen.

TRADES' HALL BUILDINGS.

The Maltmen, along with the Trades' House and the other Crafts, have a proprietary interest in the Trades' Hall Buildings in Glassford Street. The site and buildings, in 1793, cost £7207 18s. 8d., of which the Trades' House advanced £4000—the Crafts making up the remainder, and having an interest in proportion to the several sums which each advanced or should in future advance towards the expenses of the Buildings. The proportion advanced by the Maltmen was £611 4s. 2d. By the expense of additional Buildings from time to time the cost now stands in the books of the Trades' House at a considerably higher amount, and in the last ninety years the great advance of Glasgow has converted the Trades' Hall and Buildings into a very valuable property.

The Buildings are under the management of a Committee, of which each of the Incorporations elects a Member, who must be one of their Trades' House Representatives.

CITY GROUND ANNUALS.

The only other Heritable property in which the Maltmen are concerned is an Investment made in 1861 in the purchase of Ground Annuals from the City Corporation, yielding an annual return of £645 2s. 6d. The payments are secured over the very ample revenue of extensive properties in Jamaica Street, Saint Enoch Square, Fox Street, Howard Street, Great Clyde Street, and Brunswick Street. The purchase included also a Ground Rent of £37 15s., payable out of what was the site at "ye Wyndheid" of the Crafts' and Saint Nicholas' Hospitals, the Chapel of the Hospital, and the old College. The ground had been acquired latterly by the Community, and in 1807 was sold by the Magistrates with the burden of this Ground Annual. The sites afterwards formed a portion of the Gas Light Company's Works, which have been removed in their turn to add to the extent of Recreation Ground, forming for the North Quarter District, by the City Improvement Trust—their Ground Annual being now paid to the Maltmen by the Improvement Trustees.

THE MALTMEN AND PRINCE CHARLES IN 1745.

In 1745, Glasgow could not expect to have immunity from the troubles caused by the Pretender's futile attempt to regain the sovereignty of Great Britain. A city so distinguished for attachment to the principles that had driven his family from the throne, was made to feel the weight of his resentment. In September Prince Charles had despatched from Stirling an order on the unfriendly city for £15,000, of which, after some negotiation, £5,500 was contributed. But on his return from England in the end of December, remaining in Glasgow from 26th December till 3rd January, 1746, he laid Glasgow under contribution for clothing to his Highlanders, by this time shirtless and shoeless, and in need of an outfit of every other article of dress. The Magistrates were compelled to provide 12,000 linen shirts, 6,000 pairs of shoes, and the same number of cloth coats, waistcoats, and bonnets. It cost them no good will to do so and more trouble than to raise and send to Edinburgh their regiment of six hundred men to aid in the defence of the capital.

The Maltmen Records, beyond the two following entries, contain no other allusion to what for the time must have kept the city in a continuous excitement for the greater part of a year.

“Sept. 1745.—Spent with the Visitor and Masters at ordering the Officer to warn the Members to keep their Servants off the streets in time of disorder, ... .. £000 06 0

“Decr.—Spent with the Visitor and some of the Masters at ordering some of the Masters to gather shoes for the Rebels, and given to Porters for carrying them, ... .. £000 18 0.”

On their way to Glasgow the Highlanders had helped themselves to what shoes they could seize, even divesting wearers on the highways of the needed articles. The Magistrates of Glasgow doubtless in December imposed upon the various crafts the duty, so hurriedly to be performed, of collecting from the citizens the garments required—the gathering of the shoes seem to have been the quota of labour and contribution required from the calling of Maltmen.

REVENUE—PENSIONER EXPENDITURE—STOCK ACCOUNT.

It may suffice to give in very brief summary the progress of the Craft's Annual Revenue and Pensioner Expenditure, commencing with the beginning of this century. These are shewn in the following decades. The amount of the progress of Stock from 1831 is also appended:—

FUNDS—GOOD AND PIOUS USES.

In addition to the assistance given to the needful of their own Craft, the funds of the Maltmen, in terms of the Letter of Guildry, and by ancient usage, may be employed under the sanction of Law III., "for encouraging by occasional donation" benevolent institutions and public measures tending to promote the good of the Incorporation and of the community. Since 1605 the Trades' House has, under the same usage, contributed to establish the principal charitable and philanthropic institutions promoted in the city of Glasgow.

Mr. Crawford says truly, "Whenever pecuniary aid was necessary, the "corporate funds of the Magistrates and Council, the Merchants' House, "and the Trades' House, were looked to by the citizens, and became available in aid of all public and benevolent objects."*

* Sketch, c. 51, p. 243, Crawford.

Mr. Crawford gives a list of such contributions by the Trades' House since 1777, "for the purpose of shewing not only the uses to which the "funds of the House have been in part applied, under the authority conferred by the Letter of Guildry, but the liberal spirit in which the Trades' "House contributed to the numerous important, praiseworthy, and benevolent objects which from time to time received the support of the inhabitants at large."

Commencing at the same period, a hundred years back, the following are similar contributions made by the Incorporation of Maltmen in their Craft capacity :—

1876, May 4.—Contributed to the general use of the Western Infirmary,	525 0 0
„ May 2.—Contributed to the Bridgeton Fire Relief Fund, - -	10 0 0

The aggregate amount of the above forms a large sum, and to the amount might be added the annual small payments contributed by use and wont to certain public charities. At present these consist of three guineas annually to each of—The Royal Infirmary, the Western Infirmary, the Eye Infirmary, and the Association for Relief of Incurables. The Maltmen, as well as the Trades' House, have always given away liberally a share of their substance, and in their own prosperity have realised the testimony of the highest wisdom when he says, "There is that scattereth and yet increaseth; the liberal soul shall be made fat; and he that watereth shall be watered also himself."

VALETE.

Previous to the passing of the Parliamentary and Burgh Reform Bills, the Trades' House and the Crafts considered it a bounden duty to exert a political influence in public affairs. From time to time their sentiments were vigorously declared on public questions, especially when the Constitution, the Protestant Religion, the peace or prosperity and the laws of the country were concerned, or believed to be seriously affected. The following may be taken as a fair example:—

" December 15, 1792.

"The Corporation of Maltmen being called to declare their sentiments upon the "attempts which have been made to infuse fears and jealousies into the minds of the "people, and to excite commotions by the propagation of wild, new-fangled, and
"extravagant writings and opinions, subversive of our present happy constitution,

“and of all law and good government—think it their duty to testify that they are “convinced from the experience of past and present times, this country never was “in a more happy, prosperous, and secure situation, both as to its civil and religious “rights and liberties: and that every person disposed to virtue has easier means of “acquiring comfortable subsistence, and even opulence and affluence, than at any “former period:—that the most excellent constitution of this country, the efforts of “the wisdom and virtue of ages, has been the great means, under God, of securing
“and increasing the peace, liberty, and prosperity of Great Britain, and that it “contains salutary powers within itself to correct every abuse and supply every “defect that may creep into it.

“This Corporation, therefore, deeply impressed with gratitude to Heaven for “these invaluable blessings, Do unanimously Declare their firm loyalty, and resolu“tion to stand by and support the King’s Most Excellent Majesty, the Lords and “Commons of Great Britain, and the Constitution of this country, as by law “established, with their lives and fortunes. Farther, that they will be aiding to “strengthen the hands of Magistrates and others, in suppressing every attempt “that may be made to disturb the peace, prosperity, and happiness, or endanger
“the lives and properties, of any of His Majesty’s subjects. And they appoint
“this Declaration and Resolution to be published in the Glasgow and Edinburgh “newspapers.”

It was intended to transcribe here several appeals to Parliament on the questions of the day, but time and enlightened policy have so long since lifted the veil of political mystery from them, that the fervour of their declarations is perhaps now as uninteresting as it is antiquated, and with this passing notice these may be left among the manuscript Records of the Craft.

I.—LETTER OF GUILDRY.

THE copy preserved by the Maltmen of the Decree Arbitral known as the "LETTER OF GUILDRY" was furnished by the Town Clerk in the seventeenth century, and the following is a verbatim extract of such portions as recognise and establish the Incorporation of Maltmen and Mealmen :—

"Att the Burgh and Citie of Glasgow, the Sixth of Feberuary One thousand six hundred and five years. Forsomeikle as the haill inhabitants within this Burgh and Citie of Glasgow, burgesses and freemen thereof, as well Merchands as Craftsmen, having duely considered and deeply weighed the great hurt, interest, damage, loss and skaith, which their haill commonwell thir many yeirs byegone hes sustained be strangers and unfreemen using and usurping the priviledges and ancient liberties of this Burgh as freely as the freemen and burgesses indwellers within the samine. And partly be some mutual controversie and civile discords arising amongst the said freemen and burgesses, anent their priviledges, places, ranks, and prerogatives. Be the which occasions not only their trade, traffic, and handling hes been usurped be strangers and unfreemen, as said is, to the great depauperating of the haill inhabitants within this town, but also all policie and care of the liberties of this Burgh has been overseen and neglected, to the great shame and derogation of the honour of this Burgh, being one of the most renowned cities within this realme. And having found the only cause thereof to be for the want of an solid and settled order amongst themselves. Therefore, and for remeid thereof in time coming, and for conforming of themselves, the said Burgh and Citie, to other well reformed burghs within this realme, and for the common-well and particular profit of the hail inhabitants thereof in their own rank and their posterities in all time coming. And specially to the advancement of GOD's glory, and their better abilitie to serve our Sovereign Lord the King's Majesty, and for settling of peace, concord, and amitie amongst themselves as faithful Christians and loving citizens, the saids whole Merchands and Craftsmen and their assisters of both the ranks, and whole body of this Town, after many meetings and conventions, long disputations and reasoning concerning their common-well, quietness and standing thereof, having nominat and chosen now William Anderson, Thomas Mure, Baillies; Matthew Turnbull, Robert Adam, James Bell, John Dickson, William Stirling, Archibald Faulds, James Inglis, James Fleeming, George Muir, and Thomas Brown for the hail merchand rank and their assisters; John Anderson, Baillie; Robert Rowat, Mr. Peter Low, Duncan Semple, James Braidwood, John Scot, Deacon; John Mure, Skipper; Mr. Robert Hamilton, Gavin Hamilton, Thomas Fawside, William Mure, Flesher; and James Fisher, Maltman; for the hail craftsmen and their assisters; and the Right Honourable Sir George Elphinstoun of Blythwood, Knight, Provost; Mr. David Weems, Parson of Glasgow; Mr. John Bell and Mr. Robert Scot, Ministers thereof, as oversmen and odsmen commonly chosen betuixt the said Merchands and Crafts in case of variance. And the saids persons having accepted the said matter in and upon them, being divers times conveyened to treat and reason upon the saids matters concerning the common-well of this Burgh, after long reasoning had thereintill for the better advancement of the said common-well and settling of all controversies that may fall forth betuixt the said ranks of Merchands and Crafts thereafter and their assisters and successors, and for the better enlarging of both their liberties, freedom, and priviledges, wherethrough they may live in time coming in the fear of GOD, obedience to his Majestie, and in good love, peaceable amitie, and concord amongst themselves, so that both the Estates may flourish thereafter,—

“After great pains, long travellings, and mature deliberations had, seen, and considered, and ripely advised be both the Estates of the saids Merchands and Craftsmen and their assisters, hes concluded that there shall be in all time coming, ane DEAN OF GUILD, ane DEACON CONVENER, and ane VISITOR OF MALTMEN, whose elections, statutes, and priviledges follows.”

Three-fourths of the Deed are then occupied with Regulations for the DEAN OF GUILD, his Council, and the DEACON CONVENER—their elections, rights, and privileges ; after which, the election and duties of the VISITOR, the Laws regulating Maltmen and Mealmen, and the making of malt, &c., occupy the remainder.

“ITEM. It is concluded that there shall be ane VISITOUR OF MALTMEN AND MEALMEN, who shall be chosen yearly in time coming, that same day that the Deacon Conveener is chosen, in this form. The whole Maltmen and Mealmen shall give in four men’s names, of the most worthiest and discreet men of the Rank of Maltmen, with the old VISITOR, and present lytes to Provest, Baillies, and Councill, who shall make choice of one of them to be VISITOR for that year, and so in all time coming and shall be sworne.

“ITEM. He shall take tryall of them that prophane the Sabbath day in their calling, in dighting, receiving, and delivering of Meall, Bear, Corn, and Malt, carrying of steep water, ingleing of kills, and such like other offences, and the transgressors being convict shall pay to the VISITOR Ten shillings by the unlaw of the session of the Kirk.

“ITEM. The VISITOR shall have power to try all Meal and Bear either in kills, houses, or booths, except freemen’s Bear, Meal, or Malt coming to their own houses, which the VISITOR shall have power to visit if he be required be the buyer or in the mercats; and where they find insufficient stuff, as hot, rotten, or frostslain stuff, either mixt among good stuff or be the alone; and likewise, where they find good stuff spilt in the making, he shall report the samine to the Baillies, and the owner thereof to get no more for the samine stuff nor the VISITOR and two or three of his assisters think it worth upon their conscience, providing that the VISITOR and his brethren give their oaths and depone before one of the Baillies of this Burgh and the Party what they think it worth upon their conscience, and if the outintouns seller will not give it for that price, he shall take it away with him, paying the custom of the Ladle of the town. And if any bear beis tryed be them to be flourished with good above and the rest worst, the owner shall pay sixteen shilling to the Baillie and ten shilling to the VISITOR ; And if any Malt be found to be rotten and spilt in the making, or good malt and evill malt mixt together, being sighted be the VISITOR, they shall report to the Baillies the worth thereof, and if the owner please to sell it within this town at that price, it shall be lawful for him so to doe, or to brew it himself or to transport it to any other place, paying always forty shilling for every making ; and if any such spilt stuff be found with outintounsmen be the VISITOR, shall pay sixteen shilling for each mask, the one-half of the said unlaw to be paid to the Baillies, and the other half to the VISITOR.

“ITEM. It shall not be lawfull to Maltmen nor no others to buy Malt, Meal, or Bear within this Town, either before or in time of mercat to Tap over again, under the pain of Five pounds, to be divided. To wit, the one half betuixt the Baillies and VISITOR, and the other half to be divided betuixt the Merchands and Crafts Hospitalles.

“ITEM. It shall not be lawfull to no person to buy any kind of stuff coming to the mercat on horseback or otherwayes till it first present the mercat, except freemen for their own use allanerly, being forspoken or bought of before. And sicklike, the hours of the mercat to be kept both be free and unfree, according to the statutes of the Town. Providing that freemen be suffered in seed time to buy their seed at any hour they please. FARDER, if any stuff be kept or hid in kills, booths, or barns, in time of mercat, except necessity constrain them to put their Meall in houses or under stairs for wett or foul weather, the contraveener of the foresaid statutes to pay,—viz., the sellers to pay an unlaw of sixteen shilling, and the buyers that buys above ane boll, ane load or more, shall pay to the VISITOR six shilling eight pennies. And if any Cake Baxters beis found buying meal before eleven hours conform to the Town's Acts, shall pay of unlaw to the Baillies sixteen shilling, and six shilling eight pennies to the VISITOR, toties quoties being tryed that they have contraveened.

“ITEM. All persons presently Burgesses shall have liberty to make malt either to their own use or to sell over again, and all Burgesses sons that shall happen hereafter to use that trade shall pay to the VISITOR at his entry Twenty shilling ; and outintounsmen who marries Burgess daughters shall conform ; and every unfreeman who is not as yet Burgess and enters to that calling of Maltmaking, shall pay to the VISITOR of the Maltmen Twenty Merks Money, to be bestowed upon their poor decayed brethren be the VISITOR with advice of certain of his honest brethren. Providing that all persons freemen, either present or to come, shall make meal without any kind of entres.

“ITEM. The VISITOR of the Maltmen shall have power to try if any unfreemen Sell or Tap any kind of stuff out of the mercat place, and shall report the samine to the Dean of Gild ; the Seller to pay an unlaw of Twenty shilling, the one half thereof to the Dean of Gild, and the other half to the VISITOR, toties quoties being tryed before the Dean of Gild.

“ITEM. Secing the rubbers of meal are discharged be the Acts of the Town as hurtful to the common-well, it shall be lawfull to the VISITOR to unlaw the sellers in twenty shilling toties quoties and discharge the rubbers, and to punish them according to the Statutes of the Town sett down thereanent ; the one half of the said unlaw to the Baillies, and the other half to the VISITOR ; and none to rubb or mett the meal but the owner. FARDER, what acts and statutes the VISITOR with advice of his brethern, being conveened as occasion occurs, can devise for their well, not prejudging the common-well, shall be put in write, and presented to the Provost, Baillies, and Councill, and Deacons, and they to repell or allow the samine as they shall think good.

“ITEM. Every person who enters Burgess hereafter, and gives up his name to be Merchand or Craftsman, it shall not be lawfull for him to make Malt for the space of three years, and if after he desire to make Malt, being ane simple Burgess, he shall pay to the VISITOR of Maltmen Ten Merks ; and if * he be ane Gild-brother, shall pay twenty shilling at his entry; and their Bairns to have the same benefit that Burgesses Bairns hev who now are presently free; Also, if the VISITOR and his brethren exerce diligently, truely, and carefully their office committed to their charge, it shall be lawfull to the Provost, Baillies, and Councill to augment their upset upon outintounsmen who enter to be Maltmen, as the Provost, Baillies, and Councill shall think expedient.

“ITEM. Every making of Malt made be ane Maltman dwelling within the Town, how many soever he makes, shall pay eight pennies for the making of malt and sicklike, every Mealman shall pay for every crop or kill of corn, eight pennies; to be applyed to the well of their decayed brethren, provyding that freemen’s malt and corn made for their own use, be free of payment.

“FARDER, the VISITOR of the Maltmen shall be subject yearly in time coming, once in the year, if they be required, to produce before the Provost, Baillies, and Councill, their Book containing the whole acts and statutes that it shall happen them to make hereafter farder nor is agreed upon, as is above written, to be seen and considered be them that they may allow or repell the same as they find occasion, otherwise to be of no effect.

“ITEM. It is agreed and concluded that JOHN WALLACE, Maltman, bear office as VISITOR to the Maltmen and Mealmen, while that same day eight days after the Bailies of this Burgh are chosen for the year to come, who hes given his oath in presence of the Provost, Baillies, and Council for discharging of his duty in the said office. AND FARDER, for declaration of the Craft’s assisters,—viz., they are Maltmen, Mealmen, Fishers, and such Marriners and others, who pleases to associat themselves with the Crafts for contribution to their Hospitall and decayed brethren.”—Concluding with a request by the Commissioners, because the foresaid elections, statutes, and privileges redound to the good of the Burgh, that the Town Council will ratify their said Letter in all points.

“In Witness whereof, thir presents written be John Craig, Nottar, the foresaids hail Commissioners for themselves and in name and behalf foresaid, Likeas, the said Provost, Baillies, and Council, in token of their Consent and Ratification thereof in all points, have subscribed with their hands, as followeth, at day, year, and place foresaid. Follows the subscriptions, first of the Merchand Commissioners, sic subscribitur, Matthew Turnbull, James Bell, James Inglis, William Stirling, James Fleeming, Umphray Colhoun for Thomas Brown in absence, Robert Adam, John Woddrop for George Mure, Archibald Faulds. Ita est Archibaldus Heygate de mandato Joannis Dickson subscribere nescien. Commissioners for the Crafts—John Anderson, Baillie; Robert Rowat, Master Peter Low, Duncan Semple, Master Robert Hamilton, John Mure, James Fisher, David Shearer, James Braidwood, Thomas Fawside. Ita est Archibaldus Heygate notarius de mandatis Joannis Scot et Willielmi Mure scribere nescien. Follows the Oversmen—Sir George Elphinstoun, Master David Weems, Master John Bell.”

The Provost, Bailies, and Council having docquetted the original letter, met in council on February 9, 1605, in terms of the request of the Commissioners, interponed their authority to the Letter of Guildry, ordained it to be observed in all points, in all time coming; and to be registered in the Burgh Court Books.

II.—MINUTE OF THE TOWN COUNCIL OF GLASGOW APPROVING LETTER OF GUILDRY.

“Apud Glasguam, nono die mensis Februarii, 1605.—In the Common Hall-house thereof being convened, the Right Honourable Sir George Elphinstoun, of Blythswood, Knight, Provost of the said Burgh; William Anderson, Thomas Muir, and John Anderson, Baillies thereof; Matthew Turnbull, Mr. Peter Low, John Rowat, Robert Adam, William Wallace, James Lyon, Humphry Cunningham, William Stirling, John Wardrop, James Bell, James Fisher, William Robertson, William Fleming, John Dickson, John Scott, Deacon of the Lorimers; John Muir, James Braidwood, William Wilson, Treasurer, Thomas Pettigrew, Master of Work, Counsellors of the said Burgh; together with Ninian Anderson, Deacon of the Cordiners; Richard Kirkland, Deacon of the Weavers; William Love, Deacon of the Skinners; William Dunlop, Deacon of the Masons; George Young, Deacon of the

Bakers ; George Pollock, Deacon of the Coopers ; James Naesmith, Deacon of the Bonnet Makers ; and William Muir, Deacon of the Fleshers. The whilk day, in the presence of the Provost, Baillies, and great Council of the Burgh, above written, compeared personally William Anderson and Thomas Muir, two of the Baillies of the said Burgh ; Matthew Turnbull and William Stirling, John Dickson, James Inglis, James Bell, and Robert Adam, for themselves, and in name and behalf of the Merchant rank of this Burgh, and their assistants, on the one part, together with John Anderson, likewise Baillie of the said Burgh ; Mr. Peter Low, John Muir, James Braidwood, James Fisher, John Scott, and William Muir, for themselves, and in name and behalf of Robert Rowat, Duncan Semple, Gavin Hamilton, David Shearer, and Thomas Fauside, as Commissioners chosen and elected by the Deacons of the said Burgh and body of crafts within the same, on the other part, for treating and concluding upon sundry privileges and liberties concerning the well of merchants and crafts within this Burgh and common well thereof ; which persons above written, as Commissioners nominate and chosen by the merchants and crafts, after divers and sundry meetings and long reasoning, to the honour of God, and for the well of both the said ranks of merchants and crafts, and to the public and common-well of the said Burgh, and increase of peace, love, and amity betwixt them and their posterity, by virtue of the saids Commissions respective, after mature advisement having concluded that it is most necessary that there shall be a Dean of Gild within the said Burgh, a Deacon Convener, with one Visitor of Maltmen and Mealmen, authorised with certain liberties and privileges for the well and benefit of the saids ranks and common well, as said is, produced before the said Provost, Baillies, and Council the foresaids Commissions granted to them, together with a letter and form of submission, and a Letter of Gildrie, Deacon Convener, and Visitor of Maltmen and Mealmen, in due and competent form, duly and lawfully subscribed with their hands, and by certain oversmen, nominated by both the saids parties, proceeding upon the commissions granted to them, and with consent and advice of the Deacons above written, most reverently desired the said Provost, Bailies, and great Council of the said Burgh to grant and give their full, express consent and assent to the foresaid letters, whole heads, statutes, privileges, and liberties therein contained, and to subscribe and interpone their authority to the same, and ordain the same with the saids commissions and letter in form of submission, to be insert and registered in the Burrow Court books of the said Burgh, that the same may take full effect in all time hereafter. Which letter being read and considered by the said Provost, Baillies, and Council aforesaid, and being therewith ripely advised, understanding the same first to redound to the honour of God, common well of this Burgh, and well of both the saids ranks of merchants and craftsmen, and to their mutual amity, concord, and agreement hereafter, thought the foresaid petition and desire most lawful and reasonable, and therefore accepted, received, and admitted the said letter; and in token of their consent subscribed the same, and ordained the saids commissions respective, and letter in form of a submission, and that of Dean of Gilderie, Deacon Convener, Visitor of the said Maltmen; the saids Provost, Baillies, and Council, for themselves and successors in office, by the tenor hereof have interponed and interposes their authority, and ordains the same with all the sundry privileges and liberties specified and contained therein, to be observed, kept, executed, and used by the saids Dean of Gild, Deacon Convener, and Visitor of Maltmen in all time coming, after the form and tenor hereof in all points for the common well of both merchant ranks and crafts. Sic subscribitur :

A. HAYGATE.”

III.—MINUTE OF TOWN COUNCIL FOR SETTLING FUTURE DISPUTES BETWEEN THE MERCHANT AND CRAFT RANKS.

“Apud Glasguam, decimo sexto die mensis Februarii, 1605.—In the Council-house being convened, the Right Honourable Sir George Elphingston, of Blythswood, Knight, Provost, William Anderson, Thomas Muir, and John Anderson, Baillies; Matthew Turnbull, Dean of Gild; Robert Rowat, John Rowat, Robert Adam, Humphry Cunningham, John Wardrop, William Fleming, William Wallace, William Stirling, William Robertson, John Dickson, Mr. Peter Low, James Fisher, John Scott, Deacon, Thomas

Pettigrew, John Muir, Skipper, William Wilson, and James Bell. The which day the Provost, Baillies, and Council, being careful that hereafter all manner of muting, contraversies, questions, and debates, shall be removed furth of the common well, especially betwixt the merchant rank and rank of craftsmen, that the mutual bond set down among them lately, concerning the Dean of Gild and Deacon Convener, for the common well of this Burgh, and well of both the states, may take happy effect without any particular respect either to merchant or craftsman, with consent of the Dean of Gild and Deacon Convener, for themselves and the remanent of their ranks, has concluded and ordained that in all musters, weapons-shawing, and other lawful assemblies, that there shall be no question, strife, or debate betwixt merchant and craftsmen for prerogative, or priority, but that they, and every one of them, as one body of the common well, shall rank and place themselves together, but distinction, as they shall happen to fall in rank, and otherways as shall be thought expedient by the Provost and Baillies for the time; declaring by these presents that whatever he be, either merchant or craftsman, who makes question, muting, or tumult, for their rank, by prerogative or property, and repines at the will and discretion of the Provost, shall be judged and reputed as a seditious person and furder punished on sight. And furder, for taking away all partiality and particular respect of persons, amongst the saids merchants and crafts, if it should happen hereafter that any question or quarrel fall out amongst them judicially, or by way of deed, the Dean of Gild, nor Deacon Convener, nor either of their ranks, shall show themselves particularly affected to any of ther parties, in respect that the one is a merchant and the other a craftsman, nor yet assist them, or any of them, tumultuously, in judgment or otherways; but to be careful to see the offender condignly punished, according to justice. And because several burgesses of this Burgh, when they happen to commit disturbance within the same, do boast themselves, and vaunt of their friends, to the great trouble of this Burgh, and judgment seat of the same, by convocating their friends out of town to assist them, therefore it is concluded and ordained, that whatever burges of the Burgh that hereafter commits disturbance, and falls out with his neighbour, and makes convocation of his friends without the town, and in judgment, his freedom shall be taken away, and never to be esteemed worthy to enjoy the liberty of a freeman hereafter ; but they shall civilly and quietly seek their redress and remead of their wrong, by way of justice. And siclike, that all conventions and meetings of the Dean of Gild and Deacon Convener shall be for putting their statutes to execution, and exercising the liberties and privileges granted by the Provost, Baillies, and Council to them."

IV.—RATIFICATIOUNE BY PARLIAMENT TO THE BURGH OF GLASGOW
OF "THE GILDRIE," 1672.

(The First Double Preserved by the Incorporation of Maltmen.)

"At EDINBURGH the Eleivint day of September One thousand sex hundredth seventie twoe years. OUR SOVERAIGNE LORD Takeing to consideratioune the great and many debaits, differences, and contests which wer betuixt those of the Merchand rank and those of the Crafts within the Burgh of Glasgow in the tyme of His Royall predecessoures, And particularly in the reigne of His Majestie's Grandfather, of ever blessed memorie, untill the year 1605 yeares, At which tyme by the mediatioune, interpositioun, and endeavours of severall persounnes of quality and wyse men burgesses of the said Burgh, The said difference came to be settled and composed ; and upon the sext day of Feberuary, the said year, a submissioun having been made following upon a commissioun granted be the great Council of the Town for the said parties their entering in a Submissioun, QUHILK Submissioun is daited the Tenth of November, 1604 yeares. Whereupon the settlement after mentioned followed, and is entituled the Letter of Gildrie, Deacon Conveener and Visitour of Maltmen and Meillmen, dated the Sext of Feberuary, 1605 yeares, wherein the particular powers and authorities condiscendit upon to belong to the saids respective employments are speciallic enumerated be the Magistrats in maner contined in the said aggreiment ; WHICH VISITOURES are for visiting mercats of meall and all kynd of victuall, and appointed to try the sufficiencie and insufficiencie thereof. Be vertew of the qlk aggriment and decrett arbitral, the iuhabitants of the Burgh of

Glasgow have lived in great peace, unities, and concord amongst themselves ; and also thereby good order have been observed in the respective crafts and callings, and orderlie contributiones made for maintenance of the poor ; THAIRFOR, HIS MAJESTIE, with express advyce of the Estates of Parliament, Ratifies, Confirms, and Approves the said Gildrie Decreit and Aggrement, whereby the saids Merchands and Crafts have met and made orderlie contributiones for the menteinance of their Poore: Declaring the said Decreit and Aggrement to have the strength and force of ane Act of Parliament.—Extracted furth of the Records of Parliament be me, Sir Archibald Primerose of Carintoune, Knight and Barronet, Clerk to His Majestie's Councill Register and Rolls.

V.—ACT OF THE TOWN COUNCIL IN FAVOUR OF THE MALTMEN
IN GLASGOW, 24TH MARCH, 1677.

“ Apud Glasguam, vigesimo quarto Martii, anno Domini Millesimo sexcentesimo septuagesimo septimo.—The quhilk day the Proveist, Baillies, and Counsall of the said Burgh being conveyned anent the supplicatione given in and presentit to them by Mathew M'Aulay pnt. Visitor and remanent bretherin of the Societie of Maltmen within the samyne Burgh makand mentione that whereby the incoming of many straingers from the countrie who making themselves Burgesses does enter and come in Friemen with the said Societie of Maltmen for ane litle inconsiderable soume the members of the said Societie do exceedingly increase, to the great prejudice of the Calling and to the great hurt and prejudice of the Burgh of Glasgow their excyse. These straingers incomers being poor taks many sinistrous ways and courses to steal Malt out of ye town mills excyse frie whereby honest men of the said societie and weel wishers of the said toune of Glasgow ar exceedingly prejudged through their selling malt at ane lower rate than they who pay the excyse honestly, qlk the Petitioners conceavis humblie might be helped and redressed if the fynes of straingers entering friemen wer augmentit to ane hundredth pounds Scots as other callings do exact, whilk the petitioners will not take upon them to doe without your  $\overline{Lp}$ 's special warrant and ordor to that effect. Likeas ther ar severall persones who ar nayther Burgesses of Glasgow, nor fewars of Gorballs, nor frie with the calling, but straingers who make malt at their awne hand, sells the samyne without presenting it to the Mercat, quhairby the Maltmen in Glasgow and Fewars in Gorballs are greatlie prejudged. As also the said Burgh in their excyse by their glandestine grinding of their malt at other mylnes than the Townes Milns, And so prejudging ye towne of ye moulters and excyse thereof, And therfor cravand the said  $\overline{Magrats}$  and Counsell to give their delyverance warrand and ordor to the petitioners to exact ane hundredth pounds Scots monyie as their callings due exact fra straingers who enters friemen with the said Societie in all tyme coming. And to make ane Act in their Book for that effect which will contribute much for ye augmenting and keeping up the just excyse of all malt ground at ye tounes mylnes and ye good and weill of ye said Societie and their  $\overline{Lop}$ 's Petitioners thereby shall be engaged every way to be active to the exact payment of the due excyse and shall ever pray for the prosperity of the said Burgh, as the said Petition mair fully proports. Quhilk being read and thereafter taken to us the sds Provost, Baillies, and Counsell their consideratioune.—After mature advyce and deliberatioune had be ym thereanent. And finding the samyne in itselfe most reasonable for the reasons and causs above wrytten and uthers. The said Provost, Baillies, and Counsell have given and granted and hereby gives and grants to the Visitor of Maltmen of ye said Burgh and remanent members of the said Societie and their successors in office full power warrand and ordor in all tyme coming to exact and receive from ilk strainger that enters Burgess of this Burgh, and desyres to enter frieman with ye said Societie, the soume of ane hundredth pounds Scots monyie for ye better supplie of the Poor of the said Calling. Declaring that thir pnts are no wayes to be extended against Burgess' bairnes or those who marries Burgess or Frieman's daughters. And Likeways discharges any of the Inhabitants of Gorballs to take in or brew any malt from any straingers not indwellers or Maltmen in Glasgow or Fewars of Gorballs except the samyne be presentit to the Mercat of Glasgow and sighted by the Visitor, and pay the Laidles, under such pains and penalties as it shall please the Magrats of this Burgh to exact and inflict on them. And discharges the Collectors to suffer any malt out of ye mylnes to pass belonging to any person aforesaid without warrand fra ye said Visitor, Declaring thir prnts to stand in force during the said Magistrats and Council their will and pleasor, And ordains the Clerk to give out Extract hereof, qulk will be als sufficient as ye samyne was subt. be ye sd Magrats and Counsell.—Extractum

"WILL. GUTHRIE, Witness." }

VII.—CHARTER BY KING WILLIAM AND QUEEN MARY, 1690.

Of date 4th January, 1690, KING WILLIAM and QUEEN MARY granted a full and ample Charter in favour of the City of Glasgow, confirming all former Charters in favour of the Community, or Guild Brethren, Tradesmen, or any Society or Deaconry within the same; and THEIR Charter was ratified by Act of Parliament, 14th June, 1690.

The Charter commences with the narrative that "the City of Glasgow "is amongst the most considerable of the Royal Burrows within their ancient "Kingdom of Scotland, both for the number of inhabitants and their singular "fitness and application to trade, and the convenient situation of the place “upon the River Clyde.” The Act is given in Mr. Crawford’s “Sketch,” pp. 316, 17.

VIII.—ANNO NONO VICTORIÆ REGINÆ, CAP. XVII., ACT FOR THE ABOLITION OF THE EXCLUSIVE PRIVILEGES OF TRADING IN BURGHS IN SCOTLAND.—[14th May, 1846.]

“I. Whereas in certain Royal and other Burghs in Scotland the Members of certain Guilds, Crafts, or Incorporations possess exclusive Privileges of carrying on or dealing in Merchandize, and of carrying on or exercising certain Trades or Handicrafts, within their respective Burghs; and such Guilds, Crafts, or Incorporations have corresponding rights, entitling them to prevent Persons not being Members thereof from carrying on or dealing in Merchandize, or from carrying on or exercising such Trades or Handicrafts, within such Burghs: And whereas it has become expedient that such exclusive Privileges and Rights should be abolished: Be it therefore enacted by the Queen’s most Excellent Majesty, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the passing of this Act all such exclusive Privileges and Rights shall cease, and it shall be lawful for any person to carry on or deal in Merchandize, and to carry on or exercise any Trade or Handicraft, in any Burgh or elsewhere in Scotland, without being a Burgess of such Burgh, or a Guild Brother, or a Member of any Guild, Craft, or Incorporation: Provided always, that in lieu of the Stamp Duties of One Pound and Three Pounds now payable on the admission of any Person as a Burgess, or into any Corporation or Company in any Burgh in Scotland, for the Enrolment, Entry, or Memorandum thereof in the Court Books, Roll, or Record of such Corporation or Company, there shall from and after the passing of this Act be paid on every such Admission a Stamp Duty of Five Shillings.

“II. And be it enacted, That notwithstanding the Abolition of the said exclusive Privileges and Rights all such Incorporations as aforesaid shall retain their Corporate Character, and shall continue to be Incorporations, with the same Names and Titles as heretofore; and nothing herein contained shall anywayse affect the Rights and Privileges of such Incorporations, or of the Office-Bearers or Members thereof, except as hereinbefore enacted.

“III. And whereas the Revenues of such Incorporations as aforesaid may in some Instances be affected, and the Number of the Members of such Incorporations may in some Instances diminish, by reason of the Abolition of the said exclusive Privileges and Rights, and it is expedient that Provision should be made for facilitating Arrangements suitable to such Occurrences; be it therefore enacted, That it shall be lawful for every such Incorporation from Time to Time to make all Bye-Laws, Regulations, and Resolutions relative to the Management and Application of its Funds and Property, and relative to the Qualification and Admission of Members, in reference to its altered Circumstances under this Act, as may be considered expedient, and to apply to the Court of Session, by summary Petition, for the Sanction of the said Court to such Bye-Laws, Regulations, or Resolutions; and the said Court, after due Intimation of such Application, shall determine upon the same, and upon any Objections that may be made thereto, by Parties having Interest, and shall interpone the Sanction of the said Court to such Bye-Laws, Regulations, or Resolutions, or disallow the same in whole or in part, or make thereon such Alterations, or adject thereto such Conditions or Qualifications, as the said Court may think fit, and generally shall pronounce such Order in the whole Matter as may to the said Court seem just and expedient; and such Bye-Laws, Regulations, or Resolutions, subject to such Alterations and Conditions as aforesaid, shall be, when the Sanction of the said Court shall have been interponed thereto, valid and effectual and binding on such Incorporations: Provided always, that nothing therein contained shall affect the Validity of any Bye-Laws, Regulations, or Resolutions that may be made by any such Incorporation without the sanction of the said Court, which it would have been heretofore competent for such Incorporation to have made of its own Authority or without such Sanction.

“IV. And be it enacted, That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed in the present Session of Parliament.”

THE LAWS AND REGULATIONS.

Sanctioned by the Court of Session, 25th May, 1852, under Statute 9 & 10 Victoria, c. 17.

I.—ENTRANTS.

1. BEFORE the application of any person who wishes to be admitted a Member can be taken into consideration, he must make a declaration of his name, age, craft, &c., agreeably to a printed form, to be furnished by the Clerk, and returned to him eight days before the next Quarterly Meeting; and no person shall be admitted a Member under twenty-one years of age at far hand, or under fourteen years of age at near hand, nor except at a Quarterly Meeting of the Master Court.

2. All persons admitted as Members of the Incorporation must be Burgesses and Guild Brethren of the Burgh of Glasgow, and must produce their certificates of admission as such at the time of their entry.

3. All Members must have been entered with the Incorporation for a year and a day before any of their relations can be admitted Members at the near hand on their account.

4. All persons entitled to enter at near hand, as at the 31st day of May, 1850, being sons, or sons-in-law of Members whose wives are at the time in life, or apprentices who have served at least five years to a Member prior to the passing of the Scottish Burghs Bill, 1846, shall be received at the entry-money of Three Guineas for the period of five years after the said 31st May, 1850: with this proviso—that, in the event of the entry being delayed till the entrant shall be upwards of twenty-five years of age, they shall pay Quarter Accounts, with simple and compound interest on the entry-money and Quarter Accounts, for the period intervening between that age and the time of entry, according to the Table annexed (p. 178), marked A. On the expiry of said period of five years, all near hand entrants, including apprentices, shall pay the sum of Five Guineas of admission-money, with the addition of Quarter Accounts, and interest, simple and compound, for the period exceeding twenty-five years at which the entry is completed, as above expressed, according to the Table marked B.

5. In admitting Members at the far hand, the Master Court shall have an absolute power of admission or rejection ; and, if they admit, the admission money shall be £50 till twenty-five years of age, and after that age Fifty Guineas : no entrant to be admitted above fifty years of age at far hand.

NOTE.—In terms of alterations 12th August, 1852, and 26th April, 1855, the admission money shall be £100 till twenty-five years of age, and after that age 100 Guineas, it being an instruction to the Visitor and Masters that when an applicant's age exceeds 40, the whole circumstances of the application be laid before next Meeting of the Incorporation for advice.—See Appendix to Laws (pp. 179-186).

6. The ages of entrants shall always be reckoned as at the birthday next ensuing after the time of their entry, and, in the event of parties not being able to furnish extracts from the Parochial Registers, certifying their ages, it shall be in the discretion of the Master Court to require only such proof of the fact as may be considered reasonable in the circumstances.

7. A Declaration shall be taken by Members, prior to their admission, in the following terms, viz. :—

I solemnly and sincerely Declare that I shall be a true and faithful Member of the Incorporation of Maltmen in Glasgow, into which I am now admitted ; and that the Declaration made by me prior to admission is, to the best of my knowledge and belief, consistent with the fact ; and that I shall observe and obey the Laws and Regulations made, and to be made, for the good government of the Incorporation and funds thereof ; and in all other respects shall conduct myself as a faithful Member of the Incorporation ; and I make this solemn Declaration conscientiously believing the same to be true, and by virtue of the provisions of an Act, made and passed in the Sixth year of the reign of His late Majesty William the Fourth, entitled “An Act to repeal an Act of the present Session of Parliament, entitled, ‘An Act for the more effectual abolition of oaths and affirmations taken and made in various departments of the State, and to substitute declarations in lieu thereof; and for the more entire suppression of voluntary and extrajudicial oaths and affidavits, and to make other provision for the abolition of unnecessary oaths.’”

NOTE.—Voluntary affidavits being abolished by Statute, the object is to subject parties making the Statutory Declaration falsely to the pains of perjury, and it is necessary for this purpose to observe the form prescribed by Statute.

II.—QUARTER ACCOUNTS.

1. Each Member, without distinction, shall annually pay One Shilling of Quarter Accounts, and all previous arrears at the same rate, at the General Meeting of the Incorporation to be held in August; and no Member in arrear of such payment shall be allowed to vote, or to be voted upon, at that or any other meeting, unless he shall pay Two Shillings for each year he is in arrear before the Roll for the meeting at which such payment is made is for the first time called.

2. Members shall have the power of paying their Quarter Accounts in advance, for one or more years, or of acquiring the right of exemption—subject, however, to any additional charge which may be made on the Quarter Accounts—by paying the sum of £1 in redeeming this burden; and such payments in advance, or redemption, may be made at the stated Meeting of the Incorporation in August.

NOTE.—To avoid the very frequent arrears of Quarter Accounts, the Master Court are in use to require at each entry that the redemption £1 be paid.

III.—FUNDS.

The Funds belonging to the Incorporation are, and shall be, vested in the Incorporation, for behoof of the Members, and their Widows and Children, as herein expressed; and as provided by the Letter of Guildry dated 6th February, 1605, and according to the usage of the Incorporation, for encouraging, by occasional donations, benevolent institutions and public measures, tending to promote the good of the Incorporation and of the community: And the grants for these purposes made from the funds, and the management and disposal of the funds, otherwise, shall be exercised by the Master Court and General Meetings, according to the Rules herein contained.

NOTE.—Since 1852 a large amount of money has from time to time been voted by the Incorporation for objects allowed by the above provision—as had been done on the same principle previously from time immemorial; but in such cases as the following the Craft do not consider themselves uncharitable in disallowing a contribution :—

On 31st March, 1874, at a General Meeting of the Incorporation, a letter was read from the Lord Provost and Deacon-Convener asking a contribution in aid of the “Bengal Famine Fund.” In the course of the discussion upon motions for and against the proposal, the Clerk was requested to define the power of the Incorporation, as that power is regulated by the Laws. The Clerk advised that to comply with the request was going beyond the Incorporation’s legitimate boundaries, as expressed in the foregoing preamble of Law III. He considered that the exercise of the power must be within the community of the City of Glasgow, and accordingly held that if the meeting now make a donation to the Bengal Famine Fund, any Member dissenting and appealing to the Civil Court would succeed in having it found that the Incorporation had done what it had no right to do.—The Clerk’s opinion was unanimously agreed to.

1. No Loans shall be made of the funds on personal security alone.
2. The Monies of the Incorporation shall be invested in the purchase of Lands, Feu Duties, and Ground Annuals, or in the Public Funds; or lent out on first Heritable Securities, to the extent of not more than two-thirds of the estimated value of the property over which the loan is granted; or on the Security of the Funds of the Parliamentary Trustees of the River Clyde, or the City Corporation of Glasgow.

NOTE.—See addition to this section of Law III., Appendix, 2nd August, 1860.

3. It shall not be competent for the Master Court, so long as it is entrusted with the management of the funds, to lend or gift any portion of them to any Member of the Court, in any shape or form whatever.

4. No portion of the funds shall be expended, unless the same has been previously agreed to at a regularly constituted meeting, whether General or of the Master Court, as the case may be, and entered in the minutes.

NOTE.—See additional Rule, Appendix, 2nd August, 1860.

IV.—PENSIONERS.

1. Pensioners shall be admitted and enrolled only at the Quarterly Meetings of the Master Court, the applications being lodged with the Clerk eight days previous to the Meeting, and no Member, or his Widow, or Children, shall be entitled to demand a Pension or pecuniary aid as a matter of right.

2. All applications for Pensions and Precepts shall be lodged with the Clerk, and be presented by him to the Master Court, whose duty it will be to examine into the validity of said applications, and in whom the sole power is vested to grant or refuse Pensions, to raise or reduce them ; but subject always to the control of General Meetings, as after specified.

3. Before the Petition of any Applicant can be taken into consideration, it must be accompanied by his or her declaration, stating the ground of Claim, Age, Residence, Means of Support, &c., as per printed Schedule.

4. The merits of each case shall be minutely and carefully investigated, and aid given from the funds only to the really necessitous and deserving, and the aid given shall be payable only during the pleasure of the Master Court.

5. Pensioners shall be restricted to the following indigent classes :—

1st, Members.

2nd, The Widows of Members, so long as they remain unmarried.

3rd, Their Orphan Children, [other than married Daughters,] until the youngest attain an age not exceeding fifteen years, except in cases of extreme indigence and infirmity, which shall be dealt with by a special vote in the particular case from time to time.

NOTE.—Married Daughters are thus absolutely excluded. The restriction here applies to age. Grandchildren also are not recognised in any respect, one reason for which is that the admission money in the case of either sons or sons-in-law is so small that any one with the least care or forethought can obtain admission and keep up the qualification for his or her own immediate descendants. Grandchildren however are eligible to receive a free education, and to apply for the benefit of the Bursaries founded by the Incorporation.

6. Not more than one class shall be admitted and enrolled at one time under the same claim—that is to say, that when and so long as a Member or his Widow is enrolled, his children shall not be enrolled, and vice versa; nor shall the children collectively receive more than the parent would have done; nor shall any Pension or Precept be awarded until the expiry of three years after the admission of the person in respect of whose membership the aid is asked.

7. As the services rendered by the Visitors are gratuitous, a distinction, in the discretion of the Master Court, shall be made between the indigent of their class and of the Members generally.

8. Any person who is proved to have made a false declaration, knowingly, shall thereby forfeit all right and interest in, and shall cease to be a Member of the Incorporation.

9. Pensioners shall be paid quarterly, in advance, as at present, payment being made either in the Trades' Hall, or elsewhere within the City of Glasgow, at the option of the Collector for the time.

10. On the death of a Pensioner, intimation and proof thereof shall forthwith be given to the Clerk, and thereupon a sum not exceeding Five Guineas may be allowed for Funeral Expenses, and shall be paid by the Collector to the party named by the Clerk.

11. The Pensioners shall be visited at least once a year by the Master Court, who shall investigate and report as to the propriety of continuing the aid; and a Report, in writing, shall be made by them, specifying, where one Pensioner receives more than another, on what ground such additional sum has been awarded.

12. A Declaration shall be made yearly, by each Pensioner, between the 10th and 20th of June, agreeably to the order contained in the printed Schedule, and the Roll shall be revised at the first Court Meeting afterwards, and adjusted to the altered circumstances of the Pensioners.

13. The Widow of a Member, by marrying, shall cease to enjoy any privilege from the Incorporation.

14. Pensions shall vary in amount according to the merits and necessities of the Poor, and on this principle shall be originally granted and shall be afterwards continued, reduced, or augmented yearly in the discretion of the Master Court; but in no case shall the sum awarded put the recipient in possession of an income over £40 per annum; and the only merits which shall be recognised, are for services rendered to the Incorporation.

NOTE.—See Alteration of £40 to £60, Appendix, 2nd August, 1860.

15. No distinction, in reference to the pecuniary aid given by the Incorporation, shall be made between Maltmen and Members commonly called Pendicles.

V.—TRADES' SCHOOL.

1. All applications for the benefits of the School must be made to the Clerk, who will furnish the applicant with a printed form, which must be filled up and returned to him before the expiry of the time stated for the receipt of applications.

2. The School Director shall have the power of receiving and deciding on said applications.

3. In granting admission, a preference shall be given to the children of Members over those of grand-children; and to grand-children of Members over the children of Members of other Incorporations.

4. The Director shall intimate the decision, and return the Declaration to the Clerk, who shall record the same, and transmit an extract thereof to the principal Teacher of the School.

5. As soon as a vacancy takes place in the School, intimation of the same shall be given by the Officer to all Pensioners in the city who have children. A notice of the same, for the benefit of the Members, shall also be posted up on a conspicuous part of the Trades' Hall for ten days at least before the vacancy is filled up.

NOTE.—The Trades' House School was discontinued in 1876, when other Educational arrangements were adopted. These will be seen in Appendix to the Laws, under date 2nd August, 1877, p. 185.

VI.—OFFICE-BEARERS AND MANAGEMENT.

The affairs of the Incorporation generally, and in so far as not restricted by the Incorporation, shall be managed by

1. THE MASTER COURT, consisting of a President, styled VISITOR, a Treasurer, styled COLLECTOR, and ten Directors, or Managers, including the last Visitor and the last Collector, ex officiis, styled MASTERS ; five being a quorum.

2. SIX REPRESENTATIVES IN THE TRADES' HOUSE OF GLASGOW, of whom the Visitor for the time being, and his immediate predecessor in office, shall always be two, ex officiis.

3. A MEMBER OF THE BUILDING COMMITTEE OF THE TRADES' HOUSE, who shall be a Member of the Trades' House at the time.

4. A DELEGATE FOR THE LANDS OF GORBALS, belonging jointly to the said Trades' House and to this Incorporation, and certain of the other Incorporated Trades of Glasgow.

5. A DIRECTOR OF THE TRADES' SCHOOL, supported jointly by the said Trades' House, and this and the other Incorporated Trades, for the education of Children.

6. TWO KEEPERS OF THE KEYS OF THE BOX OF THE INCORPORATION.

7. A CLERK.

8. AN OFFICER.

VII.—DUTIES AND POWERS OF OFFICE-BEARERS.

I. MASTER COURT:—

- (I.) The duty of the MASTER COURT shall be to collect and preserve the Funds of the Incorporation, and to manage and dispose thereof, subject to the control hereby prescribed, and in accordance with the Rules and Regulations herein contained, and that may from time to time be enacted by the General Body for their Government, and with the strictest economy ; to make up at their stated Meetings the Rolls or Pension Lists, for the guidance of the Collector in paying the Pensioners of the Incorporation ; and annually, at a Special Meeting, to be held for that purpose, not later than the first Thursday in September, to examine and audit the accounts of the Collector's intronmissions for the preceding financial year, along with the Committee of the Incorporation, to be chosen for that purpose at the General Meeting, to be held in the month of August. An Abstract of which Accounts, showing the Revenue and Expenditure, together with an account of the Capital Stock and Balance, showing the Profits and Debts due to and by the Incorporation, shall be printed and circulated among the Members, along with the circulars calling the Meeting for the Annual Election.

- (2.) The expense of the Annual Dinner of the Master Court shall not exceed £30.

NOTE.—See Alteration, Appendix, 6th March, 1857.

- (3.) The VISITOR shall act as Chairman of all Meetings of the Incorporation, Master Court, and Committees, at which he is present, and in his absence, the late Visitor, whom failing the Collector shall act in his place ; and failing them, the Meeting shall elect a Chairman for the time being by a majority of votes, the Member present standing first on the roll having a casting vote in the event of equality, and the Visitor or the person acting as Chairman for the time, shall, besides a deliberative vote, have also a casting vote in all cases of equality.
- (4.) 1. The COLLECTOR shall pay the Pensioners and manage the whole Cash Transactions of the Incorporation ; keep exact, regular, and distinct accounts of Intronmissions, and, if required, submit these Accounts, along with the vouchers thereof, to the Master Court, for the purpose of being examined by them at their Meetings, and shall submit the same annually for the purpose of examination and audit to the Master Court and the Committee to be appointed by the General Meeting of the Incorporation in August, and if required shall also exhibit the same to the General Meeting in September, along with the report of such Committee.
2. The intronmissions of the person holding the Office of Collector shall be guaranteed to the extent of £500, at the expense of the Incorporation, either by private cautioners or in one of the Associations lately formed for such purposes. 3. The Collector shall not retain in his hands more than £100 at any one time ; and all funds of the Incorporation, not secured by investment, shall be lodged in a Bank, to be selected by the Master Court from time to time, in name of the Incorporation, and not drawn out except by Cheques, signed jointly by the Visitor and Collector.

- (5.) The KEEPERS OF THE KEYS OF THE BOX shall examine into the security of the records and documents of the Incorporation, and shall attend on all necessary occasions to open the Box, and shall, from time to time, report to the Master Court as to the safe custody of such records and documents.
- (6.) The CLERK shall give the Incorporation and the Master Court his best advice in all matters affecting the interests of the Incorporation in which legal advice is requisite ; keep records of application for admission into the Incorporation, for pecuniary benefits, for the School, of appointments of Pupils, and of the Death of Pensioners ; and issue notices intimating the time, place, and purposes of all Meetings of the Incorporation, and Master Court, and Committees ; attend all such Meetings ; keep regular and distinct records of their whole proceedings, and engross them in the Minute-Book, which shall be duly authenticated by the subscription of the Visitor, or the person acting as Chairman of such Meetings in his absence.
- (7.) The OFFICER shall deliver the notices calling Meetings of the Incorporation, Master Court, or of Committees, and shall attend the whole Meetings of the Incorporation, Master Court, or Committees, and, if required, shall also attend the Collector in paying the Pensioners.

NOTE.—See Alteration, Appendix, 8th February, 1866.

2. The REPRESENTATIVES TO THE TRADES' HOUSE shall watch over the interests of the Incorporation, in all matters affecting them that may be brought before the House ; and act, to the best of their judgment, in promoting the well-being of the Convenery, and the advantage of all concerned.

3. The MEMBER OF THE BUILDING COMMITTEE OF THE TRADES' HOUSE shall represent and support the interest of the Incorporation, in the Committee chosen by the Incorporations to manage the Trades' Hall Buildings.

4. The DELEGATE FOR THE LANDS OF GORBALS shall watch over the interests of the Incorporation, in all matters affecting them that are brought before the Delegates, appointed by the Trades' House, and the Incorporated Trades interested in these Lands, and act, to the best of his judgment, in managing the same for the good of all concerned.

5. The DIRECTOR OF THE TRADES' SCHOOL shall superintend and visit the School, and concur with the Directors appointed by the Trades' House and the other Incorporated Trades, in promoting its prosperity and efficiency.

6. The WHOLE OFFICE-BEARERS in the Incorporation shall, at all times, be subject to the control of General Meetings ; and their services, unless in so far as otherwise herein directed, shall be gratuitous ; and, on acceptance of their several offices, they shall engage, by solemn declaration, in terms of the Statute, as aforesaid, to perform faithfully the duties devolved upon them.

7. The CLERK and OFFICER shall be paid from the Corporate funds such annual salary, or other remuneration, for their services, as the Incorporation may consider to be just and reasonable.

VIII.—MEETINGS OF THE INCORPORATION AND MASTER COURT.

1. Three Stated General Meetings of the Incorporation shall be held yearly, with power to the Visitor to call Special General Meetings of his own accord ; and he shall be bound, on written requisition by at least ten Members, to call such Meetings forthwith, not less than four days' previous notice being always given of such occasional Meetings, or any other Meetings not otherwise herein provided for.

2. At all Meetings of the Incorporation, whether stated or special, twenty-one Members shall constitute a quorum.

3. The stated General Meetings of the Incorporation shall be held annually as follows, viz :—

(1.) One on the first Friday after the 15th day of September, yearly, for the election of Office-Bearers and for receiving and considering the Report of the audit of the Collector's Account of Intromissions.

(2.) One on the first Thursday of February and August, or within eight days thereafter, as the Visitor may decide.

4. At the foresaid Meeting to be held in August, a Committee of three Members shall be appointed to examine and audit, along with the Master Court, the Accounts of the Collector's intromissions with, and disbursements from, the funds of the Incorporation, for the financial year, ending as on the day of election, all in terms of Law VII., Article 1 (and, failing the attendance of any Members of such Committee, the Master Court may do so); and, upon the said account being found to be correct, and approved of by the Meeting in September for receiving and considering the report of such audit, the Collector shall, by an entry in the Minutes of that Meeting, be discharged of his whole intromissions with the Incorporation funds during the period embraced in said Account, which discharge shall be a sufficient exoneration to him of the same.

5. Five stated Meetings of the Master Court (exclusive of the Special Meeting for auditing the Collector's Accounts in terms of Law VII., Article 1) shall be held annually in the week before the first Saturday of February, May, August, and November, or within eight days thereafter, and upon the third Thursday of December.

6. All Meetings, whether of the Incorporation or of the Master Court, shall be held within the Trades' Hall of Glasgow, at such convenient hour as the Visitor may appoint.

7. All notices to Members calling General Meetings shall be printed, and delivered by the Officer to Members residing within two miles of the Cross of Glasgow, and, if beyond that distance, through the Post-Office, in so far as within the United Kingdom and as their address is known. The General Meetings in August and September shall also be notified by one advertisement in three of the Glasgow Newspapers.

NOTE.—See Alteration, Appendix, 8th February, 1866.

IX.—ANNUAL RETURNS.

Printed Returns shall be made yearly, by the Master Court, of the Office-Bearers, Members, and number of the new Pensioners added during the past year, number of School Children, together with a Summary of the changes which have occurred during the year, and a copy of the same transmitted to each Member, along with the Notices calling the stated Meeting of the Incorporation in February. The names of new Pensioners shall be read over at the Meeting of the Incorporation next ensuing the date of their admission.

X.—ELECTION AND QUALIFICATION OF OFFICE-BEARERS, AND MODE OF VOTING.

1. The whole Office-Bearers in the Incorporation shall, except in so far as otherwise provided, be elected annually, at the foresaid General Meeting in September, by the direct votes of the Members present, in the following order, viz. :—

- (1.) The Visitor.
- (2.) The Collector.
- (3.) Master Court.
- (4.) Representatives in the Trades' House.
- (5.) Member of the Building Committee of the Trades' House.
- (6.) Delegate for the Gorbals Lands.
- (7.) Director of the Trades' School.
- (8.) Keepers of the Keys of the Box.
- (9.) Clerk.
- (10.) Officer.

2. It shall not be competent for any Member to hold office in the Incorporation of Maltmen who, at the time, is an Office-bearer in the Merchants' House, or in any of the other Incorporated Trades of Glasgow.

3. The VISITOR shall always be a Member of the Master Court at the time of his election ; and shall have previously held the office of Collector to the Trade, and been honourably discharged of his intromissions ; and the term of holding office shall be restricted to one year at a time ; but, after an interval of two years, any person may be re-elected.

NOTE.—See partial Alteration, 8th May, 1862.

4. No person shall be elected as COLLECTOR unless he has served one year as a Master ; and it shall not be lawful to re-elect the Collector until he has been two years out of office as Collector.

NOTE.—See partial Alteration, 8th May, 1862.

5. No person shall be elected a MASTER of the Incorporation, or a REPRESENTATIVE OF THE TRADES' HOUSE, unless he is a duly enrolled Member of the Incorporation, free from debt to it at the time.

6. The last Visitor and last Collector shall be constituent Members of the Master Court for one year subsequent to the usual period of vacating those offices ; and the last Visitor shall in the same manner, and for the same period, represent the Incorporation in the Trades' House.

7. The votes of Members at the election of the Office-Bearers, and in all other cases in which a division may arise, shall be taken either by calling the Roll or a show of hands, as may be determined by the Meeting—any one Member having the right to require the Roll to be called. The Clerk shall record the votes, and the Meeting shall appoint two or more Members to act along with him as Scrutineers in checking the votes. After each successive call of the Roll, any Member who may have come in after his name is called, and before the election is declared, shall be entitled to have his vote recorded.

NOTE.—This mode of voting altered by Resolution of Lammas Court, 14th August, 1857. See Appendix.

8. The Collector, the Representatives in the Trades' House, Delegate for the Gorbal Lands, and Director of the Trades' School, do not require to be Members of the Master Court at the time of their appointment, but may be chosen from the qualified Roll.

9. The Member of the Building Committee of the Trades' House, being one of the Trades' House Representatives, and the Keepers of the Keys of the Box, shall always be Members of the Master Court at the time of their appointment to, and while they hold, these offices.

XI.—QUALIFICATION OF MEMBERS TO VOTE AND BE VOTED UPON.

1. All Members not in arrear of Quarter Accounts, except as before and after mentioned, shall be entitled to vote, but no Member shall be voted upon or eligible to hold office in the Incorporation unless duly enrolled qua Maltmen, and not otherwise disqualified: with the special proviso that the Members enrolled qua Pendicles (as having Burgess tickets, as Craftsmen of other Incorporated Trades, or as Merchants) on the twenty-seventh day of February, eighteen hundred and fifty-two, shall, on producing at any Stated Meeting of the Master Court of the Incorporation Tickets or Certificates by the Town Clerks of Glasgow, attesting their admission as Burgesses and Guild Brethren of the Burgh qua Maltmen, be entitled to all the rights and privileges of Members enrolled qua Maltmen, as to being voted upon and eligible for office or otherwise.

2. No Member shall be qualified to vote or be voted upon for any office, or in any other affair of the Incorporation, who has not attained the age of majority; who has not been a Member of the Incorporation for a year and day complete, previous to the day of election; or who is a pensioner on the Incorporation, or on the Trades' House; with the proviso as to Members already enrolled that they shall not be held disqualified to vote on the ground of minority.

3. No Member of the Incorporation shall be entitled, either as such Member, or as an Office-Bearer, to a voice or vote in regard to any pecuniary transaction between him and the Incorporation, or wherein he is himself personally interested, either as to loans or otherwise.

XII.—VACANCIES—HOW SUPPLIED.

1. In the event of any vacancies occurring in any offices in the Master Court, other than those of Visitor and Collector, between one ordinary time of election and another, the same shall be filled up by the Master Court till the next Annual Election.

2. In the event of any vacancies occurring in the other offices of the Incorporation, such vacancies shall, at the first stated meeting of the Incorporation after the time at which they may occur, or at a Special Meeting, to be called for the purpose, by the Visitor or late Visitor, be supplied by elections, conducted in the same manner as those by which the offices so becoming vacant were originally filled.

3. The persons to be so chosen by the Master Court and Incorporation, respectively, shall come exactly into the rights and places of their predecessors in office.

XIII.—AMENDMENTS ON LAWS.

No alteration or amendment shall be made in the Laws hereby enacted, and no new Law shall be adopted, unless notice thereof shall be given at a General Meeting of the Incorporation, at least six months prior to the time of holding the General Meeting of the Trade at which the subject is to be taken into consideration.

NOTE.—See addition to Law XIII., Appendix, 10th February, 1859.

APPENDIX TO THE LAWS AND REGULATIONS.

I.—FAR-HAND ENTRANTS—MODIFICATION OF LAW I, ARTICLE 5.*

That from the very great importance to the Corporation of exercising circumspection in the admission of far-hand Entrants advanced in life, it be an instruction to the Visitor and Masters, that whenever an application is made by a person whose age exceeds forty, they delay coming to any decision thereon till they have previously reported the whole circumstances under which the application is made (especially as regards the contingency of any claim on the part of the Applicant) to the next meeting of the Incorporation, for their advice and assistance.

II.—BURSARIES.†

That the Incorporation found two Bursaries of Ten Pounds each per annum, for the education of two individuals at the University of Glasgow, subject to the following conditions :—

1. That application for the Bursaries from Members and sons of Members have the preference over all others, and that grandchildren and others who may have received their education through this Incorporation at the Trades' School, have preference over strangers.
2. That no one individual be put in possession of the Bursary for a longer period than four years, without a new application for extension.
3. That before the first payment of the Bursary is made to the person or persons appointed, they shall exhibit to the Collector of the Incorporation for the time University Matriculation Tickets.

NOTE.—See Alterations, 12th February, 1873, p. 184.

* 12th August, 1852.

† 27th February, 1852.

4. That the Master Court for the time being shall be vested with the power of appointing to these Bursaries, and framing such other Regulations as may be necessary for accomplishing the object in view.

BURSARY REGULATIONS.*

1. That on occasion of the first appointment, and of all subsequent vacancies, an advertisement should be published in two of the Glasgow newspapers, inviting candidates to lodge their applications with the Clerk not later than ten days before the Meeting of the Master Court at which the same are to be considered.

2. That applications be considered and disposed of at any of the Stated Meetings of the Master Court, or at any Special Meeting thereof, called for that purpose by the Visitor.

3. The applicants shall be required to fill up a Schedule containing the following particulars, viz. :—

- (1.) Name.
- (2.) Age.
- (3.) Whether the Applicant is a Member, or son or grandson of a Member of the Incorporation, or whether he is connected with any of the other thirteen Incorporated Trades of Glasgow?
- (4.) Whether he has been educated at the Trades' School, and, if so, from what Incorporation?
- (5.) If the applicant has not been so educated, what other education he has received and where?
- (6.) What is the applicant's object in applying for the Bursary, with a view to ulterior studies or pursuits?
- (7.) What are the circumstances in life of his parents, or other near relations on whom he is dependent?
- (8.) With this Schedule the applicant must produce a certificate from his teachers of his abilities and general propriety of conduct, and from his clergyman as to his moral character.

* 4th August, 1852.

4. The Bursaries shall only be granted from year to year, it being in the power of the Master Court also to suspend them in the course of the year.

5. Subject to the conditions already prescribed, or to be hereafter prescribed by the Incorporation, the discretion of the Master Court shall be absolute in granting, refusing, or otherwise dealing with all the applications for Bursaries.

6. The Master Court, subject, of course, to the control of the Incorporation, shall have the power of making such farther Regulations as to the Bursaries as may be required.

BURSARY REGULATION.*

That in claiming or allowing the benefits of the Bursaries in future, the sons and grandsons of the Members of any of the other Incorporated Trades be preferred to all strangers, it being always understood that sons and grandsons of Members of this Incorporation should have the preference in the first place.

NOTE.—See Alterations, 12th February, 1873.

III.—SCHOLARSHIP.†

That £5 per annum be voted for the purpose of preparing a person who has been educated by this Incorporation at the Trades' School, for entering the University, and thus putting within the reach of such the Bursaries that have been established, subject to the condition that this allowance shall not be extended for more than four years to the same individual.

NOTE.—By resolutions of the Trade in 1872 and 1873, Four Scholarships were allowed of a sum of £10 each, instead of this one. The gift of Scholarships, senior and junior, for the promotion of higher education, founded by the Trades' House in 1876, on discontinuing the Trades' House School, open to the children and grandchildren of Freemen, of any of the Incorporations, educated in any School, have however superseded the Scholarships so provided by the Maltmen. For the information of Members the Rules in the Trades' House Scholarship will be found appended to this Print of the Laws of the Incorporation.

* 3rd February, 1853.

† 12th August, 1852.

IV.—FAR-HAND ENTRANCE-MONEY—PARTIAL ALTERATION OF LAW I, ARTICLE 5.*

That in consideration of the high position which the Incorporation has now arrived at in point of funds, and the many important relative advantages accruing to Members therefrom, the admission money of Entrants at the far hand shall, from and after the date of said Meeting, be One Hundred Pounds till twenty-five years of age, and One Hundred Guineas above twenty-five and under fifty years of age—it being understood that this alteration of Law I., Art. 5, does not affect the modification of said Law and Article agreed to by the Incorporation on 12th August, 1852.

V.—ELECTION OF OFFICE-BEARERS AND MODE OF VOTING—ALTERATION
OF LAW X., ARTICLE 7.†

That at the Lammas Court in August, a List of Persons other than those who hold their appointment ex officio, be nominated for the various Offices in the Incorporation—said List to be printed and sent to every Member, along with the intimation calling the Election Meeting; and that the Members be then requested to hand in personally said List to the Clerk on the day of Election, within the Trades' Hall, between the hours of Two and Three o'Clock, marking thereon for whom they vote; and that, at the Meeting in August, Two Members from the Incorporation be appointed to act along with the Visitor and Clerk as Scrutineers on the day of Election.

VI.—ANNUAL DINNER—ALTERATION OF LAW VII., ARTICLE 1,
SECTION 2.‡

That a dinner of the Members of the Incorporation shall be held annually on the day of election of Office-Bearers, the expense not to exceed Six * 26th April, 1855.

† 14th August, 1856.

‡ 6th March, 1857.

Shillings each ; for which purpose the sum of £30, formerly set apart for the Master Court Dinner, shall be devoted. In the event of this sum not being sufficient, the balance to be defrayed equally by the Members attending the Dinner.

VII.—AMENDMENTS ON LAWS—ADDITION TO LAW XIII.*

That no Laws in future be altered or annulled without the consent of two-thirds of the Members present, convened for the special purpose.

VIII.—FUNDS—ADDITION TO LAW III.†

That, except by unanimous consent, no motion for any grant of Money from the Funds of the Incorporation, exceeding £50, shall be entertained, unless a notice of the same, stating amount of proposed grant, has been tabled at a previous Meeting, and read to it by the Clerk.

IX.—PENSIONERS—PARTIAL ALTERATION OF LAW IV., ART. 14.‡

That the words “Sixty Pounds per annum” be substituted for the words “Forty Pounds per annum,” in clause 14 of Law IV.

X.—FUNDS—ADDITION TO LAW III.§

That in addition to the Securities on which the Monies of the Incorporation shall be invested as provided for in Law III., Sec. 2, the said Monies may be laid out or invested as follows—viz., To the Commissioners under the Glasgow Corporation Water Act, or on Debentures or Mortgages of such Railway Companies in Scotland as shall, for three years preceding the date of the Loans respectively, have paid dividends on their ordinary stock or shares at a rate not less than three per cent. per annum.

XI.—ELECTION OF OFFICE-BEARERS—PARTIAL ALTERATION OF LAW X., ARTICLES 3 AND 4.*

That from and after the date of passing this motion, the Visitor and Collector shall be eligible for re-election during one year immediately consequent to that now allowed for office, and in the event of either or both being re-elected, then the last Visitor and last Collector shall continue to hold their respective offices, ex officiis, as such, for the same period.

XII.—CALLING OF MEETINGS—ALTERATION OF LAW VII., ART. 4,
SEC. 7, AND OF LAW VIII., ART. 7.†

That Section 7, Art. 4, of Law VII., and Art. 7 of Law VIII., providing for delivery of notices to Members by the officer to the Incorporation be altered, and from and after the Stated General Meeting in February, 1866, these Notices shall be transmitted to Members through the Post Office.

XIII.—BURSARIES—ALTERATION OF AMOUNT, AND OF PERSONS ELIGIBLE.‡

That each of the two Bursaries be raised to £25.

That the class of Competitors be limited to Sons and Grandsons of Freemen of this Craft.

That in no case shall a Bursary be granted without a careful examination by competent examiners appointed by the Master Court, and that there be selection by competitive examination where the proposed studies and classes of the Candidates are identical.

‡ 12th February, 1873.

XIV.—EDUCATION.—CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN TO HAVE A FREE EDUCATION. EDUCATION COMMITTEE TO CONSIST OF FIVE MEMBERS.*

1. That Children of any member of the Craft able to pass the School Board First Standard, are to be admitted on application to the School Committee, on exhibiting a certificate, or otherwise satisfying the Committee.

2. That Grandchildren in like manner able to pass the First Standard, may be admitted on presenting their application, and being specially approved of by the School Committee.

3. That the Child or Grandchild, on admission by the Committee, shall attend Hutchesons' School, or such other School as the Committee may determine.

4. That the education of such Child or Children be carried on till they pass the Fifth Standard ; and in order to pass to each Standard, the Children shall, before fees are paid, present themselves to the Committee, with their certificates, for approval.

5. That it shall be in the power of the Committee, on examination, to advance ten Children annually who have passed examination under the Fifth Standard, to the advantage of a Secondary Education, on application being presented to the Committee for that higher education—their appointment to be tenable for a period not exceeding four years.

6. That the Fees payable by the Incorporation, whether for Primary or Secondary Education, shall not exceed those charged at Hutchesons' School. Such Fees to be applied for Quarterly, and repaid to the Parents by the Collector on the days to be fixed by him, failing which being duly attended to, all claim for repayment shall be held to be forfeited.

7. Books shall be provided for Children, whether attending Primary or * 2nd August, 1877.

Secondary divisions. The price of Books is to be allowed yearly on the following scale :—

For Primary Division.

First Year,.....1/3.		Third Year,.....3/6.
Second Year,.....2/6.		Fourth Year,.....6/6.

For Secondary Division.

As may be hereafter fixed.

8. That the Committee have power, in cases of misconduct, or of the Child or Grandchild not making progress to the Committee's satisfaction, to withdraw all privileges conferred.

9. That the Education Committee shall consist of Five Members, viz,—The Trades' School Director for the Craft, who shall be elected for two years; two members from the Craft, one of whom to retire annually; and two members from the Master Court, one of whom to retire annually. The Committee to appoint their own Convener, and three to be a quorum. The Members retiring to be eligible for re-election.

10. That the Education Committee shall annually, in July, make a Report to the Incorporation, to be printed and issued along with the Circulars calling the Lanmas meeting, specifying the names, ages, and numbers of Scholars—dates when entered—the Schools attended—and the proficiency shown during the year.

11. The Committee to have the option of obtaining the assistance of a competent Examiner.

12. The Committee to have power to consider applications for Evening Classes, made by eligible persons occupied at their business employments during the day.

THE TRADES' HOUSE SCHOLARSHIPS, PENSIONS, AND FUNDS.

MR. WEIR, Clerk for the TRADES' HOUSE, suggests some useful information regarding the TRADES' HOUSE SCHOLARSHIPS, instituted 15th February, 1877, and also regarding the ALLOWANCES given to CRAFT PENSIONERS from the FUNDS of the TRADES' HOUSE, which are subjoined for the general information of Members.

RULES FOR THE SCHOLARSHIPS.

1. The Scholarships of the Trades' House shall consist of two kinds, and be known as Junior and Senior Scholarships, for the promotion of higher education.
2. That there shall be thirty Junior Scholarships, of the average value of Fifteen Pounds, and tenable for three years,—Ten Pounds to be paid the first year, Fifteen the second, and Twenty the third year.
3. That there shall be nine Senior Scholarships, of the average value of Thirty Pounds, and tenable for three years,—Twenty-five Pounds to be paid the first year, Thirty the second, and Thirty-five the third year.
4. That these Scholarships shall be open to the Children and Grandchildren of Freemen in connection with any of the fourteen Incorporations, educated in any school. That the maximum age for boys and girls competing for a Junior Scholarship shall be fixed at fourteen years; and those for Senior, at eighteen years.
5. That a boy or girl able to pass an examination in the Fifth*

STANDARD V.—Reading.—Reading with expression a short passage of prose or poetry, with explanation, grammar, and elementary analysis of simple sentences. Writing.—Writing from memory the substance of a short story or narrative read out twice by the Inspector; spelling, grammar, and hand-writing to be considered. Arithmetic.—Practice, bills of parcels, and simple proportion. History and Geography.—Outlines of the History of Great Britain from the Union of the Crowns to the death of George III. Geography of Scotland, with special knowledge of the county in which the school is situated, and map drawing of it.

Standard of the Scottish Code, and any two of the specific subjects of secular instruction mentioned in said Code, will be eligible for a Junior Scholarship.

6. That the holders of the Junior Scholarships shall be required to attend some school where a graduated course of higher instruction is given, and give evidence of attention to their studies, by submitting to the Clerk of the House a certificate from their teacher, before the second half of their annual allowance is paid.

7. That a boy able to pass an examination in a standard to be proposed by the Examiner herein aftermentioned, and approved of by the Committee—the standard to be somewhat equivalent to the entrance Bursary Examination at the University—will be eligible for a senior Scholarship. A corresponding standard has been fixed for girls.

8. That the holders of such Senior Scholarships shall attend the University or some Technical School, and give evidence of attention to their studies, by submitting to the Clerk of the Trades' House a certificate from their professor or instructor before the second half of their annual allowance is paid. Girls that hold Senior Scholarships must also prosecute their studies in a place and manner satisfactory to the Committee, subject to the same conditions as the boys.

9. That ten Junior Scholarships shall be filled up the first year, and the same for each succeeding year; and in like manner with the Senior Scholarships—three to be filled up each year.

10. The payments to be made in November and May in each year.

11. The examination for the Junior Scholarships shall be held in July; and for the Senior, in October of each year.

12. The Scholarships shall be awarded according to the merits of the Candidates, on the report of a duly qualified Examiner appointed by the Committee on Education, with the sanction of the House; but the minimum of 400, out of 1000 marks, must be reached in order to entitle to a Scholarship, provided always, that the Candidates shall be restricted to necessitous Children or Grandchildren (a preference being given to Orphans), and especially to those who mean to prosecute a Technical education.

13. That for the purpose of furthering the education of the youth of either sex connected with the Incorporations, the House be recommended to allow the Committee on Education a sum not to exceed, in any one year, £100 sterling, to be spent in payment of Fees for Technical instruction in morning or evening classes: careful arrangement to be made by the Committee to supervise the instruction, and secure attendance and efficiency.

14. In the event of misconduct or inattention to studies on the part of anyone holding any of the above Scholarships, it shall be in the power of the "Committee on Education" to suspend from the benefits of said Scholarships, or altogether deprive of the same.

TRADES' HOUSE PENSIONS.

Previous to 1877 the several Incorporations were entitled to have four Craftsmen on the Funds of the House at rates of from £9 to £14; and in the event of an Incorporation not being able to fill up that number, two Widows were allowed to be appointed for one Craftsman.

Since 1877, the Trades' House has, on account of the great increase of its Funds, added very largely to the numbers of their Pensioners, at the same time increasing the amounts allowed, retaining the number of four Craftsmen for each Incorporation as formerly, and giving additional pensions to the most deserving applicants from the different Incorporations, and farther admitting Widows and Unmarried Adult Orphan Daughters of Craftsmen in necessitous circumstances as pensioners on the funds of the House, the payments made amounting from £6 10s. to £50, according to the following Table:—

Collector's	„	-	-	-	-	-	-	40	0	0
Deacon's	„	-	-	-	-	-	-	30	0	0
70 Craftsmen,	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	20	0	0
50 Widows—Deacon's Widow,	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	15	0	0
Others,	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	10	0	0
100 Unmarried Daughters, from £5 to £8, average being								6	10	0

FUNDS OF THE HOUSE AND FOURTEEN INCORPORATIONS.

From the Annual Statement of the Revenue, Expenditure, and Stock Accounts of the Trades' House and Incorporations of Glasgow, as at September 1879, it will be observed that the revenue of the Trades' House and Fourteen Incorporations at that date amounts to the sum of £24,127 17s. 9½d.; the expenditure, chiefly paid away in support of the deserving poor of the Crafts, amounts to the sum of £19,878 2s. 11½d.; and that the Stock amounts to the handsome sum of £469,084 10s. 2d.

So far as known, there is no other incorporated body out of London possessed of so great resources and so nobly expended.
